NO PRESENT FACTION CAN RULE, SAYS U. S.

First Definite Statement of American Position Comes as Carranza Asks Peace Conference

Washington, Aug. 7.—The Mexican situation moved forward today with two important developments. General Carranza signified his willingness to meet his adversaries in a peace conference, and an authoritative announcement was made that the United States is approaching the problem in the Pan-American conference. The position of the United States was stated as follows:

That neither Carranza nor other military faction in Mexico is in control of the country or can be considered as triumphant in the republic.

That the real purpose of the revolution was accomplished a year ago when Huerta was overthrown and that the strife which has continued since, has been over factional differences, and has not been in reality a revolution.

That it considers General Villa, while financially weakened, still is an active element in Mexican affairs who must be reckoned with.

That the so-called Scientificos do not enter into the problem now because it is considered that the overthrow of Huerta disposed of that element.

That the greater portion of Mexico is not at peace as General Carranza claims, because fighting continues in many sections from Tehuantepec to the Rio Grande and Vera Cruz to Mazatlan.

That the first problem to be solved in restoration of peace is to find for provisional president, a man who represents the cause of the original revolution against Huerta, but who does not necessarily represent any of the factions now at war.

This outline is the first authoritative statement of the basis upon which the United States is proceeding.

Carranza's Brief.

General Carranza's brief, filed with the state department by his American counsel, Charles A. Douglas, not only proposes a peace conference with his adversaries, but practically asks recognition.

It was made clear today that the United States while willing to entertain claims of the rival leaders, such as presented in the brief filed on behalf of General Carranza, does not accept the declarations of any of the military leaders that they are so dominant as to insure peace in Mexico.

Carranza, it is held, cannot be considered in control of the situation any more than other leaders, even though he may hold more territory, because Villa's forces and Zapata's bands still are operating.

The Latin-American diplomats are said to share the view that a stable government can be established only by selecting a man who represented the cause of the original revolution against Huerta and one upon whom the leaders now at war could unite.

PROPOSAL BY CARRANZA.

Washington, Aug. 7.—On behalf of Gen. Carranza a formal brief on the Mexican situation was filed with Secretary Lansing today, practically asking for political recognition and proposing that Carranza's Washington agent meet any of the other factions in a peace conference.

The brief submitted by Charles A. Douglas, Gen. Carranza's American consul, sets forth the formal suggestion of a peace conference in the following language:

"We have in Washington Mr. Aredondo in the capacity of a special representative of the constitutional government and, at this time, Mr. Cabrera, a member of Mr. Carranza's cabinet, is here. They are men of fine ability and excellent character, and are anxious to serve their country in the highest and best sense. Either, or both of them, I am assured, will be glad to confer with any element of the Mexican people, with a view to furthering the common interest, the peace and the welfare of the nation."

The proposal to restore the constitutional succession to the presidency, where it was broken by the death of Madero by elevating Vasquez Tagle, a member of the Madero cabinet, to the office of provisional president, the brief says, would defeat the aims of the revolution.

Secretary Lansing, after consultation with Secretary Lane and other leaders in touch with the Mexican situation, was today completing the draft of the pan-American appeal to the factions in Mexico, which will be presented to President Wilson before the third meeting is held. Meanwhile the six pan-American diplomats invited to confer with Secretary Lansing on the Mexican problem have submitted reports to their governments, replies to which probably will be received before the meeting in New York, which was called by the secretary to meet early next week. The meeting place was transferred to New York because the various diplomats are spending the summer in the vicinity of that city.

Will Plan Next Step.

Discussion at that meeting will deal more particularly with the possible steps to be taken should the appeal to the Mexicans to end the rival war themselves fail of its object. The diplomats were leaving for their summer homes today, after a two days' conference, which resulted in no decision as to the exact course to be followed in the event that the appeal to the Mexicans to settle their difference and restore peace goes unheeded. The conferees are in accord with President Wilson's plan and have pledged individual support, although the diplomats are not sure that this can be accomplished unless the military leaders can be eliminated and all classes in Mexico recognized. One of the most important questions which will be considered in the efforts to solve the Mexican problem is the weight to be given to the claims of the military chiefs and what concessions between them can be arranged.

Dispatch of Gen. Scott.

In this connection the dispatch of Maj. Gen. Scott, chief of staff of the army, to the Mexican border to confer with Gen. Villa, occasioned considerable comment here today, although officials explained that he was to readjust the American forces in the light of recent developments which have threatened attacks on border towns. The object of his mission, it is believed, is to outline to Villa the need of consideration for the other factions. Some of the conferees, it is understood, were impressed with the fact that Gen. Carranza's military forces and the territory held by him were entitled to greater consideration than Villa has been inclined to admit.

Must Not Endanger Americans.

General Calles, commanding the Carranza forces threatening Nogales, has received instructions not to endanger Americans. The American consulate at Vera Cruz today so advised the state department.

TWO TOWNS ARE TIED UP.

Strike Stops Car Service at Holyoke and Amherst, Mass.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 7.—Street railway traffic in Holyoke and Amherst, was completely paralyzed today by the strike of 250 employes of the Holyoke Street Railway company. The men went out following the breaking off of negotiations between the company and men. Power workers are also out, and it is announced no attempt will be made to run cars today. Commissioner Wood, of the state board of conciliation and arbitration arranged to hold a conference with the contending parties on the situation today.

All Over in 10 Seconds; 3 Mexican Bandits Slain

Brownsville, Tex., Aug. 7.—Fighting three against twenty, three Mexican outlaws were killed by a posse last night at a farm house about thirty miles north of here. One posseman was slightly wounded. The fight did not last more than ten seconds.

The posse heard that a gang of a dozen bandits which raided Sebastian yesterday and killed two Americans had separated, most of them going to their homes on the American side of the border. The bandits were after one Mexican who had been recognized among the posse of Rangers [illegible] and the three were surrounded in the house. Hutchins, Sheriff Evans of Cameron county and Ranger Captain Ransom, totalled twenty mounted men.

About 10:30 o'clock in the evening the posse galloped up to the house, encircling it. Most of them left their mounts near the back porch. Two Mexicans on this porch opened fire. The possemen replied with rifles. A third Mexican seen trying to run from the house was shot down. Since last night officers have arrested twenty Mexicans, all residents of the American side of the border, on suspicion that they were members of the party which [illegible]

The party numbered 1,256. In the group above are shown Mr. Bowser, C. A. Dunkelberg and other members of the Bowserofficial family, who aided in the work at the station.

NEW ARISTOCRACY NEEDED, HE SAYS

Dr. Kellogg Urges Health Registry for Race Betterment.

San Francisco, Aug. 7.—The world needs a new aristocracy—"a real aristocracy made up of Apollos and Venuses and their fortunate progeny"—said Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of Battle Creek, Mich., today in an address on "The Eugenics Registry" before the second National Conference on Race Betterment.

"Instead of such an aristocracy," Dr. Kellogg continued, "we are actually building up an aristocracy of lunatics, idiots, paupers and criminals. These unfit persons already have reached the proportions of a vast multitude: 500,000 lunatics, 80,000 criminals, 100,000 paupers, 90,000 idiots, 90,000 epileptics, and we are supporting these defectives in idleness like real aristocrats, at an expense of one hundred million dollars a year, and this mighty host of mental and moral cripples is increasingly due to unrestricted marriage and other degenerative influences at a more rapid rate than the sounder part of the population so that they are bound in time to constitute the majority unless some check is put upon the increase. Every-one of the lunatics possesses the right to vote even in states where women are not given the right of franchise."

Dr. Kellogg proposed a "scheme for race betterment," which he thought should be set in operation as speedily as possible. This included the establishment of a "health registry," on which should be recorded the results of an annual health inspection of individuals by a bureau maintained by the state for the purpose; and of a "eugenics registry" to accomplish in behalf of race hygiene "what the health registry would seek to do for personal health."

APPEALS FOR HELP AFTER THE DELUGE

Eleven Victims Buried at Erie—Coroner to Hold Inquest Monday.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 7.—Harbor Creek, eight miles east of Erie, was hit by a tornado and cloud burst early today, according to an appeal for help received here this morning.

Property valued at many thousands of dollars is reported to have been blown or washed away. Relief was sent from here. So far as known there were no fatalities.

Eleven victims of Tuesday night's flood here were to be buried today, while Coroner Hanley and his deputies were arranging for the inquest which had been scheduled for Monday. Competent engineers were at work preparing data for presentation to the war department at Washington, with a view to federal legislation that would prevent further filling in of the Mill creek channel and thus tend to avert a repetition of the disaster.

FRIEND OF BRYAN QUITS HIS PLACE

Washington, Aug. 7.—Robert F. Rose, of Montana, today resigned as one of the foreign trade advisers in the state department. Mr. Rose was appointed by Secretary Bryan and was his close personal friend. In presenting his resignation, Mr. Rose said it had no connection with Secretary Bryan's resignation and issued the following statement:

"I am concerned that no misunderstanding shall exist in the matter of my resignation. As stated in my letter to the secretary of state, I have been endeavoring for months to leave the department and had Mr. Bryan remained the letter would have been written. I desire to return to my profession. My relations with Mr. Bryan have nothing to do with my action. He does not know of it and I have not heard from him since he left Washington in June."

INDIANAPOLIS FIRM IS HIGHEST BIDDER

The Washington Township Bonds Sold at Premium of $1,405.

J. F. Wild & Co., of Indianapolis, were the highest bidders at the bond sale covering $21,000 on the new Lincoln school building in Washington township. They purchased the bonds at a premium of $1,405, the bond issue covering a period of fifteen years, payable semi-annually in amounts of $700 each. There were seven bidders, the bids ranging from $350 to $1,405.

Some weeks ago a bond sale was held in this city and the bonds sold, which, however, was later found to be in violation of a recent ruling of the state accounting board, inasmuch as the sale of bonds must hereafter be conducted in the township for which the bonds are intended. According to this ruling the trustee cannot maintain an office outside of his township. It has been the custom for years for the trustee of Washington township to have his office in this city, which was done for the convenience of the residents of the township who had business with the trustee.

Trustee Leonard Stolte Saturday filed his statistical report with D. O. McComb, county superintendent, showing that he has a total of $3,202.70 in his tuition fund and $374.64 in his special fund, with which to start the new school year. The average cost for the year for each pupil in the township is $29.

FLOOD PREVENTION PETITIONS SIGNED

Rush to Affix Names at Desks in Court House Square.

Farmers and city folk in large numbers signed powers of attorney in support of the flood prevention movement at the desks stationed on the court house square today. Much enthusiasm was exhibited by the freeholders who applied at the desks, and many of them took powers of attorney with them to have their neighbors sign.

Arrangements have been completed for a big booster meeting at the Commercial club Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Members of the ward committees are especially urged to be present, and all persons interested in the project are cordially invited. The primary purpose of the meeting is to explain the law fully to the committees and to distribute powers of attorney among the workers who are willing to participate in the campaign. It is of the highest importance that every member of the ward committees be present Monday evening.

HOME AT MIDNIGHT; TURNS ON THE GAS

Emil Baumgartner Ends Life in Burgess Street Residence.

Emil Baumgartner, aged 60 years and a brick mason, went home Friday midnight and turned on the gas in his bedroom. When his wife went to call him at 7 o'clock Saturday morning she found the lower portion of the building reeking with gas and her husband dead in his bed.

It is said Baumgartner had been drinking and had not been home for nearly a week up till Friday night. The widow and seven children survive. Baumgartner had lived for many years at the house in which he took his life at 1312 Burgess street and is widely known in the neighborhood.

The police received two false starts when they tried to take the pulmotor from the headquarters in the patrol wagon, and had gone over eight miles before they finally reached the place. The mistakes were due to misunderstanding of directions given over the telephone. Coroner Edward Kruse is investigating the case.

Circumstances as related by those familiar with the situation indicate that, with the remainder of the family violently opposed to it, liquor, to which Baumgartner was addicted, caused him to end his life.

"I had gone upstairs to bed," said Mrs. Baumgartner, "and I heard him come in. He wanted me to go down stairs with him, but I was afraid, and I wouldn't. Well, he went to the downstairs bedroom alone, and I slept till morning, when I came down stairs. I smelled the gas, but I thought that it was from the gas jet in the kitchen, and I tried to fix it. Then I got breakfast and noticed the gas was worse. When I went to his door to call him, I found him in the gas. That's all I know." Both gas jets were on full, and there was no doubt that it was deliberate suicide, although he left no note or word of any kind.

Police Given Wrong Direction.

The woman who first called the police gave the location of the tragedy as 1312 Fletcher avenue, a thoroughfare in the far east end of the city. Finding a church at that location the wagon crew returned to headquarters, where the correct location was learned and the run was made to the Baumgartner home. Several unnecessary miles were traveled by reason of the mistake made in giving directions to headquarters. That there was no misunderstanding of directions was proved at the Baumgartner home, for the woman who sent in the call was asked what street and number the home had and she replied "1312 Fletcher avenue."

After hearing the testimony of Mrs. Baumgartner, Coroner Kruse is of the opinion that Baumgartner intended to kill his wife along with himself when he called her and asked to come down stairs.

GIRL DRIVER OF A JITNEY BUS MAY DIE

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 7.—Three persons were injured badly here early today when an automobile running at high rate of speed struck the curbing at the court house.

Isador Liverman and Miss Katherine Wittmer, who was the first girl in Evansville to own and operate a jitney bus, are said to be injured internally, and physicians hold little hope for their recovery.

Miss Mollie Varner was bruised about the body and chest. David W. Holtzman escaped without a scratch. The automobile was wrecked.

PUTS THE CASE IN DIFFERENT LIGHT

Washington, Aug. 7.—Colville Barclay, charge of the British embassy, called at the state department today to explain the recent British note on the seizure of the American ship Neches. The British note, he said, because of its brevity, did not fully present the British reasons for the action; that the ship was not taken in reprisal for violations by Germany of the rules of naval warfare and that the rule regarding such detentions and seizures was not intended to apply to the United States alone, but to all neutral nations.

State department officials said the explanation placed the case in a different light, which will be recognized in the forthcoming reply to the London foreign office.

Germans Strike to Envelop Entire Russian Army in Poland.

Germans Welcomed to Warsaw as Liberators, Say Berlin Writers.

London, Aug. 7.—Holding the bridgeheads at Warsaw over the Vistula river, the most formidable military obstacle in eastern Europe, Germany and Austria-Hungary, having conquered the river line and with it invaded Russian territory for an average depth of 100 miles along a front from the Baltic to Bukowina, are now throwing their forces forward in an endeavor to accomplish what Russia's allies have so feared—the complete envelopment of the Russian armies.

The British press, basing its opinions on Petrograd dispatches and the lack of reports to the contrary from either Berlin or Vienna, is inclined to the view that the forces of Grand Duke Nicholas retired from Warsaw virtually intact; but there is an increasing disposition not to minimize the seriousness of the situated as it still exists and the anxiety of the quadruple powers seems to be manifested in renewed pressure to bring the Balkan states in line on the side of the entente powers.

Whole Garrison at Bay.

Though still holding Novogeorgievsk, the whole Russian garrison remains at bay. Thus the Russian armies were not only menaced back of the Warsaw salient, from where they were not entirely cleared before heavy German forces broke across the Vistula to the southeast of Warsaw, but a larger and more formidable enveloping movement has taken definite form, being in effect a greater pair of pinchers, aiming at Dvinsk, in the north, and at Brest-Litovsk in the south and superimposed on a smaller pair, which sought and still seeks to crush the Russian forces in and around Warsaw.

The French Claims.

The official statement of the French war office recites the continuance of hand grenade fighting and artillery exchanges. The engagement with grenades was very spirited in the Argonne, and a German attack on hill No. 213 was repulsed.

The rumor in London that Sweden might take part in the war, fighting against Russia, has brought a statement from the Swedish minister in the British capital that Sweden's determination to remain neutral is as firm as ever.

WITH GLAD ACCLAIM.

German Troops Welcomed at Warsaw as Liberators.

Berlin, Aug. 7.—The German troops were welcomed to undamaged Warsaw as liberators, according to the report forwarded to Berlin by Kurt Aram, special correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger. Telegraphing under date of August 5 Aram places emphasis on the statement that the city was not evacuated without a conflict. The forts were protected by barbed wire, pitfalls and mines against infantry attacks. The city is not mentioned as having been damaged.

The inhabitants of the Polish capital, the correspondent says, filled the streets and welcomed the in-marching troops with every sign of real enthusiasm and rejoicing. The streets were richly beflagged. The Polish citizens, who long had been restrained in the city, began leaving in the early morning for their farms, driving their live stock and conveying their household effects. They greeted the Germans with tears.

The Warsaw correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt confirms the report that the German troops met with a joyous reception. The streets, he says, were filled with Poles, Jews, Germans and Russians, who waved their hats joyfully to the German soldiers. Very little damage had been done in the city proper. The earthworks about the forts show the German artillery made many fair hits.

Fort Dembe, comprising part of the Warsaw fortifications on the right bank of the Vistula river, has been captured by German troops, according to an official statement given out today by the German army headquarters staff.

THE RUSSIAN STATEMENT.

Petrograd, Aug. 7.—Warsaw was evacuated by the Russians without a struggle in its immediate vicinity in order that the city might escape damage. The retreat was businesslike and orderly.

All the war stock had been previously removed from the city along with the rolling stock on the railroads. The [illegible] planted artillery to protect the rearguard of the Vistula [illegible]

MOUNTAIN SUMMIT IS CAPTURED BY STORM

Paris, Aug. 7.—After a desperate battle the Italians have stormed and captured the summit of Monte San Michele, which dominates Gorizia, says a Petit JJournal dispatch from Turin. The fall of Gorizia, twenty-two miles northwest of Trieste, on the Isonzo, now is believed imminent, the dispatch adds.

Italians Lose Submarine.

The Italian submarine Nereide is reported to have been sunk in an encounter with an Austrian submarine off the island of Pelagosa, in the Adriatic sea, according to a special dispatch from Rome.

The Nereide, which was built in 1913, was 134 feet long with a beam of 14 feet and displacement of 315 tons gross. Her peace-time complement was 17 men.

SWEDEN WORRYING ALLIES.

See Disposition to Line Up With Germany Against Russia.

London, Aug. 7.—The London Morning Post declares the attitude of Sweden toward Russia and the latter's allies for some time past has revealed elements of a disquieting character.

"Emboldened by recent German successes," the newspaper says, "the latent hostility of Sweden, which has never forgiven the loss of Finland, has become strongly developed. Considerable preparations for warlike contingencies have been made in north Sweden and the Swedish army is fully mobilized. If Sweden persists in her unfriendly attitude toward Russia she may rapidly drift into a war which would inevitably be a great obstacle to her future progress."

Fishing Smacks Sunk.

The British fishing smacks Hesperus, Ivan, Ces and Fisherman have been sunk, presumably by German submarines. The fishing crews were landed today.

The fishing smacks Heliotrope and Challenger also have been sunk. The Danish steamer Hans Emil has been set on fire. The crew was saved.

WILL RULE WARSAW POLICE.

Prussian Official Named by Germans For Conquered City.

Berlin, Aug. 7.—Chief of Police Glasenapp, of Cologne, Prussia, today was appointed as head of the police department in the conquered city of Warsaw.

An official statement given out today by the German government, says: "At midnight of August 7, the Italian airship Citta de Josi, while endeavoring to approach over Pola, was brought down by shrapnel before it could do any damage. All the crew, consisting of three naval officers, one mechanician and two men were taken prisoners. The airship was taken into Pola.

TO STUDY CAUSE OF MENTAL DEFICIENCY

Dr. Bliss on Commission to Make an Inquiry in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7.—Governor Samuel M. Ralston has announced the appointment of a commission to investigate the causes of mental deficiency in Indiana and to make recommendations for the prevention and cure, if possible, of such deficiency. The large increase in the number of epileptic, feeble minded and insane persons in the state in the last few years is given as a reason for the action. The investigators will report their observations and conclusions not later than November 1. 1916. The commission is composed of the following:

Rev. Francis H. Gavisk, chairman of committee on hospitals for the insane of the board of state charities, Indianapolis.

Dr. George F. Ebenharter, medical superintendent Central Indiana Hospital for Insane, Indianapolis.

Dr. Samuel E. Smith, medical superintendent Eastern Indiana Hospital for the Insane, Richmond.

Dr. Charles P. Emerson, dean Indiana University School of Medicine, Indianapolis.

Dr. W. C. VanNuys, superintendent Indiana Village for Epileptics, Newcastle.

Dr. George S. Bliss, superintendent School for Feeble Minded Youth, Fort Wayne.

Frank B. Culbertson, state senator, Vincennes.

Charles A. McGonagle, state representative, Muncie.

The problem of mental deficiency and its prevention was discussed at the quarterly meeting of the board of state charities last Monday and the decision to appoint the investigating commission was made at this meeting.

PHOTOGRAPHER DURBOROUGH WITH THE GER MAN DRIVE IN RUSSIA.

This photograph was taken at Alexandrowa, Russia, which is within the lines of the German drive now going on against Russia from the north by way of East Prussia.

The picture shows German soldiers entering the "lousing station" at Alexandrowa. That's it, lousing station, another exhibition of German efficiency. For ages the louse, great big gray ones, have been the pest of the war camp. The cleanest men cannot keep away from them. They cause sores and in bad cases they even eat men's flesh from the bones.

In Serbia, body lice caused the terrible epidemic of typhus which carried off thousands, an epidemic which has just been conquered. The Germans knew all about the deadly louse and took precautions against him. Stations behind the lines are provided with special equipment for killing the pest. All soldiers coming in from the front for a rest must first go through these stations. Their clothes and all their belongings are placed under intense heat and the men go through a thorough cleansing process personally.

BLAMES DOCTORS FOR MANY DRUG VICTIMS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—Physicians are responsible for more than one-half of the drug fiends in the United States, according to a bulletin published today by the public health service.

The bulletin is based on a study of cases which have come to the notice of the service since the Harrison anti-narcotic law went into effect. The study was made by Martin I. Wilbert, technical assistant in the hygienic laboratory.

At the outset Mr. Wilbert states that the number of drug victims in the United States is probably not much over 200,000. He denies that the passage of the Harrison law has caused any great suffering in the country or any crime wave such as was feared.

Mr. Wilbert comments on the deaths reported in Chicago, which were attributed to the difficulty of the unfortunates in obtaining narcotics after the law went into effect. He also refers to the marked increase in the number of drug victims admitted to Philadelphia hospitals.

These cases, according to Mr. Wilbert, in no way measured up to the predictions of persons who believed the law would cause great suffering and much crime.

OCT. 1 DISEASE PREVENTION DAY

Governor Ralston Issues a Proclamation Asking Observance.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7.—Governor Samuel M. Ralston has issued a proclamation designating Friday, October 1, as disease prevention day. The governor says:

"The unanimity with which the first official proclamation for disease prevention day, that of last year, was received by the general public, the public schools, the medical profession and the sanitary scientists and philanthropists, is of itself a sufficient warrant for issuing a second one in 1915.

"The time was ripe for such an appeal on behalf of the public health. The work of voicing and giving practical direction to an already aroused public opinion, so auspiciously started and so greatly stimulated by that movement, was too valuable to be lost or neutralized by any neglect or relaxation of interest and effort at this time. Good health is always a paramount issue. It means sane minds, as well as sound bodies; self-poise to the individual and safety to the state. In its last analysis it is the sheet anchor of a true and normal civilization.

"I respectfully urge that such exercises be given in the public schools, and such action be taken by the various municipalities and civic and other organizations in Indiana, as will emphasize the importance of public health and the joint responsibility of all citizens therefor, and will inspire in every one a desire to meet that responsibility by an active co-operation in all sane efforts for the prevention of physical disease."

New York, Aug. 7.—Austria-Hungary has expressed her sympathy for the United States in the case of the sinking of the steamer Eastland at Chicago with the loss of more than 900 lives, according to the following statement issued today at the Austro-Hungarian consulate general here: "On the occasion of the staggering disaster of the Eastland, the Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs, Baron Burion, had requested Ambassador Penfield to convey to the United States government the deep-felt sympathies of Austro-Hungarian government." z z

Starkville, Miss., Aug. 7.—Peter Bolen and Jim Seales, negroes convicted of killing another negro, were hanged in public here yesterday, the gallows being built in a natural amphitheater which afforded the crowd of several thousand, including many women, an unobstructed view of the hangings. At the request of the doomed men the crowd sang the hymn, "There Is a Land of Pure Delight," just before the traps were sprung. Soft drinks and candy vendors sold their wares among the crowd while it waited for the executions.

FUND IS INCREASING.

About $900 Raised by St. Joe Club For Proposed Dam.

The committee in charge of raising funds for the dam to be constructed in the St. Joe river near the State street bridge, which will provide a splendid waterway for a distance of six miles for boating, fishing and bathing, have been assured more than $3,000. The committee is confident that little trouble will be experienced in securing the required $15,000, the amount necessary for the completion of the dam and other necessary work along the proposed waterway. It is understood that the St. Joe Athletic club has raised between $800 and $900 for the dam.

VICTIM OF AUTOMOBILE SMASH AT AVILLA DIES

Mrs. Frank Prudenz, wife of a merchant at Cincinnati, who was seriously injured when the automobile, driven by her son Earl, overturned two miles north of Avilla two weeks ago, died late Friday afternoon at the Kneipp sanitarium at Rome City, where she had been removed immediately after the accident. The body passed through this city last evening on its way to her late home.

Mrs. Prudenz, with her sons, Earl and Robert, and daughter Alma and Miss Gladys Bowers, of Decatur, had driven to Rome City the day before to spend the summer at the resort. After reaching there they discovered that an extra tire had been lost and by communicating by telephone along the route they had come they found that the lost article had been picked up at Huntertown. The next day the party had motored there and it was while the return was being made that the car struck a rut in the road, bounded to the side and turned over in the ditch.

The mishap occurred on the evening of the nineteenth birth anniversary of the son, Earl, who was driving the car. None of the occupants of the car with the exception of Mrs. Prudenz was injured, only suffering a few minor bruises. The unfortunate lady suffered concussion of the brain and did not regain consciousness after the accident. Mr. Prudenz had been at the bedside of his wife since the day after the accident.

ENGINEER DEAD AT THROTTLE.

Lifeless Man Pilots Train Ten Miles Before Fact Is Discovered.

Columbus, O., Aug. 7.—When a Big Four passenger train speeded through Georgesville, a village near here, yesterday without stopping as usual, the fireman pulled the coat of Engineer William Quinlan to attract his attention and found the engineer was dead, though he sat erect with his hand on the throttle. Passengers became excited when they learned after reaching Columbus their train had run at least ten miles with the pilot lifeless. Heart disease caused his death.

W. C. Kelker, G. R. & I. engineer, has taken a two weeks' leave of absence and will spend the time in and about Mackinac.

GOING TO PEOPLE, NOT POLITICIANS, HE SAYS

Kentland, Ind., Aug. 7.—Warren T. McCray, a banker of Kentland, is preparing to wage a strenuous campaign for the republican nomination for governor and he will carry his fight to the people of the state and not the politicians. Mr. McCray has received scores of letters of indorsement from progressive as well as republicans and he believes that with a "clean business" policy as his platform he will obtain the support of members of all parties.

"I have been too much engaged with my business affairs to have an opportunity to form the acquaintance of the politicians of Indiana," he says, "and I am therefore appealing directly to my friends and the voters of Indiana to look after my interests.

"In the event of my nomination and election, I can promise that it will be my earnest endeavor to give the people of Indiana a clean, economical business administration and will undertake at all times to be fair to all business interests, whether large or small. I have always been a republican, but I am making this appeal to all who desire an administration of that kind regardless of former associations or preferences."

Miss Goldman said she expected to procure bail for him also.

AMERICANS SEIZE HAITIEN PALACE

Port au Prince, Haiti, Aug. 7.—American naval forces have taken possession of the office of the port, the national palace and the Haitien gunboat Pacifique, which arrived in Port au Prince yesterday.

During the movement to take the office of the port the Americans opened fire on the Haitiens and one Haitien was killed.

The occupation of the office of the port and the national palace gave the Americans the last positions held by the Haitiens.

The populace has been thrown into consternation by the operations of the Americans. The president of the senate, in the name of the nation, cabled Solon Menos, Haitien minister to the United States, a new protest against the occupation of Haitien territory by the American naval forces.

Dr. Rosalvo Bobo, leader of the revolution, arrived here on board the United States refrigerator ship Celtic. On landing he was cheered by the populace.

ALL DRIVERS PREDICT NEW 100-MILE RECORD

Chicago, Aug. 7.—With all the drivers predicting a new automobile record at 100 miles will be made, Resta, Cooper, Bob Burman and Barney Oldfield were prepared to meet in a match race on the two mile course of the speedway this afternoon. The drivers have been practicing all week and have their cars primed up.

It is claimed that all of the entrants have shown a speed of more than 104 miles an hour in practice, and the fact that there will be few cars on the track to delay them is pointed out as proof that the record of 99.05 miles an hour made here in the automobile derby, will be beaten. The drivers will race for a purse of $10,000 and will be sent away to a flying start.

FIND HARMLESS X-RAY.

Discovery Much Discussed by New York Physicians.

New York, Aug. 7.—Physicians from several of the leading hospitals, discussed today the discovery of what was described as a harmless X-ray. Fourteen physicians had witnessed yesterday a demonstration of the new ray by Charles Stanley, an electrician, who claims to have discovered the ray, and who asserts that it eliminates the danger heretofore said to surround the application of the X-ray. Mr. Stanley held a bulb with the ray burning in his hand for an hour to show the physicians that it produced no harmful effect.

FORMER WINONA TEACHER RETURNS

Prof. Rider Tells of Visit to Morgan's Church in London.

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 7.—Prof. William Rider, formerly teacher in the animal husbandry and dairying department of the Winona College of Agriculture, spent a few days at the park this week. He is at present engaged as head of the dairying department of the Syracuse university at Syracuse, N. Y. He has been attending school for the past two months at the state agricultural school at Madison, Wis., taking some post-graduate work which will entitle him to additional degrees in his work.

Among other interesting incidents related by Mr. Rider is a story of a visit of Mrs. Rider and himself to Dr. G. Campbell Morgan's church in London, when they were traveling abroad a year ago. After hearing Dr. Morgan preach a sermon in his own church, they introduced themselves to him, saying that they heard him preach at Winona Bible conference. The genial doctor's face was illuminated with smiles upon gaining this intelligence, and he pointed with supreme satisfaction to a large picture of the Winona Bible conference, beautifully framed, hanging on his wall. He stated to Mr. and Mrs. Rider that Winona occupies a very warm spot in his affections and that he recalls his visits to the great Indiana summer resort with genuine pleasure. He stated also that in his opinion Winona, through its great Bible conference is performing a mission for the church and for humanity that is of incalculable value.

Mr. Rider was greatly pleased with the substantial improvements that have taken place at Winona since he left three years ago. He believes the Winona College of Agriculture is doing efficient work in its line and predicts that when it receives sufficient endowment to make it a self-supporting institution it will achieve marked success.

GREAT GALAXY OF NOTABLES.

Six Indiana Candidates for Governor to Be at Lagrange Corn Show.

Lagrange, Ind., Aug. 7.—Congressman John A. M. Adair, of the Portland district; William H. O'Brien, former auditor of state; Mayor Robert O. Johnson, of Gary; James P. Goodrich, national committeeman; Colonel Charles Arthur Carlisle, of South Bend, and Quincy A. Myers, former justice of the supreme court, are six of the candidates for party nomination for governor of Indiana, in the primary of next March, who have thus far accepted invitations to be in Lagrange, Thursday, October 7, governor's day of corn school week, and deliver addresses. Governor Woodbridge N. Ferris, of Michigan, is to be the principal guest of honor on that day, and those who aspire to the governorship of the Hoosier commonwealth are to be with him on that occasion, if they will come. Six have already signified their intention to be here, and others will write within a few days.

CONVOY CHAUTAUQUA ENDS.

Convoy, O., Aug. 7.—The Convoy chautauqua, given by the Meneley system under the auspices of the Junior Fire company, came to a close Wednesday evening. This is the first chautauqua ever held in Convoy and while it was not a "howling" success financially, every one of the twelve numbers have been so satisfactory that all who attended were well pleased and many are urging the fire boys to contract for another chautauqua next year. The weather conditions were all against the boys this year as it rained almost every day and since Monday afternoon the tent was abandoned and the meetings were held in the town hall which was much too small to accommodate the crowds.

SHOWING HOW TO LEAD.

Lagrange, Ind., Aug. 7.—Mrs. Ned Spero and Edna Greenawalt, of Brushy Prairie, were in town one day this week selling advertising space on a booklet announcing the lecture course for the Brushy Prairie hall for the coming winter season, and, what is more to the point, they sold it in an hour or two. For some reason or other none of the Brushy Prairie people seemed willing to be interested enough in a lecture course for the coming season to take the lead, until Mrs. Spero and Miss Greenawalt decided to come to the rescue, assume most of the responsibility and do most of the work. So they have arranged for a course of five numbers from the Central Lyceum bureau of Chicago.

ZIMMERMAN FAMILY REUNION.

Lagrange, Ind., Aug. 7.—The annual reunion of the Zimmerman family was held yesterday, August 5th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Browning at the county farm. There were a total of 58 relatives and friends present to enjoy the occasion. In addition to the members of the family, the county commissioners and their families were invited. Others present outside the family circle were Christian Giggy, an old neighbor; Rev. J. M. Weber and two sons, of Monroeville. Following the reunion dinner a short program of recitations and songs were given and Rev. Weber gave an address. At the business session the old officers were re-elected for another year as follows: President, Isaac Zimmerman; vice president, Howard A. Zimmerman; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Browning.

BROTHER IS STILL MISSING.

Bluffton, Ind., Aug. 7.—Bert and Charles Patterson, residing northeast of Bluffton, are home from Chicago after a two days' fruitless quest for their brother, Sam Patterson, of Michigan City, who has been missing from his home and family for a week. Messrs. Patterson are much discouraged by their inability to find a trace of their brother and are fearful for his safety. He went to Chicago Friday, July 30, to transact business and the firm whom he visited there reported to his family this week that he finished his business and started home without delay.

CARD FROM BATTLEFIELD.

Van Wert, O., Aug. 7.—Mr. James Fostnaught has received a postal card from France acknowledging the receipt of a toboggan cap which had been sent, when a box of gifts were sent last winter to the soldiers in France. The card is written in a neat hand and the writing is as follows: "I cannot express to you the pleasure it gave me when I received your most thoughtful gift, especially from one of our American cousins across the border. It makes me feel quite near home, as I belong to Montreal. Again thanking you for your thoughtfulness, yours gratefully, Serg. A. W. Fisher, First heavy, B. C. F. A." (British Columbia field artillery.)

STOLE ROXIE'S BEAN CROP.

Bluffton, Ind., Aug. 7.—The theft of an entire crop of green beans from the premises of Roxie White, in the southeast part of town, is the latest wrinkle of sneak thievery. Mr. White has been tending the beans very carefully all spring as he is very fond of them and had produced a crop at once succulent and plentiful. Harvesting of the crop was to take place today. His plans were sadly blasted, however, when he found that some one had beat him to the harvest and had picked the vines almost clean of their tender crop. There is no clue to the thief.

BEAN CAN EXPLODES.

Decatur, Ind., Aug. 7.—Mrs. Joseph Helm, corner Third and Marshal streets, is carrying a very severely burned arm in a bandage, the result of an explosion, while canning beans. Mrs. Helm was canning beans by a steaming process and had used a two quart tin can. While she was working away over the stove, she noticed that the lid of the can was raised up a little ways, but as she was about to seal it, she pushed it down and reached across the large can to move a smaller one out of the way. As she did so, the lid popped off and almost the entire contents of the can were thrown high in the air as if from a miniature volcano.

AFTER NATIONAL HIGHWAYS.

Kosciusko County Organizes to Get the Lincoln and Dixie Roads.

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 7.—Three hundred enthusiastic boosters for the Hoosier Dixie highway and Lincoln highway met in the court room on Friday afternoon for the purpose of forming a county organization. The meeting was to have been held in the city hall, but owing to the fact that the crowd far exceeded the expectations of those in charge of the meeting, it was necessary to meet in the court room. Practically every township in the county sent delegations. The largest delegation was sent from Pierceton and Larwill, seventeen machines coming from these towns. A committee, composed of two persons from each township present, was chosen to draft by-laws for the organization. Following was the committee chosen: Lake, Homan and Kern; Clay, Scoles and Tucker; Warsaw, Logan Williams and Charles Dickey; Plain, Kinsey and Irvine; Van Buren, Sparklin and Brixan; Wayne, V. M. Hatfield and Milo James; Jackson, Denny and Washam; Monroe, Scott and Burchby; Washington, Knull and Long.

GOVERNOR TO VISIT BLUFFTON.

Bluffton, Ind., Aug. 7.—A letter from Auditor of State Dale Crittenberger to W. A. Kunkel gives definite information concerning the plans for a visit to the Bluffton free street fair in September of Governor Samuel M. Ralston and other state officers.

The state officers will be here on Thursday, September 23rd. In addition to Governor Ralston other state officers who will be included in the party are Secretary of State Homer L. Cook, State Treasurer George Bittler, State Superintendent Greathouse, Supreme Court Reporter Zoercher and Judges Moran and Shea.

MEETS MISS KELLER AT WINONA.

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 7.—Dale Regenos, the eight-year-old deaf boy, who resides near Claypool, and who has just completed two terms at the Indiana State School for Deaf, was introduced to Miss Helen Keller at Winona by Mrs. Macy, teacher of Miss Keller. Miss Keller presented the little fellow with one of the large yellow roses which she carried during her lecture. Since entering the school the little Regenos boy has made rapid strides in articulating speech and lip reading and was able to converse with Miss Keller with ease.

TWELVE INCH HEAD OF OATS.

Decatur, Ind., Aug. 7.—E. F. Miller, of west of the city, a resident of the old Daniel Weldy homestead, brought to this city yesterday a stalk of Great Dane oats, measuring five and one-half feet tall. The head is exactly twelve inches long and contains 270 grains of oats. The average number of grains on a stalk of ordinary oats is seventy. The oats is a native of Denmark. Mr. Miller's crop is exceptionally good, even for the Great Dane. He has ten acres of it and it is standing nicely.

EUROPEAN WAR EXONERATED.

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 7.—An inquisitive resident here wrote to the United States department of agriculture asking what the cause of the continued rain is. The questioner mentioned the fact that there are many people who believe that the cannonading in Europe is responsible for this. The department experts write, however, that no basic reason has been found for the rain, but that the war in Europe has nothing to do with conditions here, as far as rain is concerned.

ON LOOKOUT FOR BLIND PIGS.

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 7.—Prosecutor Sprague stated today that the number of soft drink places which have been established in this city since the passing of the saloons looks suspicious. He intimated that he thinks perhaps a number of those who are establishing such places may attempt to run blind tigers. The prosecutor added, however, that he has means of getting "hep" to blind tigers which the general public does not know about.

TO BUILD BRICK HIGHWAY.

Goshen, Ind., Aug. 7.—The contract for the improvement of the Elkhart township portion of the Goshen and Elkhart highway was awarded by the county commissioners Friday afternoon, Henry Cripe, of Goshen, being the successful bidder. His bid as submitted is for $44,025. The road, about three miles in length, will be paved with brick for a width of 18 feet, Metropolitan block to be used.

KILLED BY NEGRO TRAMP.

Defiance, Ohio, Aug. 7.—The funeral of Edward Chriss will be held this afternoon from the residence of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Efferson Towle. Chriss' parents live in Toledo. He was an employe of the Missouri Pacific railway, and while on his way home in Kansas City, was shot by a negro tramp. He was taken to a hospital in Ottawa, Kansas, dying about ten days later. His body arrived here Friday.

EXHIBITS BIG HORNETS' NEST.

Van Wert, O., Aug. 7.—Harry Gleason has on display at his store one of the largest hornets' nests ever seen in this vicinity. The nest is about two feet long and more than a foot in diameter, and was discovered in a woods near West Cairo last winter and brought here. The owner placed it in his attic where it lay forgotten until a few days ago, when it was mentioned to Mr. Gleason, who asked permission to place it on exhibition in his store.

SO EVERYBODY MAY HEAR.

Huntington, Ind., Aug. 7.—The chimes in the Methodist church tower will be raised so that the sound will be able to travel to the east and northern part of the city. The tower will be built higher and an expert from the Menelly Bell company will be in the city to superintend the moving of the bells. F. Cramer, of Logansport, the contractor who built the church, will raise the belfry.

ONE MAN'S HARD LUCK.

Huntington, Ind., Aug. 7.—John Ackerman, of this city, has been suffering for thirteen weeks with typhoid fever. He suffered two relapses during this time and when he recovered from typhoid fever he suffered an attack of dropsy and stomach trouble. He is very ill at the present time, several physicians being in consultation yesterday.

WEATHER POSTPONES PICNIC.

Ashley, Ind., Aug. 7.—The Smithfield township and Hudson Sunday school picnic has been postponed from today until one week later. The excessive downpour of rain of the present week, added to the abundance of other weeks, has resulted in making Camp's grove too wet for picnic purposes and the committee thought it best to try picnicing a week later.

FLOOD AT MONTPELIER.

Montpelier, Ind., Aug. 7.—The Salamonie river is still on a rampage, and is now out of its banks, although it has been going down gradually. The stone quarry employes have been off duty on account of the high water and the employes of the water works have had to use boats to go back and forth to their work. The low lands are all flooded and much damage is being done to the crops along the banks of the

COMMERCIAL AND GARAGE BUILDING FOR MR. ALOIS L. NICOLL FORT WAYNE INDIANA
MAHURIN & MAHURIN ARCHITECTS FORT WAYNE INDIANA

"The great American desert is not located in Idaho, Arizona or New Mexico, but under the hat of the average man—and I am not referring to the 'bald headed' man either."

"Nine-tenths of the average man's brain power is never used—a waste that causes waste."

Startling statements? Yes, indeed, and by two prominent men—students of efficiency—who ought to know. Is it not true, too, that we do not really think and do we not too often follow the lines of least resistance? And is it not just about what many are doing now in deciding what their boys and girls should do this fall? In fact have YOU given this important question the consideration it deserves.

An eminent writer and successful business man recently said that the three essentials for success were training, ability and knowledge and he placed much emphasis on the training in practical things. This is the trend of the day; it is one of the chief reasons why we have sought new quarters, designed by our own architect and adapted to our own needs.

But what do we teach? What training do we give?

Space here won't permit complete answers, but a 'phone call over 504, or a postal card, will bring you a catalog——FREE.

It will be at least interesting to know about the improvements being made in our various courses, and especially about the new model office, and ACTUAL OFFICE PRACTICE course we are adding. A large number have already investigated or made inquiry, and many have already enrolled. This new Department will give practice in real work—in the use of all modern office appliances, such as Multigraph, Dictaphone, Adding Machine, Cash Register, Protectograph, Billing Machine, Stenotype, Mimeograph, Letter Press, Filing, etc., etc., so that the graduate will be experienced in all lines of office work. You too, Mr. Business Man, were considered in the installation of this department; for no longer shall your patience be tried by inexperienced help.

"He profits most, who serves best," is truly our motto. We wish we could add something about the suite of new offices for the use of your boy or girl in our Accounting or Bookkeeping Department. We have not mentioned the fact that nearly one hundred brand new typewriters will be installed next month. The fact that we send a daily report on both the attendance and progress of your boy or girl, has not been mentioned, nor have we said anything about the new system of credits which will render you a greater service and give a superior training.

Don't think we are boasting, therefore; we are merely serving your best interests in the best way we know how, and we want you to investigate further for yourself. While doing so, do not forget to ask about our employment department, which places every competent graduate in a position.

24 And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand.

25 And if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand.

26 And if Satan rise up against himself, and be divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end.

27 No man can enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he will first bind the strong man; and then he will spoil his house.

28 Verily I say unto you, All sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men, and blasphemies wherewith soever they shall blaspheme:

29 But he that shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost hath never forgiveness, but is in danger of eternal damnation:

30 Because they said, He hath an unclean spirit.

31 There came then his brethren and his mother, and, standing without, sent unto him, calling him.

32 And the multitude sat about him, and they said unto him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren without seek for thee.

33 And he answered them, saying, Who is my mother, or my brethren?

34 And he looked round about on them which sat about him, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren!

35 For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother.

Dimming the Auto Lights

An Indianapolis court has just declared invalid and unenforceable the ordinance recently passed in that city in the interest of safety requiring that glaring automobile headlights be dimmed while traversing the streets of the state capital. It is held that the law is not specific; that it does not provide a measure by which to decide when an automobile light is sufficiently dazzling to come under the ban and when it is not. Consequently some new measure will have to be devised to meet the situation if the public is to have protection against the blinding glare.

The amazing thing about the situation, after all, is that any law should be required to bring about decent regard for the rights of others. There is doubtless today not an auto driver offending with his blinding lights who has not himself suffered similar outrage at the hands of others. He knows by experience precisely what discomfort and what positive danger he is inflicting upon others when he dashes down street past pedestrians and past other machines with his machine throwing out rays so piercing and so painful that they put to shame the early performance of the searchlight designed to penetrate darkness at long distances. It is wholly unnecessary. It is a waste of electric current. It makes the course of passing pedestrians and automobilists alike painful, hazardous and dangerous. Blinded, disconcerted, confused, all sense of distance, direction and safety is lost. Good luck alone enables one to escape.

Some degree of the offending may be due to thoughtlessness rather than lack of common courtesy and decent consideration for others. Some of it is flagrant viciousness—a bit, perhaps, due to ignorance—but whatever the cause, the result is an outrageous condition that cries aloud for remedy.

The action of Governor Ralston in proclaiming October 1 as Disease Prevention day in Indiana is much more important than one may at first realize. We have come to have a great many holidays and special observances of one sort and another throughout the year, but none of them with greater possibilities for enduring benefit than is the day set apart for education which will conserve public health, prevent the encroachment of disease and contribute to longer life and greater happiness. Health values cannot be measured in terms of money or of words, and the best health propaganda is not that which cures ills, but that which prevents them. Young and old should lend their full support and definite interest to the observance of Disease Prevention day.

There is now a prospect of a test in the courts at Muncie of the new law passed by the last legislature to provide flood prevention for Indiana cities. Let us hope that whatever legal clouds may be in the atmosphere will have been dissipated before Fort Wayne gets ready to use the law. The present campaign for signatures to the flood prevention petitions must not be allowed to fail. In providing against the danger of future damage by flood, Fort Wayne is facing a definite civic duty, and Fort Wayne does not fail when she sets herself out to accomplish things.

The election of Rev. William Moll, of Fort Wayne, as president of the middle west district of the Missouri Lutheran synod is an honor that all Fort Wayne appreciates no less than do the close friends of the popular pastor. This city, recognized as one of the strongholds of Lutheranism in the middle west, is proud to be the recipient of such distinguished recognition, and it can heartily congratulate both Rev. Moll and the synod upon the choice that has been made.

Twenty-nine prominent New York progressives, headed by George W. Perkins, have just held a meeting at Albany and vociferously sworn eternal fealty to the third party organization. Inasmuch as the colonel was not present and included in the number, we think that without doing violence to probability or enumerating the barnyard fowl prior to their incubation, the New York total on which progressives may safely depend can with reasonable assurance be raised to thirty.

The National Tailors' association, in solemn conclave, has decided that $1,000 a year is about the proper sum for a man to spend for his clothing. It is clear that the National Tailors' association has overlooked the incidental fact that most of us are also compelled to have a place to sleep and something to eat occasionally in order to adequately exploit our fine raiment. But the tailors are not the only folk who are able to see their own side of a proposition first.

Cleveland police believe they have unearthed at Angola a well-organized and especially daring "fence" for stolen automobiles, alleging that large numbers of pilfered motor cars have been systematically shipped to the Steuben county capital to be disposed of to purchasers whose chief concern was low price. And all this in a town that has always been listed among the spotless ones!

SAFEGUARDING TRAFFIC.

(Grand Rapids News.)

Director of Safety Carroll has returned from a trip to Detroit, Cleveland and other cities, where he has investigated traffic regulation rather extensively, and he has brought back some new ideas which he will endeavor to put in force here.

Especially he recommends the traffic semaphore, which is in general use in the larger cities. This semaphore, which be secured at the low cost of $9. Those Grand Rapids citizens who have driven in Detroit will remember the semaphore as a valuable aid at street intersections. It does away with the rather unsatisfactory hand signals used by the traffic officers. The semaphore can be seen for a long distance and there is no chance for a driver to confuse the signals. The words "Go" and "Stop" are printed plainly, and there can be no argument that the officer gave the wrong signal or that the driver misunderstood the signal.

Director Carroll also will propose that all traffic zone signs be placed permanently in the pavement, as in some other cities, but this hardly will work out satisfactorily in Grand Rapids, where the business streets are so narrow. Occasionally horses or an automobile will grow unmanageable, and the signs platdne permanently would present a new danger.

Permanent marking of the safety zones by white brick in the pavement instead of by painted lines would be a good improvement and would save considerable money in the course of the year.

Too much attention cannot be paid to the improvement of traffic conditions here, and Director Carroll's trip was a good investment in behalf of safety.

THE WAR OF DIPLOMACY.

(Pittsburgh Dispatch.)

No matter what may be the result of the series of notes passing between the government at Washington and the governments at Berlin and London, even the running reader must recognize that up to date this war on the part of the United States has been a war of diplomacy. If prosecuted upon the standard so far maintained nobody can be mistaken in regard to the victory.

New evidence of the excellence of this war of diplomacy is presented in the suggestion over the name of Secretary Lansing that the South American and the Central American states may be requested to take a hand in a Pan-American symposium for the possible settlement of the unnameable conditions in Mexico.

This is another proof of the newer thought that no one country on this narrow little globe of ours can be in turmoil, either domestic or international, without affecting all. With marvelous methods of transportation and communication the good or ill of one is measureably the good or ill of all. No more is there an existing entity separate from other assumed entities. We must realize the condition of oneness if we would make for the best there is in existence.

The thought of having all of the great American states unite in friendly controversy in relation to the bettering of conditions in Mexico, and of all of the internally disturbed American countries, is a thought that is being every day reinforced and made more and more insistent. It is intolerable that in this age of almost magical progress anarchy in one country should disturb the equilibrium of other countries either adjacent or remote.

The Willys-Knight Touring Car is abeautiful car—more pleasing in its proportions, more satisfying in its lines and finish—than any picture can show. For its beauty does not appeal merely from one angle, but from every angle; its finish shows as rich and perfect at close range as at a distance. It is the work of master designers and skilled artisans.

The lines of the long, low body flow smoothly, without angles or projections, from the rounded front edge of the radiator to the full-curved back. There is that harmony in the blending of lines that marks the true streamline type.

The fenders are long and sweeping in their curves, with gracefully rounded surfaces, and the running boards are clean and free from obstructions. The windshield is built in, and conforms to the curve of the cowl, making it a part of the car itself rather than a mere attachment.

The finish of the body is a deep royal blue, with delicate striping in white, and the wheels are a pleasing gray. Black enameled fenders and trimmings add a touch of dignity which gives the whole a remarkable effectiveness.

It is a beautiful car.

GOLD IN TREASURY SETS WORLD RECORD

U. S. Has as Much as Ever Held by Any Other Two Nations.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The United States has the greatest stock of gold, cash and bullion ever held by any nation, and as much as any two nations of the world.

There was in the federal treasury Aug. 2, in cash and bullion, $2,006,399,539. The present stock of the United States represents the loss of gold to the nations of Europe through trade balances.

July 1 the gold stock of the United States was $1,993,549,015, showing an accumulation to Aug. 2 of over $12,000,000.

In 1907 when the United States had a stock of $1,612,000,000 in gold, Germany had a stock valued at $1,044,000,000, France $906,000,000, Russia $907,000,000, Great Britain $564,000,000, Austria $303,000,000 and Italy $258,000,000.

England, it is reported, has accumulated about $800,000,000 in gold, practically the entire stock of the United Kingdom, as the nation has been hoarding precious metal and urging the people to use paper currency.

At the ice cream social of the fire department of the Wayne Knitting Mills, which will be held at Swinney park August 31, a water battle will be an interesting feature if the plans now considered are carried to a finish. Other amusement features are being planned, and, if the weather is good, the crowd will be large.

New Method of Caring for Children Deserted by Mother.

Connersville, Ind., Aug. 7.—Lawrence Serafin, a Pole, was left with his two children, one five, one nine years old, when his wife disappeared simultaneously with the disappearance of a young Russian, who had been rooming at the Serafin home. The deserted father earns good wages in a local furniture factory. He could not leave his work, and was loath to explain his wife's act to his neighbors. So each morning he made up a meat stew, into which he worked bread and vegetables. This he left in a crock, on the floor, and locked the doors and the windows after him. Returning at night he found his children well nourished, but lonely. The Humane society has just learned of this arrangement and will care for the children until Serafin can get a housekeeper.

Society

No matter how dull seems "society," let visitors come to the city and all immediate friends and acquaintances wake up and begin to entertain in some way for them. So it has happened that this old fort city has acquired a reputation for unusual hospitality and her people are said to be delightful by strangers who visit here and many who come to live are generous in praise of the good times, the kindly spirit and the cordial greeting they have and receive. The present week has been brightened on dull days by parties here and there, little ones and big ones, but none formal as best becomes summer weather. And teh visitors have eaten and drunk and talked and listened and enjoyed everything, even the leaden skies, chill winds and the rain.

AT THE TEMPLE.

LAST TIME TONIGHT.

Final Performance of "The Man Who Stood Still."—Coming, "Hello Bill."

Fort Wayne will bid goodbye tonight to the delightful little comedy drama, "The Man Who Stood Still," in which the Paycen Players at the Temple theater have been charming remarkable houses all week. This dramatically told story of a watchmaker, who has permitted himself to grow old without noting the rapid strides the world is taking away from the tenets of his forefathers, and who through his ignorance drives his daughter into a disgrace, is the best thing the Paycen Players have yet done for Fort Wayne.

A rousing farce comedy, with hilarity written into every line, is the offering for the coming week. It is "Hello Bill" and the boisterous title suggests the bubbling red blooded comedy that guarantees laughs at a rate higher than the birth rate of suckers. The story is built round a young bridegroom's endeavors to explain his arrest for a wild escape on the night of his farewell bachelor dinner. Of course he gets himself arrested and of course there is the inevitable "fixer," who's going to arrange everything and nobody be any the wiser. Believing that the court certainly will inflict a jail sentence, the "fixer" arranges to inform the bride-elect that her prince charming has been appointed an army colonel and ordered to his colors, figuring by this means to explain his absence while he is immured in jail. The court does not hang on the jail sentence and Bill is sent into exile in Jersey for three months. In the meantime the real colonel appears and then the complications start. Lie is piled on lie, and situations are feverishly explained away, while the audience rocks in laughter at the absurd predicaments in which Bill, the ragtime soldier, finds himself.

"Give us a big laugh," Paycen company addicts pleaded, and in offering them "Hello Bill" the management is doing that very thing.

AT THE NEW PALACE

A PROTEST TO PUBLIC.

Leo Frank's Case Presented to People in Wonder Picture at Palace.

"Did Leo M. Frank, after living a life of rectitude and honor, suddenly develop into a brute capable of a murder such as he stands convicted of, or was he railroaded to prison by a mob-controlled jury?" This question is answered in a picturized protest to the American people, arranged by George K. Rolands, whose contributions to the wonderful new world of the film drama stamp him as a producer of the highest class. The remarkable photo-biography of Frank will be projected at the New Palace today. The celebrated trial scene in which Frank was convicted of murder and sentenced to be hung, only to be saved from the gallows by the refusal of Governor Slaton to be responsible for this legalized murder.

Valli Valli in "The High Road."

The lovely Valli Valli in "The High Road" is the New Palace attraction for Monday. This beautiful young screen star is a general favorite not alone because of her remarkable personal beauty but also because of her charming ability as a pantomimist. "The High Road" served Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske as a vehicle for starring two seasons.

On Tuesday and Wednesday the picture triumph of the age, William Faversham, supported by Miss Jane Gray in "The Right of Way," will be at the New Palace. This is the first appearance of Mr. Faversham before the camera and in Sir Gilbert Parker's "Right of Way" America's foremost dramatic actor is afforded a vehicle of unusual power. There are 200 principals and several hundred extra people in the cast of this metropolitan production of this thrilling story of the north country.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

"SECRETARY OF FRIVOLOUS AFFAIRS."

"Romance of Elaine" and a Keystone Supplement at Jefferson.

"The Secretary of Frivolous Affairs," a four part Mutual masterpiece, adapted from May Futrelle's popular novel of that title, and starring the popular screen celebrities, Harold Lockwood and May Alison, is the stellar photodramatic attraction of today's program at the Jefferson. There is probably no romantic actor in the films more of a favorite with Jefferson audiences that Lockwood, and this thrilling society drama gives him unheard of opportunities to display his dramatic ability to the fullest, and to radiate those qualities of personal charm which make his screen presence such a wholly delightful one. May Alison is a recent recruit from legitimate ranks, where she gained an enviable reputation as an emotional actress. Miss Alison is also one of the most perfect types of blond beauty in the theatrical world.

No Saturday is complete without "The Romance of Elaine," and as this day is no exception, the golden-haired heroine of this remarkable serial-drama will again be seen pursuing her checkered career through two reels of film fraught with as many thrills as a hedgehog is blessed with quills. Pearl White, Lionel Barrymore and Creighton Hale are the trinity of stars who are gaining undying fame through their connection with this sensational play.

YOUNG GIRLS WHO FORM A MERRY HOUSE PARTY.

About as jolly a group of young girls as could be found in any "neck of the woods," are the visitors and hostesses whose pictures appear above. Miss Dorothy Heaton has relatives living in Coldwater, Mich., so naturally she visits there. Some of those friends have come to this city on different occasions, and met Miss Dorothy's friends. So three Fort Wayne girls put their heads together and decided to have a house party. These girls were besides Miss Heaton, Miss Hope Graeter and Miss Katherine Metzger. When they made out the list for visiting guests they included friends from other places besides Coldwater, and Miss Mary Meek, of Lima, O., and Miss Helen Schaab, of Auburn, were included in the list. Miss Schaab couldn't come. The Coldwater girls of the house party, are Harriet Lind, Katherine Keep, Rosamund Pollock. The other member of the house party is Miss June Harrod, of this city. There have been many luncheons and dinner parties given in honor of the visitors, and a large reception on Monday evening at the Metzger home.

The concluding feature is one of the customarily ludicrous Keystone comedies with Chester Conklin and Mark Swain, "Ambrose Dared Walrus." Tomorrow Mary Pickford will be seen in what is pronounced the greatest characterization of her amazing career, the role of "Rags," the unkempt little central figure in Margaret Delano's appealing play of that title.

MAYOR WILL LABOR UPON THE BUDGETS

Takes Yearly Estimates to Rome City for an Over Sunday Workout.

When Mayor W. J. Hosey went back to his summer home at Rome City Saturday morning he took with him the estimates for the 1916 municipal appropriations just completed by City Comptroller W. C. Baade, and he planned for an over-Sunday workout on the figures. He expects to reach some conclusions as to certain important proposals and be ready upon his return next week to state his views. The proposed cut of 3 cents from the long maintained levy of 10 cents for track elevation stands foremost in the mayor's concern, and he is not yet prepared to say that he approves lopping off almost one-third of the provision for the city portion of grade separation. He is not opposed to diminishing the levy, provided he can figure out that 7 cents will be ample for next year's demands. He is heartily in favor of cutting away entirely the 3-cent levy for the garbage plant fund, for the proposal to do that is his own. He believes there is already twice enough in the fund to do all there is any reason for doing in solution of the garbage problem. He will not oppose an appropriation of $15,000 for motorization of the equipment of No. 1 fire station, and he will stand for a boost of $5,000 or $6,000 in the new street intersection fund, provided the track elevation fund will not be made to suffer in material consequences.

The budget will go to the city council next Tuesday night, and it must be ready to submit by that time. Hence, the mayor is taking the estimates with him for careful consideration meanwhile.

WAR ON WEEDS HAS RESULTS.

Much Attention is Given to Warnings Served by Police.

The new weed ordinance is producing results as a survey of almost any of the outlying parts of the city will show. Police Lieutenant Harry Grimme has been busy during the past week serving notices on owners of property where the weed nuisance was neglected and in most cases the delinquents have payed attention. There has been a more general cutting of weeds than has been known for many years. The Nickel Plate railway has put men to work along its right of way in the city and has made a notable improvement. The police will continue to serve notices, and where no attention is paid in due time affidavits will be filed and prosecutions will be pressed. The past week has not been favorable to weed cutting because of the heavy rains.

GENERAL IMPROVEMENT NOTED.

The clean backyards campaign inaugurated by the health department this spring has had a salutary effect all over the city, according to observations by the sanitary inspectors of the department. They report that in every section of the city there is improvement of conditions in back yards, which are not only in general much cleaner than has been the rule heretofore, but hundreds of them have been beautified by flower beds. Hundreds of back yards that are not entered in the prize competition inaugurated by the board are clean and embellished.

APPEAL IS MADE FOR RELIEF OF BELGIANS

Car Load of Food Stuff is Wanted from Allen County.

An appeal was issued Saturday by a committee of eighteen well known citizens to secure from Allen county a carload of wheat and other foodstuffs for the Indiana ship to be forwarded to Belgium for the relief of the famine-stricken inhabitants of that country. Indiana is to send a ship, and it is expected that it will be ready to sail shortly after September 1. As the time is short the committee is desirous that immediate action be taken.

The committee is composed of Robert S. Taylor, chairman; Fred B. Shoaff, first vice-president; D. B. Ninde, second vice-president; H. B. Master, third vice-president; J. Ross McCulloch, treasurer; Samuel M. Foster, G. M. Leslie, E. G. Hoffman, William Ballou, H. W. Lang, Owen N. Heaton, Charles H. Worden, Abe Ackerman, Jesse Grice, John R. Hartzell, Mrs. Charles A. Dunkleberg, Mrs. Alice Knight and Mrs. Ben Levy.

Committee's Appeal.

The appeal of the committee is as follows:

"We, the members of a committee to secure from Allen county at least a carload of wheat and other foodstuffs for the Indiana ship whose cargo is to be distributed among the poverty stricken non-combatants of Belgium, appeal to the citizens of Allen county to bear their part in this worthy charity.

"This committee is acting under the Indiana committee, which in turn acts under the auspices of the International 'Commission for Relief in Belgium.' Thirty-eight states have already sent one or more shiploads of provisions.

"Indiana is now to fill a vessel which will leave New York sometime in September. Practically every county in the state has been organized, and has promised to send its quota of the cargo. We believe that Allen county will not be behind the others in generosity. We hope that each farmer will contribute at least one bushel of wheat, and that each citizen of Fort Wayne will give such donation as his or her ability justifies, to be used in the purchase of condensed milk and other foods.

"The International 'Commission for Relief in Belgium,' has, largely under American leadership, established a world-wide reputation for efficiency and economy in its charity. All transportation charges are paid from a fund supplied by the Rockefeller Foundation, so that every penny of money and every bushel of wheat reaches the needy in Belgium undiminished.

"This is charity, and is the essence of neutrality. The commission is recognized and assisted by the governments of Germany, France and England, and is absolutely non-partisan in its nature. The belligerent nations guarantee safe delivery of the foodstuffs."

The conditio nof Dr. G. A. Barry, of 1941 Fairfield avenue, who is a patient at the Lutheran hospital suffering from typhoid fever remains very critical. Attendants at the hospital state that he was a little worse Saturday. There seems to be little hope for his recovery.

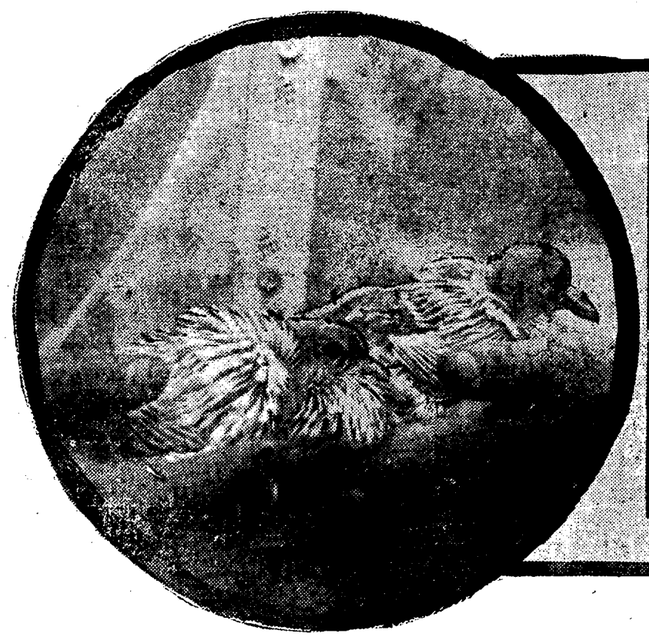
ROGERS

Fort Wayne Pigeon Ranch With Thousands of Birds in Small Down-Town Back Yard



In these, the days of efficiency experts, intensive farming and kitchenettes, it seems to be the plot and purpose of everyone to accomplish big things in small space. The railroads make long distances in small time, the city planners manage to get the most frontage out of an acre that an acre will permit itself to be squeezed for and window boxes fast are succeeding back yard gardens.

Fort Wayne has been pretty well to the front in this new plan of living, and every little while arises to announce some new plan proposed and carried out by its sons of efficiency. But here's the best yet.

At 119 West Jefferson street Mrs. Elza McKown and her son, Harry C. McKown, conduct a pigeon ranch in a small part of their small back yard. In a wired-in space, twelve by thirty, they conduct a pigeon farm that contains anywhere from five hundred to several thousand birds at a time, and they are making a right comfortable little business out of the squabs.

Down town, almost under the eaves of some of the city's largest buildings, a couple of hundred feet from its main thoroughfare, a pigeon ranch is being operated while thousands pass the place daily, chuck young men under the chin and say, "Young fellow, go west; there's room out there."

Room? Well, what if west is as roomy as a house in a want ad? A fellow doesn't need room to be a success. Following the same comparative values, if a pigeon ranch with 2,000 occupants occupies a space twelve by thirty, an efficient dairyman could set his herd out to pasture in his back yard or grow his crop of grain on the porch roof.

Back in the dim and almost forgotten days of the roller towel a pigeon ranch required not only acreage but mileage, and it was the sworn duty of the birds to spread out over as much territory as they dared to permeate.

But simply by wiring in four coops and runways to separate the sheep from the goats young McKown and his mother began what has become one of the largest flocks, herds or coveys (or is it schools?) of pigeons ever handed together under one roof in so small a space, and are proving that they can make the business pay in a small space as well as a large.

Supply Is Shut Off.

One of the varieties of pigeons comes from Belgium, and since the Germans closed and chained the front and back gates of the little country, the supply has run decidedly short here. Although McKown has been unable to get any from overseas for months, he still has hundreds of the birds and they are in excellent condition. In addition to his Belgian birds McKown also has hundreds of a California species.

Then, too, there are scores of carrier and homing pigeons in the coops, but not one bird in all the hundreds is a plain, court house dome variety.

In the little houses one day last week there were birds running from one day to several years old, birds ranging all the way from the bald-headed, newly-hatched to grave old grandfathers. In the above photographs are shown several of the smaller birds, one pair of them reposing in McKown's hand and the other occupying half of the side of a cigar box. The new pigeons are funny naked little fellows, with eyes, ears and bills the size of grown birds, for these portions of the anatomy of a young bird are practically the same size at hatching that they are when the bird is fully grown. The young ones first develop a fuzz like the upper lip of a seventeen-year-old desperado out to cultivate a mustache. The mothers are mighty careful of their young and treat them with all the care the human mother does. In fact, they go even further with the birds under feeding age than does any other bird of barn yard ancestry. The mother finds food, and not only moistens it in her bill, but sometimes swallows it and starts a digestive process before the young ever get it.

The pigeons are thoroughly interesting to watch at work and at play, and the miniature ranch not only affords financial gains, but a world of pleasure to the owners. The birds are kept under wire and so cannot bother the neighbors, and therefore are strictly "within the law."

In the above cuts in the top center is seen Mr. McKown and a Belgian and a California bird, the Belgian being the darker. To the left is a general view of the ranch, showing hundreds of the pigeons on the ground and on perches set up in the coops, and on the right-hand side Mr. McKown is seen with the coops in the background. In the lower center the white birds perched along in a row are California pigeons, while the little circular photographs are of squabs under a week old.

Go past the place some time if you want to see an interesting industry. The coops are in the rear of the Jefferson house, on the first alley way west of Calhoun, and once in the neighborhood all one needs do is stand still and the soft and gentle cooing of the birds will lead him to the place. And a trip of inspection is worth anyone's time, whether he be a lover of animals, a pigeon fancier or a mere efficiency expert after new ways and means of making something out of nothing or growing an acre crop on the parlor carpet.

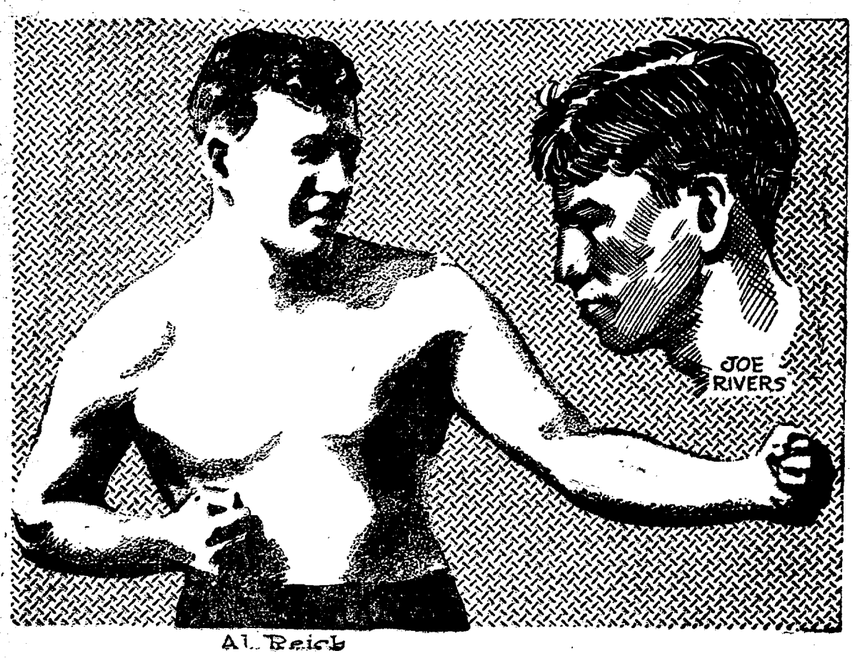
THE SENTINEL'S LIVE SPORTS CRISP RELIABLE

Reich and Rivers Show a Fighter Has to Be Born and Can't Be Made.



(BY BROWN HOLMES.)

The best and latest proof that fighters have to be born, not made, is offered in the cases of Al Reich, the eastern heavyweight, and Joe Rivers, the Mexican lightweight.

These two fellows have everything, with one exception, they ought to have to be champions. The one thing they haven't got is the fighting heart.

Picking fighters, in some respects, is a good deal like picking fighting dogs. Some animals have the fight born and bred in them. Others haven't an ounce of fighting spirit.

Reich, on physical fitness, is the only heivyweight who would have a real good chance with Champion Willard. He is a big, powerful fellow, fast, clever and can hit a good solid punch. But he lacks the aggressiveness and determination that a fighter has to have to get to the top. Reich is in the ring game because he is big and strong and in gym work showed cleverness. He was not born to fight.

Rivers, in physical requisites, has everything that would have made him a champion when he was in the featherweight class. He did work his way to a bout with Johnny Kilbane and was given a doubtful decision. When he met Kilbane the next time, Kilbane knocked him out.

Rivers is well built, can assimilate punishment, has a good defense and can hit. He is a little wonder when a bout is going in his favor. But when he meets reverses, he loses heart.

Freddy Welsh, the lightweight champion, has called Rivers a "front runner." He says Rivers is easy for him because he can take the fight out of him in a hurry by forcing him and jabbing him continually.

All the champions from bare knuckle days to the present time have been born fighters. Most of them had many uphill battles and many things discourage them, but kept grinding on. They had the "spirit."

Finish Work on Metropolitan Alleys

Although at no time during the summer months did the Metropolitan bowling alleys close up, nevertheless the entire interior of the building has been cleaned, re-painted and re-decorated. Four of the alleys have been rounded into shape and the other four will be put into condition in a week or ten days. Bowling ten pins will begin in two weeks. Five pins have been rolled all summer through and will be continued until cooler weather sets in.

WONDERFUL GAME BUT CUBS LOSE OUT

Eleven Inning Affair Full of Big League Stuff Friday Afternoon.

It took eleven innigs for Grand Rapids to grab off that game Friday, but they did pull it by taking a one-run lead that Fort Wayne couldn't overcome in the last half of that final period. Three hits off Osborne, who pitched remarkable ball, did the work in the eleventh, and it was absolutely no disgrace to lose a game of the kind the Fort Wayneites played Friday.

The affair was tied up nearly all the way through, the two teams running neck and neck through seven of the eleven frames. Both played marvelous ball, and it was a thriller.

Manager Bill Essig, of the Grand Rapids crowd, proved himself a gentleman of sensitive and humanitarian instincts in the sixth, when little Brubaker hobbled down to first on his broken ankle. The boy suffered agony yesterday from the bad leg and did not get around on it with any speed, although his game was a bird. So when Myers asked to be allowed to run some one else for Brubaker Essig merely shook his head and made the little fellow try it himself. His action could not but inspire admiration from the fans.

Fort Wayne made its first marker in the fourth, Brant hitting a good single and taking second when Mee flung full force to first while there was no one there to get the ball. Brant finished on second and Bratchi brought him home with a long single.

The first of the fifth the Sox got back with a run, and in the second half Fort Wayne made two. Osborne, Smyth and Brant got on hitting infield, and Osborne was forced out at the plate by Sheehan. Holderman hit a sacrifice fly to center and Smyth came home, while Brant tallied on Bratchi's single. In the next inning the Rapids crew got three. It was the eighth when Fort Wayne brought over the last and tying run made by the locals. Beyers, the best catcher in the Central by the way, came in at the right time with a nifty bingle and then stole second. Two outs followed, and when Red Smyth hit one in the eye over second Beyers came home.

Sheehan came within an inch of a home run when his fly landed on the top two by four of the left field fence, and then bounced back into the park. Osborne was right there, too, yesterday, and it was that same old "breaks of the game" stuff that figured in our loss. A pitcher who can smile with the bases loaded and often fan the heavy hitter in front of him is an asset to any club. Smyth got hit on the foot while he was batting but Umps Bull Green couldn't see it and called him out, thinking the ball had hit the bat. Green, however, isn't the worst umpire in the league at that, although he isn't the most popular among the players. A game with Green or Bo Slear holding down the indicator isn't as dangerous to the digestion as one with Daley, for instance, at the helm. The score:

GO TO BED EARLY, TIP OF GIRL WHO IS GOLF CHAMPION AT 18.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 7.—One of the contestants in the woman's national golf championship tournament at Lake Forest, Ill., beginning Sept. 6, will be an 18-year-old girl, Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta.

Miss Stirling, despite her youth, qualified among eight of the best women golfers in a tournament at Newport, then won the championship of the Woman's Southern Golf association over about 100 competitors in a tournament at Birmingham, Ala.

The girl champion attributes her success to good physical condition. She has wrists of iron, almost, a clear eye and the surest stroke in the south. She says she has barred chocolates, sodas and late hours. Although she is a favorite in society circles and invited to many affairs, nine o'clock is her bedtime. Her diet consists of plain food at all times. During a tournament she bars almost everything except liquids.

She says other girls can be strong, even if they do not play golf, if they will be careful of their food and get lots of sleep.

Miss Stirling comes from a family that loves the big outdoors. Her father, Dr. A. W. Stirling, one of the south's greatest eye, ear, nose and throat specialists, is a golfer and one of her younger sisters is the champion girl swimmer of Atlanta.

Seven years ago Miss Stirling began to follow her father over the golf course. She was just big enough to handle his sticks. Bit by bit she picked up the game. She learned by closely watching professionals and her own playing.

Sound living, high thinking and ideal parentage have combined to make the young champion a splendid example of the dreamed-of typical American girl, being a champion at 18 has not spoiled her. It has not even made her conceited. She has her heart set on the national title, but will not say she expects to win. She simply says she realizes the ability of others who will enter and that she will do her best.

GIRL CHAMPION'S RULE FOR GOLF

Play your own game, each stroke as it comes.

Keep your head, go easy and don't worry too much about what the other players are doing.

When preparing for an important match, conserve your energy. Retire early and don't play more than 18 holes a day.

Don't visit the scene of the match more than three days in advance. If you don't know where the difficulties lie, you are not always expecting trouble.

Eat plain foods.

WHEN CHAMPIONS MEET.

Duke Kahanamoku and Frances Cowgill, two of America's greatest swimmers. The Duke was the hero of the last Olympiad and is the holder of several world's records, while Miss Cowgill holds four American records. The picture was snapped at the World's Fair in San Francisco shortly after the exposition swimming meet, at which Miss Cowgill was the undefeated champion among the women. This is an unusual picture of the swimmers as it shows them in their private dress.

SYNOPSIS.

After the tragic death of John Amesbury, his prostrated wife, one of America's greatest beauties, dies. At her death Professor Stilliter, an agent of the interests, kidnaps her beautiful three-year-old baby girl and brings her up in a paradise where she sees no man, but thinks she is taught by angels, who instruct her for her mission to reform the world. At the age of eighteen she is suddenly thrust into the world, where agents of the interests are ready to pretend to find her. Fifteen years later, while in the Adirondacks, Tommy is the first to meet Celestia as she comes from her paradise; neither recognizes the other. Tommy rescues Celestia from Stilliter. They hide in the mountains. Later Stilliter gets Celestia back, and taking her to New York places her in Belleview hospital, where her sanity is proved. Returning to get her, he finds she has left with Tommy, who loses her in New York, but finds her next day living with the Douglas family. He follows Celestia to a factory, where she addresses the workers. A fire breaks out and Tommy saves her. Celestia attends a fashionable ball at Barclay's home. She at once becomes the center of attraction. Society accepts her message in a manner that greatly pleases the Triumvirate. She is sent to the mines to settle a strike; there she saves Tommy from being lynched. The miners have planned an attack upon the stockade. Kehr having hoped for this is well prepared. That night Celestia visits the stockade and speaks to Kehr's men, causing them to turn against him. Kehr has her locked up in the morning, but with Tommy's help she escapes and speaks to the miners. During one of these addresses Mary Blackstone, who is in love with Tommy, arrives in the mining town, and after displaying a string of valuable pearls to Mrs. Gunsdorf, solicits her aid in a plot to put an untimely end to Celestia. Stilliter, jealous, begins to use his hypnotic power over Celestia treacherously.

INSTALLMENT 12

CHAPTER XXII.

And at that moment there was a sound of footsteps just outside the tent. The feet which made the sound belonged to Freddie the Ferret. With his usual good luck he appeared to have arrived in the very nick of time. Professor Stilliter was not at that time to receive the kiss for which his greedy mouth was waiting.

"Wake up!" he said in a disgusted voice.

Celestia put her hands to her eyes, woke, and couldn't remember just what had been said.

"I think I'm too tired to talk," she said.

"So I see," said Stilliter, as Freddie entered the tent. "Better rest, then."

And the psychologist withdrew, quite sane again and rather badly frightened. An open-flapped tent was certainly no place for making love by violence; yet for a moment the cautious man had lost all thought of self-control and all fear of consequences.

It was on the afternoon of the next day that Barclay, Sturtevant and Semmes came to Bitumen with a whole trainload of capitalists, and biddable men expert in politics. The entire town—almost the entire township was at the station to meet them. Swaying and tottering above the heads of the crowd were all sorts of banners and transparencies, variously inscribed and emblazoned.

Vote for the New Constitution.
Kehr for Senator.
Every Citizen a Stockholder.
Dividends Instead of Taxes.

From the station to the stockade, now wide open, and shorn of its warlike barbarities, the crowd marched. When the head of the procession came near the tents of Celestia, set back from the road on a little knoll, it halted, and every man bared his head and began to shout her name. The shouting brought her presently to the door of the main tent—a slender, girlish figure all in white, who waved to her followers and adorers a white and slender hand.

Even at that distance her effect upon them was magical. Throats grew hoarse with shouting. Then she blotted from their sight into the big tent, after one last wave of the hand. And they, because they knew that she would come to them later in the stockade and speak to them and fill their hearts full of hope and courage, allowed her now to withdraw from their sight, and, after one more minute of shouting they took up the march once more, and went roaring toward the stockade—late strikers, late strikebreakers, capitalists, politicians, men, women and children, all wild now, with excitement and enthusiasm—the two most contagious diseases in the world.

Celestia stood meanwhile in the center of the big tent; and she too was trembling with excitement and enthusiasm and the sense of personal triumph. And she looked so young and innocent, and beautiful, that for a moment the frown faded from Tommy Barclay's forehead, and the ache from his heart.

"Oh, Tommy," said Celestia, "you won't spoil it all now, will you? You'll be somewhere in the crowd where I can see your face, when I stand up to speak, won't you?"

"It goes to my heart," said Tommy, "to see how happy their love makes you. But I can't go to the stockade to be a face in the crowd. I'm afraid things might go to my head."

"I was so happy," said Celestia, "and now I'm not so happy."

"More people are in such a state of mind," said Tommy, "that if you said the word they would march on Washington and try to pull the president out of the White House. I've hoped against hope. I've seen your power, known that you had it, and hoped that you didn't really have it. You made a little mark on the great city of New York, you will go back on the wave of your triumph here and sweep it off its feet, as you have swept Bitumen. If you go to the stockade and show yourself once more to those crazy people and speak to them you will start a campaign of revolution that will sweep a sufficiently sane country off its feet. I see you floating from city to city and from village to village in your special train, winning all hearts, persuading all minds, and spreading, as I think, upon my honor, the seeds of national disaster. In the name of all that is most sacred to you, Celestia, stop while there is still time. Speak to those people if you must, but tell them that you have been deceived, that you are the plaything of capital, and that they have been deceived; wash your hands of politics and sophistries; step down; resign. In the image of all that is noble and fine, you have created a monster. Don't breathe the final breath of life into that monster and bring it to life—a Frankenstein that even you can never hope to control once it gets on its feet, and begins to think murderous thoughts. If you go to the meeting in the stockade you will bring this monster to life. Have you no fear of the consequences?"

She shook her head primly, but with a little sadness.

"Celestia," he said, "back of these tents the woods run to the hills, the hills to the mountains. Will you come?"

For a moment it appeared that she hesitated. Then she drew a deep breath and stiffened her spine.

"I believe," she said gently, "that God sent me to do what I have done and what I am going to do."

"I know that you believe that," said Tommy. "If I didn't know that you believed, I shouldn't let you go to the stockade."

"You couldn't hold me forever."

He drew the back of his hand across his eyes, as if to shut out some horrible scene.

"No," he said, "I couldn't hold you forever. They would come and take you away from me. I should have—you would have to be so that you couldn't speak to them—any more."

She came close to him and lifted her hands to his shoulders, and looked up into his eyes, a pitiful little figure, shrinking and frightened.

"You couldn't have the heart, Tommy—not me—no matter how wicked you thought I was."

"I couldn't," said Tommy, "thinking that you are a misguided angel of light. No, I couldn't. . . . Well, dear, God knows I wish I had your eloquence and power upon hearts. You won't find everybody on your side. You'll find many abler men than I talking and writing against you, and trying to save this country from madness. I—oh, I love you so that I feel as if my heart was breaking. And to think that I can't even wish you good luck."

"There's the motor for me now," said Celestia. "I know you can't wish me luck, but you could kiss me if you wanted to."

Those who had heard her speak before often said that she had never spoken so well as on that day at the stockade, with the exception of just the first few moments, when she seemed to be a little dazed and nervous. When she had finished and stood there swaying like a lily, and flushed with a sense of nobility of power and triumph, pandemonium broke loose.

Out of that pandemonium that began with cries of "Celestia—Celestia," another name gradually took form and substance—"Barclay—Barclay," they bellowed, at first in a kind of syncopated roar, then in unison, and finally with a rhythm that drove men half wild with the desire to be in time with it, and that actually made some of the buildings in the enclosure sway.

"Barclay—Barclay—we want Barclay; Barclay for president—Barclay—Barclay."

Thus the boom was launched. Barclay rose from his place on the platform, walked straight up to Celestia, took her right hand in his and lifted it to his lips. Then he turned, standing on her right hand and faced the shouting and the tumult. There was no smile of triumph in his face, only a look of grim, bulldog determination and probity.

After a long time they let him speak. And after he had spoken they went wild again.

"I will do what a man may," he said, in a voice that carried to the most remote pair of ears, "to make the wishes that you do me the honor of wishing, come true. If I am elected president, I will make these United States into a fit habitation for men and women and little children. So help me God!"

A little later Barclay's secretary stole away to the telegraph station and sent a message. An hour later the inhabitants of Bitumen, dispersed now, and for the most part drunk, were electrified by the spectacle of a snow-white train of cars that pulled slowly into the station, and was then backed on to a siding.

Celestia transferred her few belongings from her tent to the rear car of this train. The car ahead was for Stilliter and certain other managers and advisers. The next car was the office car. The one ahead of that was for a chosen body of select, able and pampered correspondents.

The snow-white train pulled out of Bitumen and the whirlwind campaign began.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Other trains were making whirlwind tours of these United States. Not every capitalist was on the side of capital. A badly frightened and very able man in the White House was fighting for his political life. Into the arena there came at last a dribbling of genuine patriots, who, like their forefathers, were ready to give for their country their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor.

It wasn't all smooth sailing, by any means. Still no new movement had ever made such progress in so short a time, and the end was not in sight, nor the beginning of the end.

A man gaining in strength from day to day, among those who stood for the old order of things, and opposed Celestia, was Tommy Barclay. He had a great fervid quality of honesty which no one could doubt, and he had a look on his face, very lean now from short nights, hard work, and the constant buffetings of trains, of a young hero who has set himself to do to death a dragon that is ravaging a countryside. With experience and practice had come quick initiative in emergencies, ease, and the better control of a naturally fine and far-carrying voice.

His triumphs were many. His downfalls came when he crossed Celestia's path too closely. If she was speaking by chance in the same town at the same time, he would have no more of an audience than he could have counted on the fingers of his hands. If he followed her too closely he spoke to deaf and unsympathetic ears.

"The crime of the ages," said one rough miner, who was suffering from too much heart, too much whisky and too little mind, "you great big, whistlin', thunderin' boob, did you ever set eyes on the lady?"

And Tommy to his horror had failed to find an answer to that question anywhere in his head, and had stammered and become tongue-tied, and been bored, and had done harm to a cause, which, so fanatical he had become, at this time, seemed to mean life and death to him.

In exalted moments he felt that he had crushed the love of Celestia out of his heart.

Once, in a little northern town, standing on an improvised rostrum of packing cases, and in the midst of addressing a large crowd of quiet, sensible people, who appeared to like him, and to like what he said, it was Tommy's bad fortune to have Celestia arrive from her snow-white car and steal his audience away from him. His "sea of upturned faces" became a pool, with more than half the faces turned away to try and see what all the excitement was about further down the street, and everybody getting more and more restless and inattentive. A sudden tremendous cheering took the rest of Tommy's audience away from him on the run, with the exception of one young woman, who wore a thick brown veil and was half concealed by the stem of an elm.

For a moment or two Tommy did not see her. His eyes were on the backs and twinkling legs of his fast disappearing audience, and there was a smile on his face, half rueful resignation and half amusement. He did not notice the woman until she called attention to herself by speaking.

"Don't stop," she said; "they haven't all gone. It isn't fair to me. I've come a long way to hear you."

With an exclamation of pleasure Tommy leaped down from his rostrum and ran to greet her. "Why, Mary Blackstone," he exclaimed, "what the dickens are you doing way down here?"

"I told you I came to hear you speak. You are getting to be rather famous, you know, and I thought it was my duty—her eyes sparkled under the veil—to hear you at least once."

"Well," said Tommy, smiling back, "you missed all the good parts."

They turned and walked aoward the little city park.

"What are you really doing in this far away place, Mary? You didn't do all that traveling just to hear me talk through my hat, did you?"

"No, I didn't, really; and you didn't really talk through your hat. I came as a matter of fact to tell you something I think you ought to know."

They reached the little park, chose a bench, and sat down.

"You'll promise not to let anyone know you got the story from me."

"I'll promise that, of course."

"Of course," said Mary, "if Mr. Barclay is the next president it will be a great thing for his friends, among whom he has told me so many times to include myself that I have ended by believing him. It would be a great thing for me."

"It would be a sorry thing for the country."

"I'm not so sure of that. He doesn't think so."

"I credit him with the utmost sincerity, but with absolute lack of political vision. If they pass the new constitution, and my father once gets in the saddle, only death will get him out. His successor would be a man of his own choice, and we should have ceased to be a free people."

"We should have begun to be an efficient people."

"It is better to be free."

"That is a matter of opinion, and anyway it's neither here nor there at the moment. If he is elected it will be a great thing for me, won't it?"

"You would have more position and power."

"Well, I'm willing to forego that. I'm willing, if you like, to say that it is better to be free than efficient; better to be poor voluntarily and unwashed, than rich and clean by force. There, I admit all that. What do you think of the political prospects?"

"I think," said Tommy, solemnly, "that the election depends on Celestia. If she can reach enough people before she breaks down from overwork, she will elect her president and her congress. I've seen this over and over. We send our best men to a place, they make a good impression, show the people the fallacies in Celestia's gospel of prosperity and happiness, and then, having laid a good foundation of sanity and honesty, along comes Celestia and sweeps the place off its feet, and in twenty minutes undoes the work of a dozen good men."

"But people don't really swallow her assertion that she was sent from heaven for the especial purpose of running a political campaign?"

"Many swallow it. She does herself, you know. And hers is no political campaign, it's revolution."

"If her faith in herself could be shattered?"

"How could it? The best detectives in the world have been working on her origin. No clue leads anywhere. If she doesn't come from heaven, where does she come from?"

"She comes," said Mary, "out of the heart of a gigantic conspiracy."

"She is no conspirator."

"Unconsciously only. Tommy, where the detectives have failed, I haven't. I know all about Celestia—who she was, where she went to, where she comes from, and where she's going!"

"Going?" exclaimed Tommy, in such a voice that a pang of jealousy shot through Miss Blackstone's heart.

"Many ignorant people," said she, "actually believe that Celestia is divine and descended from heaven. As her beauty fades and her voice loses its power, if, in some way she should show herself human—marry—have a child—the belief of those people would turn into disbelief. But, if having seated the new government firmly, she should vanish in the heyday of her beauty, innocence and power—vanish as mysteriously as she appeared—more than half the nation will end by believing that she was truly the Daughter of God. Believe me, Tommy, the powers that produced her at the right time aren't going to let her grow old and wrinkled. She will go back to heaven. And a nation will believe that the government she gave it was derived from God and must be right."

"Do you mean they would murder her?"

"As calmly as you would murder a mosquito."

"This is frightful!" exclaimed Tommy, jumping to his feet.

"I haven't told you who she is."

"True. You haven't."

He sat down again.

"Profesor Stilliter," said Mary, "selected her as a perfect specimen of childhood. She was kidnaped and brought up in a great underground system of caverns somewhere in the Adirondacks."

"But she would remember."

"No other child has ever been brought up as she was. From the moment they kidnaped her she was kept in a state of hypnosis. She was taught by hypnotic suggestion. The caves in which she was brought up seemed vast to her as space itself. Bright angels apeared to come and go. Through the caves is the only access to a certain mountain top. There she could exercise in the fresh air unseen by anyone. Her physical life was just as real as yours or mine; her mental life was nothing but dreams, hallucinations and imaginings. Stilliter was her teacher, and one other man."

"What man?" asked Tommy.

"His name doesn't matter. Just before it was time to bring her to earth, he—well, they caught him trying to make her kiss him, and ever since then he's been—dead.

"Her memory tells her of no physical ills or wants, only of a wonderful memable mumbojumbo serene state of happiness and holiness. There was a voice—to which all bowed down in worship. That voice told her at last that she must descend to earth and do as she—has done."

"What an extraordinary story!" exclaimed Tommy, "but incredible."

"No," said Mary, "not in the least extraordinary, if you like; but not incredible. You don't know Stilliter. Her name before they took her to heaven and named her Celestia was plain—Amesbury."

At that name a host of old and poignant recollections flooded Tommy's mind. For the second time he sprang to his feet.

"My God," he cried, "my little Amesbury girl. Of course she is. A hundred times I've been on the verge of that knowledge—and yet because it was impossible that she should be—the definite knowledge never really came to me. For heaven's sake!"

"Now do you believe me?" asked Mary, coldly.

"I must Mary. But how did you find this out?"

"It doesn't matter. I wormed it out of somebody. Now what will you do?"

"I'll go down to Celestia and tell her about herself, and shake her faith in herself."

"You'll need proofs."

"You think so? I'm not sure. Are there any?"

"I can't produce any. But—"

"But what?"

"Well, it might be a good thing if you could locate the cave. That's the only thing I can think of offhand."

Tommy fell into a brown study. Then he said:

"Mary, what is your motive in telling me all this?"

"Perhaps I don't want Mr. Barclay elected. Perhaps I dislike Celestia so much that I want her to be humbled even at my own expense. The motive doesn't matter."

Mary's real motive in making the foregoing revelation to Tommy was not entirely clear even to herself. Above all things she wanted to be rid of Celestia. The promise of a fortune in pearls to the person who brought her definite word of Celestia's definite elimination from mundane affairs had not borne fruit. Now Mary thought that a collapse of Celestia's power over men, through a shaking of her faith in herself, might produce definite results. Celestia, on learning that she was not a divine being but a faker, would become not only valueless to the archconspirators, but a stern and awful menace to their plans. They would succeed swiftly and without mercy where Mrs. Gunsdorf had failed.

It wasn't for want of trying that Mrs. Gunsdorf had failed. It wasn't because her spirit was weak or her arm nerveless, nor because the knife which she carried in her stocking wasn't long enough and sharp enough for her purpose. Advantageous opportunities for doing the murder and escaping undetected were rare. She had had but one, for Celestia was so surrounded and guarded as a rule that she was hard to come at. Mrs. Gunsdorf had only had one good chance. She had only failed then because she had been so foolish as to look Celestia in the eyes, and the power to do the wicked deed had been stricken from her.

She didn't have money enough to track Celestia all over the country. (Mary should have provided for this.) But she had done her best.

Now another excellent opportunity seemed to offer.

So Tense Were Mrs. Gunsdorf's Muscles That the Handle of the Knife Was Wet In Her Hand.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Celestia's snow-white train, practically deserted, occupied the siding. It would be taken off at midnight, and run slowly so as to arrive not too early in the chief city of the North woods.

Mrs. Gunsdorf chose a moment when no one seemed to be looking, and boarded Celestia's own car at the observation end. She knew the room in which Celestia slept, and entered it. There was a three-quarter bed in white enamel, a bureau ditto, an arm chair, and a door ajar, that disclosed the bath room. The little suite fairly dazzled with its cleanness and its whiteness. If there is anything in contrast, it was a wonderful setting for a bloody crime.

The room offered only one hiding place. Mrs. Gunsdorf knelt, flattened herself to the floor and crawled under the bed.

As always, an orating crowd followed Celestia to her car, or, as on the present occasion, surrounded her to it. Beside Professor Stilliter, she walked among them, talking with gentle persuasion to those nearest her. When she mounted the steps of her car they cheered her to the echo. She had to show herself several times and make little speeches before they finally dispersed and went about their business.

Tommy Barclay alone remained. He mounted the steps of the car and knocked on the glass of the door. Professor Stilliter opened it.

"Could I see Celestia a minute?"

"I'm afraid not. She's dead tired."

But Celestia had heard Tommy's voice and came out of her stateroom, where she had gone to lie down.

"I'm not too tired," she called, "and I'd like to see him."

"But only for a minute," cautioned Professor Stilliter, and then, with seeming reluctance, he withdrew and closed behind the door of the passage that led past the staterooms to the dining-room end of the car. But the professor went no farther. Having closed the door, he applied his ear to a hole that he had bored in it for just such occasions as this, and listened.

"I'm sorry," Celestia was saying, "that I had to steal your audience away from you. It would have been more sportsmanlike to let you finish speaking and then to have tried to steal their hearts and minds away from you. Wouldn't it?"

"Yes," said Tommy, slowly, "I think it would, Miss—Amesbury."

Behind his door Professor Stilliter started as if someone had stuck a knife in him.

"Why Miss Amesbury?" asked Celestia.

"Because it's your real name. I knew you when you were a baby. We were great friends. Then you went away. My father said you had gone to heaven—so you had, but only to a place that you were taught to believe was heaven. Then you came to earth—and I've recognized you. I wonder I didn't before. But I do now. There's no mistake possible."

"What utter nonsense are you up to now?"

"Sometimes little girls wear socks and chubby brown legs. The little Amesbury girl had a little round mole just under her left knee."

"So have I," said Celestia, "what of it?"

"Why this man Stilliter," said Tommy, "who kidnaped you when you were a kiddie, has taught you to think, by mental suggestion, that you are what you think you are, instead of just a lovely girl of flesh and blood like the rest of us."

She shook her head and murmured something about "nonsense," but there was something so earnest and convincing in the young man's voice and manner that what he said could not but shock and distract her.

"I'm sure you believe this, Tommy; but it's quite out of the question. I remember my heavenly home as if I had left it yesterday."

"You remember a mental condition, not a physical reality."

There was a short pause. Then, "What you've said ought not to bother me at all," said Celestia. "I don't know why you say it, or why you think it's true, but please don't argue with me about it now. I'm so tired that I'd almost like to believe it myself."

Professor Stilliter pricked up his ears at that, for he knew very well wanting to believe a thing lives next door to believing it. If Celestia could be made to believe what Tommy had told her, her influence would be at an end. She would have to be got rid of. The professor trembled. The triumvirate would be for putting her underground. So would he; but he would be for putting her, not in the grave, but back in those vast caverns whence she came, and where he, who had power over her, could visit her at his convenience.

He wanted the woman more than the triumph of that cause in whose interest he had trained her so painstakingly for so many years.

Let her believe. He might be willing to help convince her. He wasn't sure.

"If," said Tommy, "I can show you their cave—if I can find it—then would you believe?"

"I don't know," said Celestia. "I'm so tired. Please don't talk to me about it now." Then she smiled at him and said: "It's a wonderful invention, though. Find the cave first and then talk to me."

"Celestia—don't you want to believe?"

Then Professor Stilliter heard a sound that almost made him foam at the mouth. "She does want to believe," he thought, "and the will and her usefulness will be at an end, and she will belong to me. Why not anticipate a little?"

He stood trembling. He heard Celestia enter her stateroom and lie down with a sigh of weariness. He listened for a long time. The sound of her breathing told him she had not yet gone to sleep. And anyway it was not in his mind to disturb her now. That would be for later, when the train was in motion and the lights out.

So at last he walked stealthily off to his own car and called for a big glass of brandy and soda.

Meanwhile Celestia lay on her bed, her hands folded on her breast, and her mind reviewing and reviewing the statements that Tommy had made.

And under the bed, trembling with hatred and excitement, lay Mrs. Gunsdorf, waiting for that time when Celestia's regular breathing should tell her that the defenseless object of her hatred was sound asleep.

So tense were Mrs. Gunsdorf's muscles that the handle of the stabbing knife which she had drawn from her stocking was wet in her hand.

AUTO CRASHES INTO POND LILY TRAIN

Five Occupants Thrown Out at Kendallville; None Badly Hurt.

When he lost control of the machine, an automobile driven by G. M. Patterson dashed into the rear car of the G. R. & I. cottagers' train, the "Pond Lily," as it was passing through Kendallville at 6:20 o'clock Friday evening. In the automobile with Mr. Patterson, were his wife and their three children, and the compact threw all out of the machine, but fortunately none was injured. The auto struck the rear step of the last car, breaking it, crushing the front of the auto and breaking one of the front wheels and the mud guard. Mr. Patterson was driving east, and was going at possibly fifteen or eighteen miles an hour when he struck the train. He is the purchasing agent for the Fort Wayne and Northwestern Traction company.

THROUGH MERCHANDISE CARS.

Pennsylvania Inaugurates a Line to Western Points.

Hereafter when an eastern shipper has a small package of freight to go to any of the more important cities in the northwest, in the Missouri river territory or in the southwest, he will be able to send it in a car that will go straight through to destination without the package being transferred to any other car.

The Pennsylvania railroad has inaugurated a practice of sending through cars of merchandise freight by its Star Union line daily from New York to far western points, regardless of the quantity of freight offered for shipment.

Heretofore small consignments of merchandise from New York to far western points have been transferred at various junction points en route, thereby causing delay. The inauguration of the improved service by the Pennsylvania means that hereafter merchants will be assured of a quicker and safer transportation service than they have hitherto enjoyed.

BOWSER PARTY NUMBERED 1,256.

Went to Winona on Two Eleven-Car Trains Saturday.

A telephone message from President S. F. Bowser soon after the two trains carrying the employes of S. F. Bowser and company to Winona reached that place, conveyed the information that there were just 1,256 people in the party. Mr. Bowser also said that the trip was made without any accident or unpleasant incidents, and that the weather and grounds were ideal for an outing. "Everybody is happy and enjoying the outing," said Mr. Bowser. The first train left Fort Wayne at 8 o'clock, and was followed a half-hour later by the second train. The crews were as follows: First train—Conductor T. E. McCarthy, Brakeman F. E. Breading, Flagman A. M. Worman, Engineer John Gebert and Fireman D. McDaniel; second train—Conductor U. G. Dragoo, Brakeman Hugh Edwards, Flagman H. L. Shaffer, Engineer Daniel Bolyard and Fireman C. Stahlhut.

NEW TRAIN ON PENNSY.

Will Put Another Flyer in Service August 15.

On Sunday, August 15, the Pennsylvania will put a passenger train in service to take the place of equipment train 54, which will be scheduled to cover the 280 miles between Chicago and Crestline in six hours and fifteen minutes, nearly as fast as the Broadway limited passes over the line. The new train will be known as the "Steel City Express" and it will show up on the time card as No. 36. It will consist of a combination car, a steel coach, one Pullman and six express cars and will make only two stops between Chicago and Crestline—Fort Wayne and Lima. It will leave Chicago at 11:45 p. m., reach Fort Wayne at 3:05 a. m. and Crestline at 6 a. m. On the same date there may be a few other changes in the time card, but they will affect only Chicago suburban trains, which will be speeded up a little.

W. C. DOWNING COMING.

New General Superintendent Will Visit Fort Wayne.

Next Wednesday W. C. Downing, general superintendent of the Pennsylvania Northwest System, will spend several hours in Fort Wayne, coming early in the morning and remaining until noon. This will be Mr. Downing's first visit to the city in the capacity of general superintendent, and the trip is probably designed to give opportunity for him to meet and become acquainted with the local officials and others with whom he is associated in railway work. He will be accompanied over the division by Superintendent Otto Schroll and some of the members of Mr. Schroll's staff, and by Motive Power Superintendent T. W. Demarest.

W. & L. E. NEEDS CARS.

Receiver Asks Permission to Invest $2,000,000 in Them.

Last Wednesday Receiver Duncan, of the Wheeling and Lake Erie, filed an application in the federal court at Cleveland for permission to sell $2,000,000 worth of receiver's certificates. He proposes to spend the money for equipment, placing an order at once for 1,700 modern freight cars. The business of the company cannot be handled with a less number of cars, the receiver says. The Wheeling and Lake Erie was once a Wabash line.

RUNNING OVER OWN TRACKS.

Nickel Plate Completes Repairs at Erie, Pa.

Westbound passenger train No. 5, on the Nickel Plate, the first to pass over the scene of the big washout at Erie, Pa., on the company's tracks, passed through Fort Wayne this morning. The carpenters and bridge builders who were called to the scene the morning of the washout and all the equipment used in the repair work, came home this morning. The repairs of track at the scene of the washout have been practically completed, only a few details remaining to be attended to.

SURPRISED W. F. MENNEWISCH.

Yesterday being the thirtieth anniversary of the birth of W. F. Mennewisch, clerk in the Pennsylvania store room, Mrs. Mennewisch got up a surprise on her husband, which proved a most enjoyable affair. The evening was spent in playing cards, listening to music and eating the good things Mrs. Mennewisch prepared for the guests. Several appropriate presents were given the host as memetos of the day. Those who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Roembke, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Peeks, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hartman, Dick Heidrick, Miss Amelia Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roesener, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Roembke, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Beneke, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davis, the latter of Long Beach, Cal.

TWO MEN SIMILARLY AFFICTED.

Two employes at the Pennsylvania round house are off duty on account of injuries that are very similar. Last week F. R. Hilgerman, machinist, working at nights, slightly scratched one of his hands. He did not give the wound any attention, considering it a trifling matter, and today the hand is swollen to abnormal size and is very painful. The wound became infected. The other unfortunate is a boiler washer named Adam Lojek. He had one of his fingers scratched on the nozzle of the hose a week ago and did not stop to tie up the digit. Today it is very sore, the wound having become infected. Both men are off duty.

BUILDING IRON SHEDS.

The American Road Machine company has a frame shed nearly completed on the site of the burned portion of the shops. The building has been enclosed and is now receiving the racks for holding the iron that will be stored in it. The iron shed was formerly on the west side of the factory, but was moved to the east side because it is nearer the machine and blacksmith shop, which use it.

MRS. VITNER WILL RECOVER.

Mrs. Lewis Vitner, of Valparaiso, who threw herself out of a car of Pennsylvania train No. 8 near Pittsburgh Wednesday morning, will recover. The husband took the three children who were with their mother to her sister in New York, where they will be cared for until the mother recovers. Vitner is a barber at the Northern Indiana university at Valparaiso.

SIDNEY CRAIG GOES HOME.

Yesterday Engineer Sidney Craig, who was badly scalded in the wreck of Pennsylvania train No. 42, when it struck an automobile at Wanatah, July 15, left the St. Joseph hospital, and is now at home. Leonard Wood, another victim of that accident, is still at the hospital and may not be able to go home for several days. He is improving, however.

CHRISTMAS GIFT IS MAYDAY LEMON

Ellen Smith Weds at Yuletide and Breaks Away in Four Months.

It was on Christmas day, 1913, that the climax and culmination of joyous yuletide season was reached for Mrs. Ellen Smith, when she was borne from the hymeneal shrine the happy bride of Sidney Smith—who has not made much of his famous name, evidently. Four months later, on the glad Mayday, when the green grass was growing all around, the beautiful flowers were spreading a wealth of vernal bloom o'er hill and in dale and myriads of feathered warblers were tuning up to nature's grand sweet song, Ellen and Sidney drifted apart. The holy gift of love that had blossomed on December 25 had ripened into an acrid lemon the 1st of May. So it is that Ellen has brought suit in the superior court for divorce. She says he was guilty of cruel and inhuman treatment—nagged her, was quarrelsome, failed to provide her with a home and made her earn her own living. Wherefore, she demands an absolute divorce and all other proper relief.

A Year Less a Day.

Rose Berry says that she hooked up with William Berry on the 2nd day of June, 1912. That there never was the celebration of the leather anniversary of that connubial event is indicated in her divorce complaint, just filed in the superior court, for she says that on the 1st of June the following year William up and deserted her without cause. It probably didn't hurt much, because she recites in her complaint that he had never given her a home, had provided her with no support and had forced her to go out and make her own livelihood.

THINK ESTIMATE IS TOO LOW.

While many contractors have been examining the plans for the Fourth street bridge, over Spy Run, for construction of which the board of commissioners will receive proposals at 10 o'clock Monday morning, most of them complain that the appropriation of $7,000 for the structure is too little. Notwithstanding this, the commissioners expect a good number of bids for the work. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the board of works will receive bids for the construction of a concrete dam across the same stream a few hundred feet north of the bridge. Most of the contractors who bid for the bridge are expected to bid for the dam.

LICENSED TO WED.

Adala Albert Etter, railway clerk, 22, and Lora Lavinia Whittern, 24.

George Maioly, fruit merchant, 22, and Rosa Bashara, 21.

Max W. Kirbach, manufacturer, 38, and Ada M. Liebrenz, 28.

Clarence W. Potts, machine helper, 22, and Ruth E. Siebold, 18.

NOTES OF THE COURTS.

The J. I. Case Threshing Machine company has begun action in the superior court against Simon Gibson and others to foreclose a chattel mortgage demanding $350.

The juvenile court convened at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon with a big grist of cases confronting Judge Eggeman. Most of them were delinquent boys.

The divorce suit of Edith Smethers vs. Thomas J. Smethers, has been dismissed from the superior court.

In the superior court Judge Yaple has granted a divorce to Enos Lord from Ida Lord, but has given the custody of several minor children to the mother.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

This morning temperatures are practically normal in the various sections of the country. Since yesterday morning temperatures have risen slightly on the north Pacific coast and quite generally in the central valleys, but in the northern and central Rocky mountain region the weather is slightly cooler. In connection with low pressure over the lake region, and thence southwestward to Arizona, local showers have occurred over the lakes and New England, and locally on the middle eastern slope and central Rocky mountain district. High pressure over the Dakotas has resulted in generally fair weather in northwestern districts.

From present conditions fair weather may be expected tonight and Sunday. The changes in temperature will be unimportant.

BUFFALO SOON TO ELIMINATE POLITICS

Ballots in Coming Election Will Not Name Party Affiliations.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The city of Buffalo will at its next municipal election pass under the government of a commission elected to administer its public services. There will be four commissioners chosen at this first election, the present mayor remaining in office to the end of his term.

In order to eliminate ordinary party political influence there will be no designative marks or epithets of any kind on the ballot paper used at the primary, and the highest eight on this poll will be named on the ballot for the final choice of four commissioners. Each elector at that election will be allowed to vote for four, and only four, and the eight names will be printed in alphabetical order without designation.

The avowed object in this complex election is to get rid of national politics as an influence in determining the selection of the men intrusted with the management of purely civic affairs.

Buffalo, Aug. 7.—Jack C. B. Koenig, lecturer and poet, who forged several checks on business men in Niagara Falls, and who afterward was arrested in Indianapolis, has been sentenced to Auburn prison on an indeterminate sentence of from five to ten years by County Judge Fish. Koenig appeared in court nattily attired in a blue coat, cream colored trousers, white shoes and socks, but he had no statement to make. He was sentenced under old indictments for similar offenses committed in Niagara Falls under which he had obtained suspension of sentence through intercession of clergymen. Koenig sought time so that he might influence women to make good amounts of checks he forged, but the women refused to advance the cash and Koenig was sentenced.

The court had justified the sinking. The state department takes the view that it is another clear violation of the Prussian-American treaty of 1828 and the principles of international law. Ambassador Gerard will make a formal protest, which is expected to bring the case up for diplomatic discussion.

WILL REGALE ZOO ON A MOUTH HARP

Himalayan Bear and Goshen Cow Entered in Calliope Handicap.

New York, Aug. 7.—Head Keeper William Snyder, of the Central Park zoo, has announced his latest offering to international sport and animal lovers—a competitive mouth organ concert, in which the competitors will be a Goshen, (N. Y.) Jersey cow and a Himalyan sloth bear.

The bear, yclept Zip, is an inmate of the bear cage in Central park and will uphold the title for the city. He is being trained under the guidance of his keeper, Jimmy Coyle. Owing to his pendulous lower lip provided for the absorption of ants, it is believed by both Snyder and Coyle that with development he will prove invincible in the field.

The Goshen cow, Mollie, is the property of a friend of a relative of Coyle, whose local reputation excited Coyle to jealousy on his last visit and precipitated the arranging of the match.

The exact date of the match, says Snyder, depends on the rapidity with which an artistic nature responds to cajolement.

Lieutenant Harry Grimme and a squad of police were engaged for some time Saturday in search for five men said to have robbed a Wabash freight car at some point west of Fort Wayne. Our store will be closed next Monday to allow us to arrange for our great half-price sale that will begin next Tuesday morning. Our Great Half-Price Sales that we have had in August during the past years, have been attended and talked of by hundreds of people who live over 100 miles from Fort Wayne. We want to say to our friends that the sale we begin next Tuesday will eclipse any sale ever given by this store. We will give values so great that we will be almost afraid to advertise them for fear they will sound to you like some of the flood and thunder sales you read about. But do not loose faith. During our coming sale as in the past, we will live up to every letter of advertisement.

MANY HOMES ENDANGERED.

Long Strip of Ground Slides Into Vermilion River.

Danville, Ill., Aug. 7.—As a result of the recent heavy rains, the largest earth slide in the history of the city has endangered the homes of many people on the bank of the Vermilion river. A strip of bank 1,200 feet long, 100 feet wide and eighty feet high has slipped into the river, damming the stream and causing it to flow over the bottom lands. Several barns and houses are on the brink of the river bank since the slide. A half-dozen trees, with extensive roots, was all that prevented even a greater slip, as the roots helped hold the loose earth together.

HOG PRICES MAKE A SMALL DECLINE

With receipts very small and the market practically at a stand still for the past month during which time prices remained unchanged, the price on hogs made a small drop here Saturday morning. Hogs weighing from 140 to 200 pounds, which were quoted at $7.25, were marked down to $7.00 per hundred weight. However, the other live stock market quotations remained the same.

Oats prices which have been ascending for the past few days added another cent to the average price and farmers received from 58 to 60 cents a bushel for the grain on the market Saturday. One load of corn that was weighed at the city scales brought 88 cents a bushel which is also a trifle higher than Friday's prices.

The price per ton on hay varied greatly today, prices ranging from $5.50 to $12 a ton. All the receipts were new hay, and it is predicted that no old hay will be seen on the streets any more this year. Wheat prices remain steady and unchanged.

The Barr street market was a very busy one today. Eggs, poultry, fruits and vegetables appearing in large quantities. Early corn and potatoes have been affected by rains and many black spots show upon the corn when husked. Peaches were plentiful and are prime for eating and canning.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Wheat advanced today largely in response to bullish foreign advices. Prices here after opening ⅛c @¼c off to ½c up, scored a moderate upturn all around.

The close was steady at 1c to 1@1⅛c above last night.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Aug. 7.—Many shares showed the effect of distribution under cover of the vigorous advance in special issues, but the general strength of the market was conserved until the railroad list began to sag. Prices then fell rapidly to below yesterday's finals in most instances. The closing was heavy. A few stocks made stirring gains. Crucible Steel touched 92¾, general motors 207 and Willys-Overland 148¾, gains of 4 to 11 points. In the light re-action, however, Bethlehem Steel gave way 12 points from the high, General Motors 6 and Crucible 7. Bonds were easy.

Although a few of the active specialties advanced strongly at the opening today movements elsewhere small and the market as a whole was narrow. Crucible Steel was the center of speculative activity. It was bid up 3⅝ to 92¼, the highest price on record. U. S. Alcohol also made a record by rising 3½ to 69. Bethlehem Steel, long the most conspicuous of the war stocks, was less active. It rose 1½ after being quoted fractionally under yesterday's close. Railroad shares were listless but firm.

CONVICTS FEARED TO JUMP.

Risk Collision Rather Than Shots From Armed Guards.

Salem, Ore., Aug. 7.—Thirty-seven convicts on a motor truck which was crossing a railroad track here late yesterday realized that a collision with a switch engine was inevitable, but refrained from jumping for fear of being shot by armed guards following in an automobile. The engine crashed squarely into the truck and seven of the prisoners were severely injured; two probably fatally. Twenty others sustained cuts and bruises. The convicts were being taken back to prison after a day's work in the fields.

MUNCIE FACTORY FOREMAN SLAIN

Frank Deam is Stabbed to Death by Discharged Employe.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 7.—Frank Deam, 42, a factory foreman at Ball Brothers' manufacturing plant, was stabbed to death here yesterday afternoon by John Craig, 19, an employe under Deam. Craig and Earl Hopper, another employe, were caught shooting craps in the morning, and were discharged by Deam. They returned to the factory in the afternoon and an argument ensued over their pay. According to witnesses Deam was shoved backward over a barrel and Craig, it is alleged, stabbed the foreman six times, one knife thrust being through the center of the heart. Although there were many other employes present, the affair happened so quickly that no one was able to interfere. The two men escaped from the factory building but were later captured. Deam was a nephew of Judge Frank Ellis of the Delaware circuit court, and was widely known and liked. He was married.

An unusual dinner was recently given in Toledo. Each guest cooked his own food by electricity.

The Secret of a Good Figure

often lies in the brassiere. Hundreds of thousands of women wear the Bien-Jolie Brassiere for the reason that they regard it as necessary as a corset. It supports the bust and back and gives the figure the youthful outline fashion decrees.

BIEN JOLIE (BE-AN JO-LEE) BRASSIERES are the daintiest, most serviceable garments imaginable. Only the best of materials are used—for instance, "Walohn", a flexible boning of great durability—absolutely rustless—permitting laundering without removal.

They come in all styles, and your local Dry Goods dealer will show them to you on request. If he does not carry them, he can easily get them for you by writing to us. Send for an illustrated booklet showing styles that are in high favor.

IN HALO OF SMILES, WHATEVER THAT IS

Musicians' Union Picnic is Sure-Fire Go, Rain or Shine.

The committee in charge of the outing to be given by the Musicians' union tomorrow at Fitzgerald grove, near Robison park (stop 10) was enveloped today by a halo of smiles, whatever that is. The weather man sent each member a personal letter of apology and promised that he would give out on that day only first-class, government-censored weather. However, his apology came a trifle too late because the committee had already made arrangements to give the picnic in spite of any rain that may come.

Through the courtesy of the traction company the spacious cottage adjacent to the grounds has been secured together with the fourteen flored boxstalls on the cottage grounds. These quarters combined will easily not only shelter, but easily accommodate comfortably at least 700 or 800 persons, so the picnic will be given as originally planned, rain or shine.

This paper is requested to announce that all band musicians shall report at K. of P. hall on Washington street at 8:30 Sunday morning. From there a short parade with music will be made to the transfer corner. Orchestra men are to bring their instruments with them to the grove; piano players and string bass players excused. All the preparations have been completed even down to small amusements for the children. From all indications this will be the greatest event the musicians have ever planned for their own entertainment, as it will be given for musicians only.

FOR PEACE AND NEUTRALITY!

Mass Meeting at Palace Theater Aug. 16th—Everybody Invited.

Congressman Hy. Vollmer and Hon. Patrick O'Donnell from Chicago the Speakers.

An American Meeting Held by Americans in the Interest of America!

Not in the Interest of Germany or England!

America does not want war. The president of the United States does not want war. But jingoes and certain other elements are busily at work trying to create the impression that the majority of the citizens of the United States were anxious to enter the world war as soon as possible on the side of the so-called allies. A large portion of the press seems to be strongly influenced by the demands of foreign interests and by "war sharks" who hope to gain vast amounts of money through the unrestricted sale of war material.

These and similar factors are posing as representatives of the American people, while the peace-loving contingent, which forms the great majority of our citizens, can voice its sentiments through a few channels only.

It becomes the duty of every American patriot to raise his voice in opposition to those who are loudly bellowing for bloodshed and war. Ways and means must be found to communicate to the administration at Washington the sentiments and demands of those who love peace, home and prosperity. No better method of serving this purpose can be found than to assemble in mass meetings at which speeches for peace and perfect neutrality and ringing resolutions give expression to the views of truly patriotic citizens. Such meetings have been held in many cities of the United States. For the 16th of August an assemblage of this nature has been planned at Fort Wayne, Ind. Men of all nationalities, of widely diverging creeds, and from all the different walks of life, laboring men, business men, professional men, have united in order to make this mass meeting a grand success. Their conferences were marked by stirring enthusiasm. It became evident that those who participated were more than willing to defend their country against any enemy whatever his nationality might be, that they were not opposed to a necessary and unavoidable war, that they would fight for the American flag whenever a critical juncture would make it their duty to do so, but they all voiced the strong conviction that under present conditions such a war is not necessary, that all international complications which have arisen may be removed through discussion and arbitration, that the era of peace has not come to an end for our beloved republic, and the sentiment was expressed amid spontaneous and hearty applause that they would fight for no foreign flag, either directly or indirectly.

The shipment of arms and ammunition to belligerent countries has assumed such vast and alarming dimensions that it seriously endangers our neutrality; it actually prolongs the war. Does the American people wish to become responsible for the continuation of the bloody European slaughter? A halt should be called. The American flag must not be stained by the blood of any foreign nation; the Stars and Stripes must not assist in making widows and orphans! An embargo should be placed on the shipment of arms and munitions of war.

For these and other reasons the meeting at Fort Wayne should be attended by everyone. It will be held in the Palace theater, while overflow meetings will take place in the court house. Everybody is invited.—Adv.

ASSURED OF DECENT BURIAL, AT LEAST

Men's League Gets Behind the Mills Anti-Screen Ordinance.

"If the Mills' ordinance is buried it is going to get a decent burial. 'Gene Smith is going to preach the funeral, and President Bayer will pronounce the benediction."

Such was the comment of Rev. J. A. Nipper, superintendent of the Fort Wayne Rescue Mission in discussing the Mills' ordinance for the removal of screens and obstructions of every kind from saloons at a meeting of the Men's Christian League at the First Baptist church, Friday evening.

"A saloonkeeper who is not in favor of this ordinance, you can be assured has something mighty rotten going on back of his screen," Rev. Nipper continued.

Members of the league will attend the meeting of the city council Tuesday evening in a body when the committee will make its report on the ordinance. The league also went on record as favoring the ordinance presented by Councilman Keller for the abolishment of the cabarets.

Purpose of Meeting.

W. N. Ballou, secretary of the league, explained that the purpose of the meeting Friday evening was to discuss the Mills' ordinance and urge its passage by the city council. He explained the action of the city council up to the present time, and also declared that about 1,500 signatures have been secured to the petition which will be presented to the council asking for the passage of the measure.

Councilman J. B. Mills, of the Sixth ward, was the first speaker. "I have thought for years that an ordinance of this kind would be a good thing," he said. "As a boy I spent many of my Sundays behind screens and I've seen enough of the game to know what the removal of the screens will mean. I believe that a few of the saloonkeepers are in favor of my ordinance. They have reached such a point that many of them are convinced that they will have to reform, but in my opinion nothing will stop the progress that the cause of temperance is making. I also believe that a large per cent of the Germans in Fort Wayne are in favor of this measure, and I am confident that if it was left to a vote of the people fully 75 per cent would be for it. I can't see how the council can consistently go back on this proposition."

The councilman declared that had there been no screens the episode in which the boys from Churubusco figured, would not have happened. He said that such an ordinance would keep the boys and girls out of saloons. At this point some one asked if that would not also be true of policemen.

"Yes, I believe it would," he answered. "I heard of a policeman the other day who was beastly drunk while on duty. If there had been no screens he would not have been in that condition."

Favors Keller's Ordinance.

Councilman Mills declared that he was in favor of the ordinance presented by Councilman Keller and that he was going to vote for it.

"I think the committee will report against my ordinance," he continued, "but how the council will vote on it I do not know. I hope, however, that the members will not be controlled by a few bartenders and saloonkeepers."

Rev. Nipper ridiculed the idea that such an ordinance would kill the prohibition movement. Prohibition is one thing, he explained, and the removal of the screens is an entirely different thing. He said that the Mills' and Keller ordinances would help run out such places as those that are now in the limelight as a result of the case of the Churubusco boys.

Saloonkeepers Oppose It.

Prof. Francis M. Price, presided at the meeting. He declared that he had made a canvass of the city, calling upon saloonkeepers who had been recommended to him as models, and he had yet to find a single saloonkeeper who was in favor of this ordinance.

John Hall, who, for four years, was a night watchman in a department store, made the startling statement that the Court saloon is supported largely by the church members of Fort Wayne. He said he knew what he was talking about for the reason that as watchman he could see them enter and leave the saloon.

W. N. Ballou gave a short talk on present day politics and explained why the saloon and liquor interests have so much influence. They stick together, he declared, and are working for their cause every day in the year. No candidate receives their support, he explained, unless they know just how he stands.

ANCIENT BOARD BILL RISES UP TO PLAGUE

Fernehr Brothers Pinched on Warrant Issued a Year Ago.

Tim and Charles Fernehr, two young men whose profession is "hash-slinging," were arraigned in the city court Saturday morning on charges of beating a board bill. The complaining witness was Mrs. Luella Flowers, who formerly conducted a rooming house at 125 West Washington street. She stated that over a year ago the Fernehr brothers stacked up a considerable bill at her place, and then one night in the small hours, folded their tent like the Arab, and as silently stole away. A few weeks later Charles came back and said that the midnight departure was due to necessity to get Brother Charlie out of town because of trouble with a lady friend, and that he was going to work and settle the whole score. He remained until September adding to the account, and then he absconded again, leaving a total delinquency of $24 and some odd cents. A few days ago the migratory brothers returned, were seen by the police and the ancient warrants were exhumed from dusty pigeonholes, and, Friday night, the two were arrested. In court both pleaded guilty, but stated that they could square things in half an hour. They were given a chance, but some hearty pleading over the telephone had failed to raise the wind up to 9:30 o'clock.

Other City Court Cases.

Joe Mulhearn, who has been in the city court so often during the past two years the count has been lost, was in again Saturday, and drew $5 and costs, and went back to jail, from which place he was just released Tuesday morning.

E. Strasburg was charged with blockading a sidewalk in violation of the city ordinances, and the case was continued until Monday.

The case against Winifred Hatfield, charged with neglecting her child, was again continued after a payment of $11 had been made on her account. Her ex-husband, who is in the navy, sends money to her pursuant to court orders for the child's support, but it has been charged that she has not used the money for this purpose.

Harry O'Brien, a down-and-out actor who was picked up a few days ago as a loiterer, was feeling in much better state of mind and body and said he could take care of himself. He was allowed to go.

Tom O'Hara and Ralph Daugherty, two drunks brought in early Saturday morning, were still too much soused for hearing and were continued to Monday and locked up.

HUNTING FOR CAR OWNER.

The police are trying to identify the owner of a car that struck Arthur W. Bussing, 1420 Maumee avenue, earlier in the week, and are awaiting a report from the office of the secretary of state on the number, which was obtained. Mr. Bussing, who was quite severely injured, is making progress under the care of Dr. E. E. Morgan, but will be disabled for some time.

SAYS POCKET WAS PICKED.

John Beyer reported to Officer John Greer Friday evening that while waiting to take a train north his pocketbook, containing $25 cash and a ten-trip ticket to Angola, was stolen. He was unable to give a detailed description of any probable robber and the officer had little to work on.

NO PRESENT FACTION CAN RULE, SAYS U. S.

First Definite Statement of American Position Comes as Carranza Asks Peace Conference

Washington, Aug. 7.—The Mexican situation moved forward today with two important developments. General Carranza signified his willingness to meet his adversaries in a peace conference, and an authoritative announcement was made that the United States is approaching the problem in the Pan-American conference. The position of the United States was stated as follows:

That neither Carranza nor other military faction in Mexico is in control of the country or can be considered as triumphant in the republic.

That the real purpose of the revolution was accomplished a year ago when Huerta was overthrown and that the strife which has continued since, has been over factional differences, and has not been in reality a revolution.

That it considers General Villa, while financially weakened, still is an active element in Mexican affairs who must be reckoned with.

That the so-called Scientificos do not enter into the problem now because it is considered that the overthrow of Huerta disposed of that element.

That the greater portion of Mexico is not at peace as General Carranza claims, because fighting continues in many sections from Tehuantepec to the Rio Grande and Vera Cruz to Mazatlan.

That the first problem to be solved in restoration of peace is to find for provisional president, a man who represents the cause of the original revolution against Huerta, but who does not necessarily represent any of the factions now at war.

This outline is the first authoritative statement of the basis upon which the United States is proceeding.

Carranza's Brief.

General Carranza's brief, filed with the state department by his American counsel, Charles A. Douglas, not only proposes a peace conference with his adversaries, but practically asks recognition.

It was made clear today that the United States while willing to entertain claims of the rival leaders, such as presented in the brief filed on behalf of General Carranza, does not accept the declarations of any of the military leaders that they are so dominant as to insure peace in Mexico.

Carranza, it is held, cannot be considered in control of the situation any more than other leaders, even though he may hold more territory, because Villa's forces and Zapata's bands still are operating.

The Latin-American diplomats are said to share the view that a stable government can be established only by selecting a man who represented the cause of the original revolution against Huerta and one upon whom the leaders now at war could unite.

PROPOSAL BY CARRANZA.

Washington, Aug. 7.—On behalf of Gen. Carranza a formal brief on the Mexican situation was filed with Secretary Lansing today, practically asking for political recognition and proposing that Carranza's Washington agent meet any of the other factions in a peace conference.

The brief submitted by Charles A. Douglas, Gen. Carranza's American consul, sets forth the formal suggestion of a peace conference in the following language:

"We have in Washington Mr. Aredondo in the capacity of a special representative of the constitutional government and, at this time, Mr. Cabrera, a member of Mr. Carranza's cabinet, is here. They are men of fine ability and excellent character, and are anxious to serve their country in the highest and best sense. Either, or both of them, I am assured, will be glad to confer with any element of the Mexican people, with a view to furthering the common interest, the peace and the welfare of the nation."

The proposal to restore the constitutional succession to the presidency, where it was broken by the death of Madero by elevating Vasquez Tagle, a member of the Madero cabinet, to the office of provisional president, the brief says, would defeat the aims of the revolution.

Secretary Lansing, after consultation with Secretary Lane and other leaders in touch with the Mexican situation, was today completing the draft of the pan-American appeal to the factions in Mexico, which will be presented to President Wilson before the third meeting is held. Meanwhile the six pan-American diplomats invited to confer with Secretary Lansing on the Mexican problem have submitted reports to their governments, replies to which probably will be received before the meeting in New York, which was called by the secretary to meet early next week. The meeting place was transferred to New York because the various diplomats are spending the summer in the vicinity of that city.

Will Plan Next Step.

Discussion at that meeting will deal more particularly with the possible steps to be taken should the appeal to the Mexicans to end the rival war themselves fail of its object. The diplomats were leaving for their summer homes today, after a two days' conference, which resulted in no decision as to the exact course to be followed in the event that the appeal to the Mexicans to settle their difference and restore peace goes unheeded. The conferees are in accord with President Wilson's plan and have pledged individual support, although the diplomats are not sure that this can be accomplished unless the military leaders can be eliminated and all classes in Mexico recognized. One of the most important questions which will be considered in the efforts to solve the Mexican problem is the weight to be given to the claims of the military chiefs and what concessions between them can be arranged.

Dispatch of Gen. Scott.

In this connection the dispatch of Maj. Gen. Scott, chief of staff of the army, to the Mexican border to confer with Gen. Villa, occasioned considerable comment here today, although officials explained that he was to readjust the American forces in the light of recent developments which have threatened attacks on border towns. The object of his mission, it is believed, is to outline to Villa the need of consideration for the other factions. Some of the conferees, it is understood, were impressed with the fact that Gen. Carranza's military forces and the territory held by him were entitled to greater consideration than Villa has been inclined to admit.

Must Not Endanger Americans.

General Calles, commanding the Carranza forces threatening Nogales, has received instructions not to endanger Americans. The American consulate at Vera Cruz today so advised the state department.

Further reports from the same source states that Zapatas raiders have been operating on the Tehuantepec railway, where they have burned the stations of Los Naranjos and Tres Villas.

TWO TOWNS ARE TIED UP.

Strike Stops Car Service at Holyoke and Amherst, Mass.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 7.—Street railway traffic in Holyoke and Amherst, was completely paralyzed today by the strike of 250 employes of the Holyoke Street Railway company. The men went out following the breaking off of negotiations between the company and men. Power workers are also out, and it is announced no attempt will be made to run cars today. Commissioner Wood, of the state board of conciliation and arbitration arranged to hold a conference with the contending parties on the situation today.

All Over in 10 Seconds; 3 Mexican Bandits Slain

Brownsville, Tex., Aug. 7.—Fighting three against twenty, three Mexican outlaws were killed by a posse last night at a farm house about thirty miles north of here. One posseman was slightly wounded. The fight did not last more than ten seconds.

The posse heard that a gang of a dozen bandits which raided Sebastian yesterday and killed two Americans had separated, most of them going to their homes on the American side of the border. The officials were after one Mexican who had been recognized among the raiders of Sebastian yesterday and did not know any confederates were with him. The posse, led by State Adjutant Hutchins, Sheriff Evans of Cameron county and Ranger Captain Ransom, totalled twenty mounted men.

About 10:30 o'clock in the evening the posse galloped up to the house, encircling it. Most of them left their mounts near the back porch. Two Mexicans on this porch opened fire. The possemen replied with rifles. A third Mexican seen trying to run from the house was shot down. Since last night officers have arrested twenty Mexicans, all residents of the American side of the border, on suspicion that they were members of the gangs of bandits which have been killing, robbing and burning in this section for three weeks.

OVER TWELVE HUNDRED ARE BOWSER'S GUESTS.

With a handkerchief stuffed in about his collar and with his shirt sleeves rolled up, S. F. Bowser, president of S. F. Bowser & Co., stood in the main room of the Pennsylvania station from 7 to 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning, distributing tickets among the employes for his annual excursion to Winona. The party numbered 1,256. In the group above are shown Mr. Bowser, C. A. Dunkelberg and other members of the Bowserofficial family, who aided in the work at the station.

NEW ARISTOCRACY NEEDED, HE SAYS

Dr. Kellogg Urges Health Registry for Race Betterment.

San Francisco, Aug. 7. The world needs a new aristocracy—"a real aristocracy made up of Apollos and Venuses and their fortunate progeny"—said Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of Battle Creek, Mich., today in an address on "The Eugenics Registry" before the second National Conference on Race Betterment.

"Instead of such an aristocracy," Dr. Kellogg continued, "we are actually building up an aristocracy of lunatics, idiots, paupers and criminals. These unfit persons already have reached the proportions of a vast multitude: 500,000 lunatics, 80,000 criminals, 100,000 paupers, 90,000 idiots, 90,000 epileptics, and we are supporting these defectives in idleness like real aristocrats, at an expense of one hundred million dollars a year, and this mighty host of mental and moral cripples is increasingly due to unrestricted marriage and other degenerative influences at a more rapid rate than the sounder part of the population so that they are bound in time to constitute the majority unless some check is put upon the increase. Everyone of the lunatics possesses the right to vote even in states where women are not given the right of franchise."

Dr. Kellogg proposed a "scheme for race betterment," which he thought should be set in operation as speedily as possible. This included the establishment of a "health registry," on which should be recorded the results of an annual health inspection of individuals by a bureau maintained by the state for the purpose; and of a "eugenics registry" to accomplish in behalf of race hygiene "what the health registry would seek to do for personal health."

Erie, Pa., Aug. 7.—Harbor Creek, eight miles east of Erie, was hit by a tornado and cloud burst early today, according to an appeal for help received here this morning.

Eleven victims of Tuesday night's flood here were to be buried today, while Coroner Hanley and his deputies were arranging for the inquest which had been scheduled for Monday. FRIEND OF BRYAN QUITS HIS PLACE

Washington, Aug. 7.—Robert F. Rose, of Montana, today resigned as one of the foreign trade advisers in the state department. Mr. Rose was appointed by Secretary Bryan and was his close personal friend. In presenting his resignation, Mr. Rose said it had no connection with Secretary Bryan's resignation and issued the following statement:

"I am concerned that no misunderstanding shall exist in the matter of my resignation. As stated in my letter to the secretary of state, I have been endeavoring for months to leave the department and had Mr. Bryan remained the letter would have been written. I desire to return to my profession. My relations with Mr. Bryan have nothing to do with my action. He does not know of it and I have not heard from him since he left Washington in June."

Proposed Canal is Now Up to General Kingman at Washington.

"It may be several weeks before any announcement is made on the report of the army board on the proposed Toledo, Fort Wayne and Chicago barge canal," according to Perry A. Randall.

It is not believed that the public will be permitted to know what the report contains until he has had an opportunity to carefully review it which will take some time.

INDIANAPOLIS FIRM IS HIGHEST BIDDER

The Washington Township Bonds Sold at Premium of $1,405.

J. F. Wild & Co., of Indianapolis, were the highest bidders at the bond sale covering $21,000 on the new Lincoln school building in Washington township. They purchased the bonds at a premium of $1,405, the bond issue covering a period of fifteen years, payable semi-annually in amounts of $700 each. There were seven bidders, the bids ranging from $350 to $1,405.

Some weeks ago a bond sale was held in this city and the bonds sold, which, however, was later found to be in violation of a recent ruling of the state accounting board, inasmuch as the sale of bonds must hereafter be conducted in the township for which the bonds are intended. According to this ruling the trustee cannot maintain an office outside of his township. It has been the custom for years for the trustee of Washington township to have his office in this city, which was done for the convenience of the residents of the township who had business with the trustee.

Trustee Leonard Stolte Saturday filed his statistical report with D. O. McComb, county superintendent, showing that he has a total of $3,202.70 in his tuition fund and $374.64 in his special fund, with which to start the new school year. The average cost for the year for each pupil in the township is $29.

FLOOD PREVENTION PETITIONS SIGNED

Rush to Affix Names at Desks in Court House Square.

Farmers and city folk in large numbers signed powers of attorney in support of the flood prevention movement at the desks stationed on the court house square today. Much enthusiasm was exhibited by the freeholders who applied at the desks, and many of them took powers of attorney with them to have their neighbors sign.

Arrangements have been completed for a big booster meeting at the Commercial club Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Members of the ward committees are especially urged to be present, and all persons interested in the project are cordially invited. The primary purpose of the meeting is to explain the law fully to the committees and to distribute powers of attorney among the workers who are willing to participate in the campaign. It is of the highest importance that every member of the ward committees be present Monday evening.

RETURNS FROM CONVENTION.

F. B. Beyer, of Wildwood Avenue, manager of the Beyer Brothers company, of this city, returns Saturday evening from Chicago where he attended the big apple convention held in that city for the past three days.

HOME AT MIDNIGHT; TURNS ON THE GAS

Emil Baumgartner Ends Life in Burgess Street Residence.

Emil Baumgartner, aged 60 years and a brick mason, went home Friday midnight and turned on the gas in his bedroom. When his wife went to call him at 7 o'clock Saturday morning she found the lower portion of the building reeking with gas and her husband dead in his bed.

It is said Baumgartner had been drinking and had not been home for nearly a week up till Friday night. The widow and seven children survive. Baumgartner had lived for many years at the house in which he took his life at 1312 Burgess street and is widely known in the neighborhood.

The police received two false starts when they tried to take the pulmotor from the headquarters in the patrol wagon, and had gone over eight miles before they finally reached the place. The mistakes were due to misunderstanding of directions given over the telephone. Coroner Edward Kruse is investigating the case.

Circumstances as related by those familiar with the situation indicate that, with the remainder of the family violently opposed to it, liquor, to which Baumgartner was addicted, caused him to end his life.

"I had gone upstairs to bed," said Mrs. Baumgartner, "and I heard him come in. He wanted me to go down stairs with him, but I was afraid, and I wouldn't. Well, he went to the downstairs bedroom alone, and I slept till morning, when I came down stairs. I smelled the gas, but I thought that it was from the gas jet in the kitchen, and I tried to fix it. Then I got breakfast and noticed the gas was worse. When I went to his door to call him, I found him in the gas. That's all I know." Both gas jets were on full, and there was no doubt that it was deliberate suicide, although he left no note or word of any kind.

Police Given Wrong Direction.

The woman who first called the police gave the location of the tragedy as 1312 Fletcher avenue, a thoroughfare in the far east end of the city. Finding a church at that location the wagon crew returned to headquarters, where the correct location was learned and the run was made to the Baumgartner home. Several unnecessary miles were traveled by reason of the mistake made in giving directions to headquarters. That there was no misunderstanding of directions was proved at the Baumgartner home, for the woman who sent in the call was asked what street and number the home had and she replied "1312 Fletcher avenue."

After hearing the testimony of Mrs. Baumgartner, Coroner Kruse is of the opinion that Baumgartner intended to kill his wife along with himself when he called her and asked to come down stairs.

GIRL DRIVER OF A JITNEY BUS MAY DIE

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 7.—Three persons were injured badly here early today when an automobile running at high rate of speed struck the curbing at the court house.

Isador Liverman and Miss Katherine Wittmer, who was the first girl in Evansville to own and operate a jitney bus, are said to be injured internally, and physicians hold little hope for their recovery.

Miss Mollie Varner was bruised about the body and chest. David W. Holtzman escaped without a scratch. The automobile was wrecked. .

PUTS THE CASE IN DIFFERENT LIGHT

Washington, Aug. 7.—Colville Barclay, charge of the British embassy, called at the state department today to explain the recent British note on the seizure of the American ship Neches. The British note, he said, because of its brevity, did not fully present the British reasons for the action; that the ship was not taken in reprisal for violations by Germany of the rules of naval warfare and that the rule regarding such detentions and seizures was not intended to apply to the United States alone, but to all neutral nations.

State department officials said the explanation placed the case in a different light, which will be recognized in the forthcoming reply to the London foreign office.

NEW QUARANTINE MODIFICATION.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Further modification of the federal quarantine against foot and mouth disease, effective August 9, will advance the Union stock yards at Chicago into restricted districts so it may handle animals for immediate slaughter.

Germans Strike to Envelop Entire Russian Army in Poland.

Germans Welcomed to Warsaw as Liberators, Say Berlin Writers.

London, Aug. 7.—Holding the bridge heads at Warsaw over the Vistula river, the most formidable military obstacle in eastern Europe, Germany and Austria-Hungary, having conquered the river line and with it invaded Russian territory for an average depth of 100 miles along a front from the Baltic to Bukowina, are now throwing their forces forward in an endeavor to accomplish what Russia's allies have so feared—the complete envelopment of the Russian armies.

The British press, basing its opinions on Petrograd dispatches and the lack of reports to the contrary from either Berlin or Vienna, is inclined to the view that the forces of Grand Duke Nicholas retired from Warsaw virtually intact; but there is an increasing disposition not to minimize the seriousness of the situated as it still exists and the anxiety of the quadruple powers seems to be manifested in renewed pressure to bring the Balkan states in line on the side of the entente powers.

Whole Garrison at Bay.

Though still holding Novogeorgievsk, the whole Russian garrison remains at bay. Thus the Russian armies were not only menaced back of the Warsaw salient, from where they were not entirely cleared before heavy German forces broke across the Vistula to the southeast of Warsaw, but a larger and more formidable enveloping movement has taken definite form, being in effect a greater pair of pinchers, aiming at Dvinsk, in the north, and at Brest-Litovsk in the south and superimposed on a smaller pair, which sought and still seeks to crush the Russian forces in and around Warsaw.

The French Claims.

The official statement of the French war office recites the continuance of hand grenade fighting and artillery exchanges. The engagement with grenades was very spirited in the Argonne, and a German attack on hill No. 213 was repulsed.

The rumor in London that Sweden might take part in the war, fighting against Russia, has brought a statement from the Swedish minister in the British capital that Sweden's determination to remain neutral is as firm as ever.

WITH GLAD ACCLAIM.

German Troops Welcomed at Warsaw as Liberators.

Berlin, Aug. 7.—The German troops were welcomed to undamaged Warsaw as liberators, according to the report forwarded to Berlin by Kurt Aram, a special correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger. Telegraphing under date of August 5 Aram places emphasis on the statement that the city was not evacuated without a conflict. The forts were protected by barbed wire, pitfalls and mines against infantry attacks. The city is not mentioned as having been damaged.

The inhabitants of the Polish capital, the correspondent says, filled the streets and welcomed the in-marching troops with every sign of real enthusiasm and rejoicing. The streets were richly beflagged. The Polish citizens, who long had been restrained in the city, began leaving in the early morning for their farms, driving their live stock and conveying their household effects. They greeted the Germans with tears.

The Warsaw correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt confirms the report that the German troops met with a joyous reception. The streets, he says, were filled with Poles, Jews, Germans and Russians, who waved their hats joyfully to the German soldiers. Very little damage had been done in the city proper. The earthworks about the forts show the German artillery made many fair hits.

Fort Dembe, comprising part of the Warsaw fortifications on the right bank of the Vistula river, has been captured by German troops, according to an official statement given out today by the German army headquarters staff.

THE RUSSIAN STATEMENT.

Petrograd, Aug. 7.—Warsaw was evacuated by the Russians without a struggle in its immediate vicinity in order that the city might escape damage. The retreat was businesslike and orderly.

All the war stock had been previously removed from the city along with the rolling stock on the railroads. The Russians planted artillery to prevent the rebuilding of the Vistula bridges by the Germans.

According to official information a large part of the evacuating army remained close to the city prepared to contest any effort made by the Germans to cross the Vistula in pursuit.

MOUNTAIN SUMMIT IS CAPTURED BY STORM

Paris, Aug. 7.—After a desperate battle the Italians have stormed and captured the summit of Monte San Michele, which dominates Gorizia, says a Petit JJournal dispatch from Turin. The fall of Gorizia, twenty-two miles northwest of Trieste, on the Isonzo, now is believed imminent, the dispatch adds.

Italians Lose Submarine.

The Italian submarine Nereide is reported to have been sunk in an encounter with an Austrian submarine off the island of Pelagosa, in the Adriatic sea, according to a special dispatch from Rome.

The Nereide, which was built in 1913, was 134 feet long with a beam of 14 feet and displacement of 315 tons gross. Her peace-time complement was 17 men.

SWEDEN WORRYING ALLIES.

See Disposition to Line Up With Germany Against Russia.

London, Aug. 7.—The London Morning Post declares the attitude of Sweden toward Russia and the latter's allies for some time past has revealed elements of a disquieting character.

"Emboldened by recent German successes," the newspaper says, "the latent hostility of Sweden, which has never forgiven the loss of Finland, has become strongly developed. Considerable preparations for warlike contingencies have been made in north Sweden and the Swedish army is fully mobilized. If Sweden persists in her unfriendly attitude toward Russia she may rapidly drift into a war which would inevitably be a great obstacle to her future progress."

Fishing Smacks Sunk.

The British fishing smacks Hesperus, Ivan, Ces and Fisherman have been sunk, presumably by German submarines. The fishing crews were landed today.

The fishing smacks Heliotrope and Challenger also have been sunk. The Danish steamer Hans Emil has been set on fire. The crew was saved.

Prussian Official Named by Germans For Conquered City.

Berlin, Aug. 7. Chief of Police Glasenapp, of Cologne, Prussia, today was appointed as head of the police department in the conquered city of Warsaw.

An official statement given out today by the German government, says: "At midnight of August 7, the Italian airship Citta de Jost, while endeavoring to approach over Pola, was brought down by shrapnel before it could do any damage. All the crew, consisting of three naval officers, one mechanician and two men were taken prisoners. The airship was taken into Pola.

TO STUDY CAUSE OF MENTAL DEFICIENCY

Dr. Bliss on Commission to Make an Inquiry in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7.—Governor Samuel M. Ralston has announced the appointment of a commission to investigate the causes of mental deficiency in Indiana and to make recommendations for the prevention and cure, if possible, of such deficiency. The large increase in the number of epileptic, feeble minded and insane persons in the state in the last few years is given as a reason for the action. The investigators will report their observations and conclusions not later than November 1, 1916. The commission is composed of the following:

Rev. Francis H. Gavisk, chairman of committee on hospitals for the insane of the board of state charities, Indianapolis.

Dr. George F. Ebenharter, medical superintendent Central Indiana Hospital for Insane, Indianapolis.

Dr. Samuel E. Smith, medical superintendent Eastern Indiana Hospital for the Insane, Richmond.

Dr. Charles P. Emerson, dean Indiana University School of Medicine, Indianapolis.

Dr. W. C. VanNuys, superintendent Indiana Village for Epileptics, Newcastle.

Dr. George S. Bliss, superintendent School for Feeble Minded Youth, Fort Wayne.

Charles A. McGonagle, state representative, Muncie.

The problem of mental deficiency and its prevention was discussed at the quarterly meeting of the board of state charities last Monday and the decision to appoint the investigating commisson was made at this meeting.

PHOTOGRAPHER DURBOROUGH WITH THE GER MAN DRIVE IN RUSSIA.

This photograph was taken at Alexandrowa, Russia, which is within the lines of the German drive now going on against Russia from the north by way of East Prussia.

The picture shows German soldiers entering the "lousing station" at Alexandrowa. That's it, lousing station, another exhibition of German efficiency. For ages the louse, great big grey ones, have been the pest of the war camp. The cleanest men cannot keep away from them. They cause sores and in bad cases they even eat men's flesh from the bones.

In Serbia, body lice caused the terrible epidemic of typhus which carried off thousands, an epidemic which has just been conquered. The Germans knew all about the deadly louse and took precautions against him. Stations behind the lines are provided with special equipment for killing the pest. All soldiers coming in from the front for a rest must first go through these stations. Their clothes and all their belongings are placed under intense heat and the men go through a thorough cleansing process personally.

BLAMES DOCTORS FOR MANY DRUG VICTIMS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 7.—Physicians are responsible for more than one-half of the drug fiends in the United States, according to a bulletin published today by the public health service.

The bulletin is based on a study of cases which have come to the notice of the service since the Harrison anti-narcotic law went into effect. The study was made by Martin I. Wilbert, technical assistant in the hygienic laboratory.

At the outset Mr. Wilbert states that the number of drug victims in the United States is probably not much over 200,000. He denies that the passage of the Harrison law has caused any great suffering in the country or any crime wave such as was feared.

Mr. Wilbert comments on the deaths reported in Chicago, which were attributed to the difficulty of the unfortunates in obtaining narcotics after the law went into effect. He also refers to the marked increase in the number of drug victims admitted to Philadelphia hospitals.

These cases, according to Mr. Wilbert, in no way measured up to the predictions of persons who believed the law would cause great suffering and much crime.

WILL CREATE NEW CARDINALS.

Next Consistory to Be Followed by Council of Bishops.

Rome, Aug. 6.—(Via Paris, Aug. 7.)—The next consistory will be followed by a council of bishops at which Pope Benedict will create several new cardinals, says the Agenzia Nazionale. Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, Minn., and Monsignor Becaria, private chaplain of King Victor Emmanuel, of Italy, it is said, will be among those added to the college of cardinals.

Cardinal Benedict Lorenzelli, prefect of the congregation of Studies, is believed to be dying and received the last sacrament this morning. Cardinal Lorenzelli, who is 62 years old, was appointed a cardinal priest in 1907.

OCT. 1 DISEASE PREVENTION DAY

Governor Ralston Issues a Proclamation Asking Observance.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 7.—Governor Samuel M. Ralston has issued a proclamation designating Friday, October 1, as disease prevention day. The governor says:

"The unanimity with which the first official proclamation for disease prevention day, that of last year, was received by the general public, the public schools, the medical profession and the sanitary scientists and philanthropists, is of itself a sufficient warrant for issuing a second one in 1915.

"The time was ripe for such an appeal on behalf of the public health. The work of voicing and giving practical direction to an already aroused public opinion, so auspiciously started and so greatly stimulated by that movement, was too valuable to be lost or neutralized by any neglect or relaxation of interest and effort at this time. Good health is always a paramount issue. It means sane minds, as well as sound bodies; self-poise to the individual and safety to the state. In its last analysis it is the sheet anchor of a true and normal civilization.

"I respectfully urge that such exercises be given in the public schools, and such action be taken by the various municipalities and civic and other organizations in Indiana, as will emphasize the importance of public health and the joint responsibility of all citizens therefor, and will inspire in every one a desire to meet that responsibility by an active co-operation in all sane efforts for the prevention of physical disease."

EXPRESSES HER SYMPATHY.

Austria-Hungary Sends Message on Eastland Disaster.

New York, Aug. 7.—Austria-Hungary has expressed her sympathy for the United States in the case of the sinking of the steamer Eastland at Chicago with the loss of more than 900 lives, according to the following statement issued today at the Austro-Hungarian consulate general here: "On the occasion of the staggering disaster of the Eastland, the Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs, Baron Burion, had requested Ambassador Penfield to convey to the United States government the deep-felt sympathies of Austro-Hungarian government."

THOUSANDS SEE HANGING.

Refreshment Venders Do Big Business at Mississippi Execution.

FUND IS INCREASING.

About $900 Raised by St. Joe Club For Proposed Dam.

The committee in charge of raising funds for the dam to be constructed in the St. Joe river near the State street bridge, which will provide a splendid waterway for a distance of six miles for boating, fishing and bathing, have been assured more than $3,000. The committee is confident that little trouble will be experienced in securing the required $15,000, the amount necessary for the completion of the dam and other necessary work along the proposed waterway. It is understood that the St. Joe Athletic club has raised between $800 and $900 for the dam.

VICTIM OF AUTOMOBILE SMASH AT AVILLA DIES

Mrs. Frank Prudenz, wife of a merchant at Cincinnati, who was seriously injured when the automobile, driven by her son Earl, overturned two miles north of Avilla two weeks ago, died late Friday afternoon at the Kneipp sanitarium at Rome City, where she had been removed immediately after the accident. The body passed through this city last evening on its way to her late home.

Mrs. Prudenz, with her sons, Earl and Robert, and daughter Alma and Miss Gladys Bowers, of Decatur, had driven to Rome City the day before to spend the summer at the resort. After reaching there they discovered that an extra tire had been lost and by communicating by telephone along the route they had come they found that the lost article had been picked up at Huntertown. The next day the party had motored there and it was while the return was being made that the car struck a rut in the road, bounded to the side and turned over in the ditch.

The mishap occurred on the evening of the nineteenth birth anniversary of the son, Earl, who was driving the car. None of the occupants of the car with the exception of Mrs. Prudenz was injured, only suffering a few minor bruises. The unfortunate lady suffered concussion of the brain and did not regain consciousness after the accident. Mr. Prudenz had been at the bedside of his wife since the day after the accident.

ENGINEER DEAD AT THROTTLE.

Lifeless Man Pilots Train Ten Miles Before Fact Is Discovered.

Columbus, O., Aug. 7.—When a Big Four passenger train speeded through Georgesville, a village near here, yesterday without stopping as usual, the fireman pulled the cord of Engineer William Quinlan to attract his attention and found the engineer was dead, though he sat erect with his hand on the throttle. Passengers became excited when they learned after reaching Columbus their train had run at least ten miles with the pilot lifeless. Heart disease caused his death.

W. C. Kelker, G. R. & I. engineer, has taken a two weeks' leave of absence and will spend the time in and about Mackinac.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Bailey went to Chicago today to spend Sunday with friends. Mr. Bailey is a foreman of laborers at the Pennsylvania shops.

GOING TO PEOPLE, NOT POLITICIANS, HE SAYS

Kentland, Ind., Aug. 7.—Warren T. McCray, a banker of Kentland, is preparing to wage a strenuous campaign for the republican nomination for governor and he will carry his fight to the people of the state and not the politicians. Mr. McCray has received scores of letters of indorsement from progressive as well as republicans and he believes that with a "clean business" policy as his platform he will obtain the support of members of all parties.

"I have been too much engaged with my business affairs to have an opportunity to form the acquaintance of the politicians of Indiana," he says, "and I am therefore appealing directly to my friends and the voters of Indiana to look after my interests.

"In the event of my nomination and election, I can promise that it will be my earnest endeavor to give the people of Indiana a clean, economical business administration and will undertake at all times to be fair to all business interests, whether large or small. I have always been a republican, but I am making this appeal to all who desire an administration of that kind regardless of former associations or preferences."

AMERICANS SEIZE HAITIEN PALACE

Port au Prince, Haiti, Aug. 7.—American naval forces have taken possession of the office of the port, the national palace and the Haitien gunboat Pacifique, which arrived in Port au Prince yesterday.

During the movement to take the office of the port the Americans opened fire on the Haitiens and one Haitien was killed.

The occupation of the office of the port and the national palace gave the Americans the last positions held by the Haitiens.

The populace has been thrown into consternation by the operations of the Americans. The president of the senate, in the name of the nation, cabled Solon Menos, Haitien minister to the United States, a new protest against the occupation of Haitien territory by the American naval forces.

Dr. Rosalvo Bobo, leader of the revolution, arrived here on board the United States refrigerator ship Celtic. On landing he was cheered by the populace.

ALL DRIVERS PREDICT NEW 100-MILE RECORD

Chicago, Aug. 7.—With all the drivers predicting a new automobile record at 100 miles will be made, Resta, Cooper, Bob Burman and Barney Oldfield were prepared to meet in a match race on the two mile course of the speedway this afternoon. The drivers have been practicing all week and have their cars primed up.

It is claimed that all of the entrants have shown a speed of more than 104 miles an hour in practice, and the fact that there will be few cars on the track to delay them is pointed out as proof that the record of 99.05 miles an hour made here in the automobile derby, will be beaten. The drivers will race for a purse of $10,000 and will be sent away to a flying start.

Fourteen physicians had witnessed yesterday a demonstration of the new ray by Charles Stanley, an electrician, who claims to have discovered the ray, and who asserts that it eliminates the danger heretofore said to surround the application of the X-ray. Mr. Stanley held a bulb with the ray burning in his hand for an hour to show the physicians that it produced no harmful effect.

FORMER WINONA TEACHER RETURNS

Prof. Rider Tells of Visit to Morgan's Church in London.

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 7.—Prof. William Rider, formerly teacher in the animal husbandry and dairying department of the Winona College of Agriculture, spent a few days at the park this week. He is at present engaged as head of the dairying department of the Syracuse university at Syracuse, N. Y. He has been attending school for the past two months at the state agricultural school at Madison, Wis., taking some post-graduate work which will entitle him to additional degrees in his work.

Among other interesting incidents related by Mr. Rider is a story of a visit of Mrs. Rider and himself to Dr. G. Campbell Morgan's church in London, when they were traveling abroad a year ago. After hearing Dr. Morgan preach a sermon in his own church, they introduced themselves to him, saying that they heard him preach at Winona Bible conference. The genial doctor's face was illuminated with smiles upon gaining this intelligence, and he pointed with supreme satisfaction to a large picture of the Winona Bible conference, beautifully framed, hanging on his wall. He stated to Mr. and Mrs. Rider that Winona occupies a very warm spot in his affections and that he recalls his visits to the great Indiana summer resort with genuine pleasure. He stated also that in his opinion Winona, through its great Bible conference is performing a mission for the church and for humanity that is of incalculable value.

Mr. Rider was greatly pleased with the substantial improvements that have taken place at Winona since he left three years ago. He believes the Winona College of Agriculture is doing efficient work in its line and predicts that when it receives sufficient endowment to make it a self-supporting institution it will achieve marked success.

GREAT GALAXY OF NOTABLES.

Six Indiana Candidates for Governor to Be at Lagrange Corn Show.

Lagrange, Ind., Aug. 7.- Congressman John A. M. Adair, of the Portland district; William H. O'Brien, former auditor of state; Mayor Robert O. Johnson, of Gary; James P. Goodrich, national committeeman; Colonel Charles Arthur Carlisle, of South Bend, and Quincy A. Myers, former justice of the supreme court, are six of the candidates for party nomination for governor of Indiana, in the primary of next March, who have thus far accepted invitations to be in Lagrange, Thursday, October 7, governor's day of corn school week, and deliver addresses. Governor Woodbridge N. Ferris, of Michigan, is to be the principal guest of honor on that day, and those who aspire to the governorship of the Hoosier commonwealth are to be with him on that occasion, if they will come. Six have already signified their intention to be here, and others will write within a few days.

CONVOY CHAUTAUQUA ENDS.

Convoy, O., Aug. 7.—The Convoy chautauqua, given by the Moneley system under the auspices of the Junior Fire company, came to a close Wednesday evening. This is the first chautauqua ever held in Convoy and while it was not a "howling" success financially, every one of the twelve numbers have been so satisfactory that all who attended were well pleased and many are urging the fire boys to contract for another chautauqua next year. The weather conditions were all against the boys this year as it rained almost every day and since Monday afternoon the tent was abandoned and the meetings were held in the town hall which was much too small to accommodate the crowds.

SHOWING HOW TO LEAD.

Lagrange, Ind., Aug. 7. Mrs. Ned Spero and Edna Greenawalt, of Brushy Prairie, were in town one day this week selling advertising space on a booklet announcing the lecture course for the Brushy Prairie hall for the coming winter season, and, what is more to the point, they sold it in an hour or two. For some reason or other none of the Brushy Prairie people seemed willing to be interested enough in a lecture course for the coming season to take the lead, until Mrs. Spero and Miss Greenawalt decided to come to the rescue, assume most of the responsibility and do most of the work. So they have arranged for a course of five numbers from the Central Lyceum bureau of Chicago.

ZIMMERMAN FAMILY REUNION.

Lagrange, Ind., Aug. 7.—The annual reunion of the Zimmerman family was held yesterday, August 5th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Browning at the county farm. There were a total of 58 relatives and friends present to enjoy the occasion. In addition to the members of the family, the county commissioners and their families were invited. Others present outside the family circle were Christian Giggy, an old neighbor; Rev. J. M. Weber and two sons, of Monroeville. Following the reunion dinner a short program of recitations and songs were given and Rev. Weber gave an address. At the business session the old officers were re-elected for another year as follows: President, Isaac Zimmerman; vice president, Howard A. Zimmerman; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Browning.

BROTHER IS STILL MISSING.

Bluffton, Ind., Aug. 7.—Bert and Charles Patterson, residing northeast of Bluffton, are home from Chicago after a two days' fruitless quest for their brother, Sam Patterson, of Michigan City, who has been missing from his home and family for a week. Messrs. Patterson are much discouraged by their inability to find a trace of their brother and are fearful for his safety. He went to Chicago Friday, July 30, to transact business and the firm whom he visited there reported to his family this week that he finished his business and started home without delay.

CARD FROM BATTLEFIELD.

Van Wert, O., Aug. 7.—Mr. James Fostnaught has received a postal card from France acknowledging the receipt of a toboggan cap which had been sent, when a box of gifts were sent last winter to the soldiers in France. The card is written in a neat hand and the writing is as follows: "I cannot express to you the pleasure it gave me when I received your most thoughtful gift, especially from one of our American cousins across the border. It makes me feel quite near home, as I belong to Montreal. Again thanking you for your thoughtfulness, yours gratefully, Serg. A. W. Fisher, First heavy, B. C. F. A." (British Columbia field artillery.)

STOLE ROXIE'S BEAN CROP.

Bluffton, Ind., Aug. 7.—The theft of an entire crop of green beans from the premises of Roxie White, in the southeast part of town, is the latest wrinkle of sneak thievery. Mr. White has been tending the beans very carefully all spring as he is very fond of them and had produced a crop at once succulent and plentiful. Harvesting of the crop was to take place today. His plans were sadly blasted, however, when he found that some one had beat him to the harvest and had picked the vines almost clean of their tender crop. There is no clue to the thief.

BEAN CAN EXPLODES.

Decatur, Ind., Aug. 7.—Mrs. Joseph Helm, corner Third and Marshal streets, is carrying a very severely burned arm in a bandage, the result of an explosion, while canning beans. Mrs. Helm was canning beans by a steaming process and had used a two quart tin can. While she was working away over the stove, she noticed that the lid of the can was raised up a little ways, but as she was about to seal it, she pushed it down and reached across the large can to move a smaller one out of the way. As she did so, the lid popped off and almost the entire contents of the can were thrown high in the air as if from a miniature volcano.

AFTER NATIONAL HIGHWAYS.

Kosciusko County Organizes to Get the Lincoln and Dixie Roads.

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 7. Three hundred enthusiastic boosters for the Hoosier Dixie highway and Lincoln highway met in the court room on Friday afternoon for the purpose of forming a county organization. The meeting was to have been held in the city hall, but owing to the fact that the crowd far exceeded the expectations of those in charge of the meeting, it was necessary to meet in the court room. Practically every township in the county sent delegations. The largest delegation was sent from Pierceton and Larwill, seventeen machines coming from these towns. A committee, composed of two persons from each township present, was chosen to draft by-laws for the organization. Following was the committee chosen: Lake, Heman and Kern; Clay, Scales and Tucker; Warsaw, Logan Williams and Charles Dickey; Plain, Kinsey and Irvine; Van Buren, Sparklin and Brixan; Wayne, V. M. Hatfield and Milo James; Jackson, Denny and Washam; Monroe, Scott and Purcliby; Washington, Knull and Long.

GOVERNOR TO VISIT BLUFFTON.

Bluffton, Ind., Aug. 7.—A letter from Auditor of State Dale Crittenberger to W. A. Kunkel gives definite information concerning the plans for a visit to the Bluffton free street fair in September of Governor Samuel M. Ralston and other state officers.

The state officers will be here on Thursday, September 23rd. In addition to Governor Ralston other state officers who will be included in the party are Secretary of State Homer L. Cook, State Treasurer George Bittler, State Superintendent Greathouse, Supreme Court Reporter Zoercher and Judges Moran and Shea.

MEETS MISS KELLER AT WINONA.

Warsaw, Ind., Aug. 7.—Dale Regenos, the eight-year-old deaf boy, who resides near Claypool, and who has just completed two terms at the Indiana State School for Deaf, was introduced to Miss Helen Keller at Winona by Mrs. Macy, teacher of Miss Keller. Miss Keller presented the little fellow with one of the large yellow roses which she carried during her lecture. Since entering the school the little Regenos boy has made rapid strides in articulating speech and lip reading and was able to converse with Miss Keller with ease.

TWELVE INCH HEAD OF OATS.

Decatur, Ind., Aug. 7. E. F. Miller, of west of the city, a resident of the old Daniel Weldy homestead, brought to this city yesterday a stalk of Great Dane oats, measuring five and one-half feet tall. The head is exactly twelve inches long and contains 270 grains of oats. The average number of grains on a stalk of ordinary oats is seventy. The oats is a native of Denmark. Mr. Miller's crop is exceptionally good, even for the Great Dane. He has ten acres of it and it is standing nicely.

EUROPEAN WAR EXONERATED.

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 7.- An inquisitive resident here wrote to the United States department of agriculture asking what the cause of the continued rain is. The questioner mentioned the fact that there are many people who believe that the cannonading in Europe is responsible for this. The department experts write, however, that no basic reason has been found for the rain, but that the war in Europe has nothing to do with conditions here, as far as rain is concerned.

ON LOOKOUT FOR BLIND PIGS.

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 7.- Prosecutor Sprague stated today that the number of soft drink places which have been established in this city since the passing of the saloons looks suspicious. He intimated that he thinks perhaps a number of those who are establishing such places may attempt to run blind tigers. The prosecutor added, however, that he has means of getting "hep" to blind tigers which the general public does not know about.

TO BUILD BRICK HIGHWAY.

Goshen, Ind., Aug. 7—The contract for the improvement of the Elkhart township portion of the Goshen and Elkhart highway was awarded by the county commissioners Friday afternoon, Henry Cripe, of Goshen, being the successful bidder. His bid as submitted is for $44,025. The road, about three miles in length, will be paved with brick for a width of 18 feet, Metropolitan block to be used.

KILLED BY NEGRO TRAMP.

Defiance, Ohio, Aug. 7.—The funeral of Edward Chriss will be held this afternoon from the residence of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Efferson Towle. Chriss' parents live in Toledo. He was an employe of the Missouri Pacific railway, and while on his way home in Kansas City, was shot by a negro tramp. He was taken to a hospital in Ottawa, Kansas, dying about ten days later. His body arrived here Friday.

EXHIBITS BIG HORNETS' NEST.

Van Wert, O., Aug. 7.—Harry Gleason has on display at his store one of the largest hornets' nests ever seen in this vicinity. The nest is about two feet long and more than a foot in diameter, and was discovered in a woods near West Cairo last winter and brought here. The owner placed it in his attic where it lay forgotten until a few days ago, when it was mentioned to Mr. Gleason, who asked permission to place it on exhibition in his store.

SO EVERYBODY MAY HEAR.

Huntington, Ind., Aug. 7. The chimes in the Methodist church tower will be raised so that the sound will be able to travel to the east and northern part of the city. The tower will be built higher and an expert from the Menelly Bell company will be in the city to superintend the moving of the bells. F. Cramer, of Logansport, the contractor who built the church, will raise the belfry.

ONE MAN'S HARD LUCK.

Huntington, Ind., Aug. 7.—John Ackerman, of this city, has been suffering for thirteen weeks with typhoid fever. He suffered two relapses during this time and when he recovered from typhoid fever he suffered an attack of dropsy and stomach trouble. He is very ill at the present time, several physicians being in consultation yesterday.

WEATHER POSTPONES PICNIC.

Ashley, Ind., Aug. 7.—The Smithfield township and Hudson Sunday school picnic has been postponed from today until one week later. The excessive downpour of rain of the present week, added to the abundance of other weeks, has resulted in making Camp's grove too wet for picnic purposes and the committee thought it best to try picnicing a week later.

FLOOD AT MONTPELIER.

Montpelier, Ind., Aug. 7.—The Salamonie river is still on a rampage, and is now out of its banks, although it has been going down gradually. The stone quarry employes have been off duty on account of the high water and the employes of the water works have had to use boats to go back and forth to their work. The low lands are all flooded and much damage is being done to the crops along the banks of the river.

"The great American desert is not located in Idaho, Arizona or New Mexico, but under the hat of the average man—and I am not referring to the 'bald headed' man either."

"Nine-tenths of the average man's brain power is never used—a waste that causes waste."

Startling statements? Yes, indeed, and by two prominent men—students of efficiency—who ought to know. Is it not true, too, that we do not really think and do we not too often follow the lines of least resistance? And is it not just about what many are doing now in deciding what their boys and girls should do this fall? In fact have YOU given this important question the consideration it deserves.

An eminent writer and successful business man recently said that the three essentials for success were training, ability and knowledge and he placed much emphasis on the training in practical things. This is the trend of the day; it is one of the chief reasons why we have sought new quarters, designed by our own architect and adapted to our own needs.

But what do we teach? What training do we give?

Space here won't permit complete answers, but a 'phone call over 504, or a postal card, will bring you a catalog——FREE.

It will be at least interesting to know about the improvements being made in our various courses, and especially about the new model office, and ACTUAL OFFICE PRACTICE course we are adding. A large number have already investigated or made inquiry, and many have already enrolled. This new Department will give practice in real work—in the use of all modern office appliances, such as Multigraph, Dictaphone, Adding Machine, Cash Register, Protectograph, Billing Machine, Stenotype, Mimeograph, Letter Press, Filing, etc., etc., so that the graduate will be experienced in all lines of office work. You too, Mr. Business Man, were considered in the installation of this department; for no longer shall your patience be tried by inexperienced help.

"He profits most, who serves best," is truly our motto. We wish we could add something about the suite of new offices for the use of your boy or girl in our Accounting or Bookkeeping Department. We have not mentioned the fact that nearly one hundred brand new typewriters will be installed next month. The fact that we send a daily report on both the attendance and progress of your boy or girl, has not been mentioned, nor have we said anything about the new system of credits which will render you a greater service and give a superior training.

Don't think we are boasting, therefore; we are merely serving your best interests in the best way we know how, and we want you to investigate further for yourself. While doing so, do not forget to ask about our employment department, which places every competent graduate in a position.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Mark 3:22-35.

22 And the scribes which came down from Jerusalem said, He hath Beelzebub, and by the prince of the devils casteth he out devils.

23 And he called them unto him, and said unto them in parables, How can Satan cast out Satan?

24 And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand.

25 And if a house be divided against itself, that house cannot stand.

26 And if Satan rise up against himself, and be divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end.

27 No man can enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he will first bind the strong man; and then he will spoil his house.

28 Verily I say unto you, All sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men, and blasphemies wherewith soever they shall blaspheme:

29 But he that shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost hath never forgiveness, but is in danger of eternal damnation:

30 Because they said, He hath an unclean spirit.

31 There came then his brethren and his mother, and, standing without, sent unto him, calling him.

32 And the multitude sat about him, and they said unto him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren without seek for thee.

33 And he answered them, saying, Who is my mother, or my brethren?

34 And he looked round about on them which sat about him, and said, Behold my mother and my brethren!

35 For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother.

Dimming the Auto Lights

An Indianapolis court has just declared invalid and unenforceable the ordinance recently passed in that city in the interest of safety requiring that glaring automobile headlights be dimmed while traversing the streets of the state capital. It is held that the law is not specific; that it does not provide a measure by which to decide when an automobile light is sufficiently dazzling to come under the ban and when it is not. Consequently some new measure will have to be devised to meet the situation if the public is to have protection against the blinding glare.

The amazing thing about the situation, after all, is that any law should be required to bring about decent regard for the rights of others. There is doubtless today not an auto driver offending with his blinding lights who has not himself suffered similar outrage at the hands of others. He knows by experience precisely what discomfort and what positive danger he is inflicting upon others when he dashes down street past pedestrians and past other machines with his machine throwing out rays so piercing and so painful that they put to shame the early performance of the searchlight designed to penetrate darkness at long distances. It is wholly unnecessary. It is a waste of electric current. It makes the course of passing pedestrians and automobilists alike painful, hazardous and dangerous. Blinded, disconcerted, confused, all sense of distance, direction and safety is lost. Good luck alone enables one to escape.

Some degree of the offending may be due to thoughtlessness rather than lack of common courtesy and decent consideration for others. Some of it is flagrant viciousness--a bit, perhaps, due to ignorance--but whatever the cause, the result is an outrageous condition that cries aloud for remedy.

The action of Governor Ralston in proclaiming October 1 as Disease Prevention day in Indiana is much more important than one may at first realize. We have come to have a great many holidays and special observances of one sort and another throughout the year, but none of them with greater possibilities for enduring benefit than is the day set apart for education which will conserve public health, prevent the encroachment of disease and contribute to longer life and greater happiness. Health values cannot be measured in terms of money or of words, and the best health propaganda is not that which cures ills, but that which prevents them. Young and old should lend their full support and definite interest to the observance of Disease Prevention day.

There is now a prospect of a test in the courts at Muncie of the new law passed by the last legislature to provide flood prevention for Indiana cities. Let us hope that whatever legal clouds may be in the atmosphere will have been dissipated before Fort Wayne gets ready to use the law. The present campaign for signatures to the flood prevention petitions must not be allowed to fail. In providing against the danger of future damage by flood, Fort Wayne is facing a definite civic duty, and Fort Wayne does not fail when she sets herself out to accomplish things.

The election of Rev. William Moll, of Fort Wayne, as president of the middle west district of the Missouri Lutheran synod is an honor that all Fort Wayne appreciates no less than do the close friends of the popular pastor. This city, recognized as one of the strongholds of Lutheranism in the middle west, is proud to be the recipient of such distinguished recognition, and it can heartily congratulate both Rev. Moll and the synod upon the choice that has been made.

Twenty-nine prominent New York progressives, headed by George W. Perkins, have just held a meeting at Albany and vociferously sworn eternal fealty to the third party organization. Inasmuch as the colonel was not present and included in the number, we think that without doing violence to probability or enumerating the barnyard fowl prior to their incubation, the New York total on which progressives may safely depend can with reasonable assurance be raised to thirty.

The National Tailors' association, in solemn conclave, has decided that $1,000 a year is about the proper sum for a man to spend for his clothing. It is clear that the National Tailors' association has overlooked the incidental fact that most of us are also compelled to have a place to sleep and something to eat occasionally in order to adequately exploit our fine raiment. But the tailors are not the only folk who are able to see their own side of a proposition first.

Cleveland police believe they have unearthed at Angola a well-organized and especially daring "fence" for stolen automobiles, alleging that large numbers of pilfered motor cars have been systematically shipped to the Steuben county capital to be disposed of to purchasers whose chief concern was low price. And all this in a town that has always been listed among the spotless ones!

(Grand Rapids News.)

Director of Safety Carroll has returned from a trip to Detroit, Cleveland and other cities, where he has investigated traffic regulation rather extensively, and he has brought back some new ideas which he will endeavor to put in force here.

Especially he recommends the traffic semaphore, which is in general use in the larger cities. This semaphore, which he secured at the low cost of $9. Those Grand Rapids citizens who have driven in Detroit will remember the semaphore as a valuable aid at street intersections. It does away with the rather unsatisfactory hand signals used by the traffic officers. The semaphore can be seen for a long distance and there is no chance for a driver to confuse the signals. The words "Go" and "Stop" are printed plainly, and there can be no argument that the officer gave the wrong signal or that the driver misunderstood the signal.

Director Carroll also will propose that all traffic zone signs be placed permanently in the pavement, as in some other cities, but this hardly will work out satisfactorily in Grand Rapids, where the business streets are so narrow. Occasionally horses or an automobile will grow unmanageable, and the signs platdne permanently would present a new danger.

Permanent marking of the safety zones by white brick in the pavement instead of by painted lines would be a good improvement and would save considerable money in the course of the year.

Too much attention cannot be paid to the improvement of traffic conditions here, and Director Carroll's trip was a good investment in behalf of safety.

THE WAR OF DIPLOMACY.

(Pittsburgh Dispatch.)

No matter what may be the result of the series of notes passing between the government at Washington and the governments at Berlin and London, even the running reader must recognize that up to date this war on the part of the United States has been a war of diplomacy. If prosecuted upon the standard so far maintained nobody can be mistaken in regard to the victory.

New evidence of the excellence of this war of diplomacy is presented in the suggestion over the name of Secretary Lansing that the South American and the Central American states may be requested to take a hand in a Pan-American symposium for the possible settlement of the unnameable conditions in Mexico.

This is another proof of the newer thought that no one country on this narrow little globe of ours can be in turmoil, either domestic or international, without affecting all. With marvelous methods of transportation and communication the good or ill of one is measureably the good or ill of all. No more is there an existing entity separate from other assumed entities. We must realize the condition of oneness if we would make for the best there is in existence.

The thought of having all of the great American states unite in friendly controversy in relation to the bettering of conditions in Mexico, and of all of the internally disturbed American countries, is a thought that is being every day reinforced and made more and more insistent. It is intolerable that in this age of almost magical progress anarchy in one country should disturb the equilibrium of other countries either adjacent or remote.

The Willys-Knight Touring Car is abeautiful car—more pleasing in its proportions, more satisfying in its lines and finish—than any picture can show. For its beauty does not appeal merely from one angle, but from every angle; its finish shows as rich and perfect at close range as at a distance. It is the work of master designers and skilled artisans.

The lines of the long, low body flow smoothly, without angles or projections, from the rounded front edge of the radiator to the full-curved back. There is that harmony in the blending of lines that marks the true streamline type.

The fenders are long and sweeping in their curves, with gracefully rounded surfaces, and the running boards are clean and free from obstructions. The windshield is built in, and conforms to the curve of the cowl, making it a part of the car itself rather than a mere attachment.

The finish of the body is a deep royal blue, with delicate striping in white, and the wheels are a pleasing gray. Black enameled fenders and trimmings add a touch of dignity which gives the whole a remarkable effectiveness.

It is a beautiful car.

GOLD IN TREASURY SETS WORLD RECORD

U. S. Has as Much as Ever Held by Any Other Two Nations.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The United States has the greatest stock of gold, cash and bullion ever held by any nation, and as much as any two nations of the world.

There was in the federal treasury Aug. 2, in cash and bullion, $2,006,399,539. The present stock of the United States represents the loss of gold to the nations of Europe through trade balances.

July 1 the gold stock of the United States was $1,993,549,015, showing an accumulation to Aug. 2 of over $12,000,000.

In 1907 when the United States had a stock of $1,612,000,000 in gold, Germany had a stock valued at $1,044,000,000, France $906,000,000, Russia $907,000,000, Great Britain $584,000,000, Austria $303,000,000 and Italy $258,000,000.

England, it is reported, has accumulated about $800,000,000 in gold, practically the entire stock of the United Kingdom, as the nation has been hoarding precious metal and urging the people to use paper currency.

At the ice cream social of the fire department of the Wayne Knitting Mills, which will be held at Swinney park August 31, a water battle will be an interesting feature if the plans now considered are carried to a finish. Other amusement features are being planned, and, if the weather is good, the crowd will be large.

New Method of Caring for Children Deserted by Mother.

Connersville, Ind., Aug. 7.—Lawrence Serafin, a Pole, was left with his two children, one five, one nine years old, when his wife disappeared simultaneously with the disappearance of a young Russian, who had been rooming at the Serafin home. The deserted father earns good wages in a local furniture factory. He could not leave his work, and was loath to explain his wife's act to his neighbors. So each morning he made up a meat stew, into which he worked bread and vegetables. This he left in a crock, on the floor, and locked the doors and the windows after him. Returning at night he found his children well nourished, but lonely. The Humane society has just learned of this arrangement and will care for the children until Serafin can get a housekeeper.

Society

No matter how dull seems "society," let visitors come to the city and all immediate friends and acquaintances wake up and begin to entertain in some way or them. So it has happened that this old fort city has acquired a reputation for unusual hospitality and her people are said to be delightful by strangers who visit here and many who come here to live are generous in praise of the good times, the kindly spirit and cordial greeting they have and receive. The present week has been brightened on dull days by parties here and there, little ones and big ones, but none formal as best becomes summer weather. And teh visitors have eaten and drunk and talked and listened and enjoyed everything, even the leaden skies, chill winds and the rain.

A surprise party was planned on Friday afternoon for Mrs. J. S. O'Day by her sisters, Mrs. Joe Arter and Mrs. E. D. Ackerman, who gathered a few friends together and piloted them to the O'Day home at 2403 Calhoun street. The day was chosen because it was Mrs. O'Day's birth anniversary, but aside from being surprised she had nothing to do but enjoy her friends for everything else was planned and carried out by Mrs. Arter and Mrs. Ackerman. There were fifteen ladies in the company, including Mrs. Henry Fowler, of Van Wert, O., who, with Mr. Fowler, are visiting relatives here.

Miss Margaret Reinhart, of East Jefferson street, was hostess for an entertainment of visiting young women on Thursday when she gave a picnic-dance at Robison park. A dancing party that was so much interest to many Fort Wayne young people and which had for a host Walter MacConnell, of this city, was given within a week by the young man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mohr, at the big pavilion at Rome City. Upwards of seventy boys and girls enjoyed this affair. Music for dancing was furnished by Miss Grace Romary, pianist, and Mr. Warner, who played the traps. There were beautiful and elaborate decorations of the pavilion of purple and white bunting and many Japanese lanterns and colored glass lights. The flowers were big clusters of yellow dahlias and the wild lavender mint, which were very beautiful in harmonizing contrast to the bunting and colored lights. The young folks danced and refreshed themselves with copious draughts of punch and small cakes between numbers and yet had appetite for other refreshment that was served at a prettily decorated booth. Mr. and Mrs. Mohr were assisted in looking after the pleasure of the gay company by Mr. and Mrs. D. Ford Urbahns and Mrs. Hannah Mohr. Mr. MacConnell is a student at Notre Dame.

AT THE TEMPLE.

Final Performance of "The Man Who Stood Still."—Coming, "Hello Bill."

Fort Wayne will bid goodbye tonight to the delightful little comedy drama, "The Man Who Stood Still," in which the Payeen Players at the Temple theater have been charming remarkable houses all week. This dramatically told story of a watchmaker, who has permitted himself to grow old without noting the rapid strides the world is taking away from the tenets of his forefathers, and who through his ignorance drives his daughter into a disgrace, is the best thing the Payeen Players have yet done for Fort Wayne.

A rousing farce comedy, with hilarity written into every line, is the offering for the coming week. It is "Hello Bill" and the boisterous title suggests the rubbling red blooded comedy that guarantees laughs at a rate higher than the birth rate of suckers. The story is built round a young bridegroom's endeavors to explain his arrest for a wild escape on the night of his farewell bachelor dinner. Of course he gets himself arrested and of course there is the inevitable "fixer," who's going to arrange everything and nobody be any the wiser. Believing that the court certainly will inflict a jail sentence, the "fixer" arranges to inform the bride-elect that her prince charming has been appointed an army colonel and ordered to his colors, figuring by this means to explain his absence while he is immured in jail. The court does not hang on the jail sentence and Bill is sent into exile in Jersey for three months. In the meantime the real colonel appears and then the complications start. Lie is piled on lie, real situations are feverishly explained away, while the audience rocks in laughter at the absurd predicaments in which Bill, the ragtime soldier, finds himself.

"Give us a big laugh," Payeen company addicts pleaded, and in offering them "Hello Bill" the management is doing that very thing.

AT THE NEW PALACE

Leo Frank's Case Presented to People in Wonder Picture at Palace.

"Did Leo M. Frank, after living a life of rectitude and honor, suddenly develop into a brute capable of a murder such as he stands convicted of, or was he railroaded to prison by a mob-controlled jury?" This question is answered in a picturized protest to the American people, arranged by George K. Rolands, whose contributions to the wonderful new world of the film drama stamp him as a producer of the highest class. The remarkable photo-biography of Frank will be projected at the New Palace today. The celebrated trial scene in which Frank was convicted of murder and sentenced to be hung, only to be saved from the gallows by the refusal of Governor Slaton to be responsible for this legalized murder.

Valli Valli in "The High Road."

The lovely Valli Valli in "The High Road" is the New Palace attraction for Monday. This beautiful young screen star is a general favorite not alone because of her remarkable personal beauty but also because of her charming ability as a pantomimist. "The High Road" served Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske as a vehicle for starring two seasons.

On Tuesday and Wednesday the picture triumph of the age, William Faversham, supported by Miss Jane Gray in "The Right of Way," will be at the New Palace. This is the first appearance of Mr. Faversham before the camera and in Sir Gilbert Parker's "Right of Way" America's foremost dramatic actor is afforded a vehicle of unusual power. There are 200 principals and several hundred extra people in the cast of this metropolitan production of this thrilling story of the north country.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

"SECRETARY OF FRIVOLOUS AFFAIRS."

"Romance of Elaine" and a Keystone Supplement at Jefferson.

"The Secretary of Frivolous Affairs," a four part Mutual masterpiece, adapted from May Futrelle's popular novel of that title, and starring the popular screen celebrities, Harold Lockwood and May Alison, is the stellar photodramatic attraction of today's program at the Jefferson. There is probably no romantic actor in the films more of a favorite with Jefferson audiences that Lockwood, and this thrilling society drama gives him unheard of opportunities to display his dramatic ability to the fullest, and to radiate those qualities of personal charm which make his screen presence such a wholly delightful one. May Alison is a recent recruit from legitimate ranks, where she gained an enviable reputation as an emotional actress. Miss Alison is also one of the most perfect types of blond beauty in the theatrical world.

No Saturday is complete without "The Romance of Elaine," and as this day is no exception, the golden-haired heroine of this remarkable serial-drama will again be seen pursuing her checkered career through two reels of film fraught with as many thrills as a hedgehog is blessed with quills. Pearl White, Lionel Barrymore and Creighton Hale are the trinity of stars who are gaining undying fame through their connection with this sensational play.

YOUNG GIRLS WHO FORM A MERRY HOUSE PARTY.

About as jolly a group of young girls as could be found in any "neck of the woods," are the visitors and hostesses whose pictures appear above. Miss Dorothy Heaton has relatives living in Coldwater, Mich., so naturally she visits there. Some of those friends have come to this city on different occasions, and met Miss Dorothy's friends. So three Fort Wayne girls put their heads together and decided to have a house party. These girls were besides Miss Heaton, Miss Hope Graeter and Miss Katherine Metzger. When they made out the list for visiting guests they included friends from other places besides Coldwater, and Miss Mary Meek, of Lima, O., and Miss Helen Schaab, of Auburn, were included in the list. Miss Schaab couldn't come. The Coldwater girls of the house party, are Harriet Lind, Katherine Keep, Rosamund Pollock. The other member of the house party is Miss June Harrod, of this city. There have been many luncheons and dinner parties given in honor of the visitors, and a large reception on Monday evening at the Metzger home.

The concluding feature is one of the customarily ludicrous Keystone comedies with Chester Conklin and Mark Swain, "Ambrose Dared Walrus." Tomorrow Mary Pickford will be seen in what is pronounced the greatest characterization of her amazing career, the role of "Rags," the unkempt little central figure in Margaret Delano's appealing play of that title.

LIQUOR QUESTION KENTUCKY ISSUE

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 7.—Democrats, republicans and progressives of Kentucky, balloted today in a general primary for nominees for all state offices, except one-half the state senate. Most interest centered upon the fight for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, for which three aspirants had waged a warm race with the liquor question the issue. Republican and progressive candidates for the various offices were unopposed except in a few instances.

Three candidates seek the democratic gubernatorial nomination: Lieutenant Governor Edward J. McDermott, of Louisville; former Congressman A. O. Stanley, of Henderson, and H. V. McChesney, of Frankfort.

The republican candidates are E. P. Morrow, of Somerset, and Latt F. McLaughlin, of Madisonville, while Fred J. Drexler, of Louisville, is unopposed for the progressive nomination.

Another picnic will be given by Herd No. 1, Benevolent Order of Buffaloes, at Centlivre park, sometime next month.

A large class of candidates will be initiated by Kekionga council, No. 93, of the National Union, Wednesday evening.

COMMITTEE.

MAYOR WILL LABOR UPON THE BUDGETS

Takes Yearly Estimates to Rome City for an Over Sunday Workout.

When Mayor W. J. Hosey went back to his summer home at Rome City Saturday morning he took with him the estimates for the 1916 municipal appropriations just completed by City Comptroller W. C. Baade, and he planned for an over-Sunday workout on the figures. He expects to reach some conclusions as to certain important proposals and be ready upon his return next week to state his views. The proposed cut of 3 cents from the long maintained levy of 10 cents for track elevation stands foremost in the mayor's concern, and he is not yet prepared to say that he approves lopping off almost one-third of the provision for the city portion of grade separation. He is not opposed to diminishing the levy, provided he can figure out that 7 cents will be ample for next year's demands. He is heartily in favor of cutting away entirely the 3-cent levy for the garbage plant fund, for the proposal to do that is his own. He believes there is already twice enough in the fund to do all there is any reason for doing in solution of the garbage problem. He will not oppose an appropriation of $15,000 for motorization of the equipment of No. 1 fire station, and he will stand for a boost of $5,000 or $6,000 in the new street intersection fund, provided the track elevation fund will not be made to suffer in material consequences.

The budget will go to the city council next Tuesday night, and it must be ready to submit by that time. Hence, the mayor is taking the estimates with him for careful consideration meanwhile.

WAR ON WEEDS HAS RESULTS.

Much Attention is Given to Warnings Served by Police.

The new weed ordinance is producing results as a survey of almost any of the outlying parts of the city will show. Police Lieutenant Harry Grimme has been busy during the past week serving notices on owners of property where the weed nuisance was neglected and in most cases the delinquents have payed attention. There has been a more general cutting of weeds than has been known for many years. The Nickel Plate railway has put men to work along its right of way in the city and has made a notable improvement. The police will continue to serve notices, and where no attention is paid in due time affidavits will be filed and prosecutions will be pressed. The past week has not been favorable to weed cutting because of the heavy rains.

GENERAL IMPROVEMENT NOTED.

The clean backyards campaign inaugurated by the health department this spring has had a salutary effect all over the city, according to observations by the sanitary inspectors of the department. They report that in every section of the city there is improvement of conditions in back yards, which are not only in general much cleaner than has been the rule heretofore, but hundreds of them have been beautified by flower beds. Hundreds of back yards that are not entered in the prize competition inaugurated by the board are clean and embellished.

APPEAL IS MADE FOR RELIEF OF BELGIANS

Car Load of Food Stuff is Wanted from Allen County.

An appeal was issued Saturday by a committee of eighteen well known citizens to secure from Allen county a carload of wheat and other foodstuffs for the Indiana ship to be forwarded to Belgium for the relief of the famine-stricken inhabitants of that country. Indiana is to send a ship, and it is expected that it will be ready to sail shortly after September 1. As the time is short the committee is desirous that immediate action be taken.

The committee is composed of Robert S. Taylor, chairman; Fred B. Shoaff, first vice-president; D. B. Ninde, second vice-president; H. B. Master, third vice-president; J. Ross McCulloch, treasurer; Samuel M. Foster, G. M. Leslie, E. G. Hoffman, William Ballou, H. W. Lang, Owen N. Heaton, Charles H. Worden, Abe Ackerman, Jesse Grice, John R. Harizell, Mrs. Charles A. Dunkleberg, Mrs. Alice Knight and Mrs. Ben Levy.

Committee's Appeal.

The appeal of the committee is as follows:

"We, the members of a committee to secure from Allen county at least a carload of wheat and other foodstuffs for the Indiana ship whose cargo is to be distributed among the poverty stricken non-combatants of Belgium, appeal to the citizens of Allen county to bear their part in this worthy charity.

"This committee is acting under the Indiana committee, which in turn acts under the auspices of the International 'Commission for Relief in Belgium.' Thirty-eight states have already sent one or more shiploads of provisions.

"Indiana is now to fill a vessel which will leave New York sometime in September. Practically every county in the state has been organized, and has promised to send its quota of the cargo. We believe that Allen county will not be behind the others in generosity. We hope that each farmer will contribute at least one bushel of wheat, and that each citizen of Fort Wayne will give such donation as his or her ability justifies, to be used in the purchase of condensed milk and other foods.

"The International 'Commission for Relief in Belgium,' has, largely under American leadership, established a world-wide reputation for efficiency and economy in its charity. All transportation charges are paid from a fund supplied by the Rockefeller Foundation, so that every penny of money and every bushel of wheat reaches the needy in Belgium undiminished.

"This is charity, and is the essence of neutrality. The commission is recognized and assisted by the governments of Germany, France and England, and is absolutely non-partisan in its nature. The belligerent nations guarantee safe delivery of the foodstuffs."

The condition of Dr. G. A. Barry, of 1941 Fairfield avenue, who is a patient at the Lutheran hospital suffering from typhoid fever remains very critical. Attendants at the hospital state that he was a little worse Saturday. There seems to be little hope for his recovery.

Fort Wayne Pigeon Ranch With Thousands of Birds in Small Down-Town Back Yard

In these, the days of efficiency experts, intensive farming and kitchenettes, it seems to be the plot and purpose of everyone to accomplish big things in small space. The railroads make long distances in small time, the city planners manage to get the most frontage out of an acre that an acre will permit itself to be squeezed for and window boxes fast are succeeding back yard gardens.

Fort Wayne has been pretty well to the front in this new plan of living, and every little while arises to announce some new plan proposed and carried out by its sons of efficiency. But here's the best yet.

At 119 West Jefferson street Mrs. Elza McKown and her son, Harry C. McKown, conduct a pigeon ranch in a small part of their small back yard. In a wired-in space, twelve by thirty, they conduct a pigeon farm that contains anywhere from five hundred to several thousand birds at a time, and they are making a right comfortable little business out of the squabs.

Down town, almost under the eaves of some of the city's largest buildings, a couple of hundred feet from its main thoroughfare, a pigeon ranch is being operated while thousands pass the place daily, chuck young men under the chin and say, "Young fellow, go west; there's room out there."

Room? Well, what if west is as roomy as a house in a want ad? A fellow doesn't need room to be a success. Following the same comparative values, if a pigeon ranch with 2,000 occupants occupies a space twelve by thirty, an efficient dairyman could set his herd out to pasture in his back yard or grow his crop of grain on the porch roof.

Back in the dim and almost forgotten days of the roller towel a pigeon ranch required not only acreage but mileage, and it was the sworn duty of the birds to spread out over as much territory as they dared to permeate.

But simply by wiring in four coops and runways to separate the sheep from the goats young McKown and his mother began what has become one of the largest flocks, herds or coveys (or is it schools?) of pigeons ever handed together under one roof in so small a space, and are proving that they can make the business pay in a small space as well as a large.

Supply Is Shut Off.

One of the varieties of pigeons comes from Belgium, and since the Germans closed and chained the front and back gates of the little country, the supply has run decidedly short here. Although McKown has been unable to get any from overseas for months, he still has hundreds of the birds and they are in excellent condition. In addition to his Belgian birds McKown also has hundreds of a California species.

Then, too, there are scores of carrier and homing pigeons in the coops, but not one bird in all the hundreds is a plain, court house dome variety.

In the little houses one day last week there were birds running from one day to several years old, birds ranging all the way from the bald-headed, newly-hatched to grave old grandfathers. In the above photographs are shown several of the smaller birds, one pair of them reposing in McKown's hand and the other occupying half of the side of a cigar box. The new pigeons are funny naked little fellows, with eyes, ears and bills the size of grown birds, for these portions of the anatomy of a young bird are practically the same size at hatching that they are when the bird is fully grown. The young ones first develop a fuzz like the upper lip of a seventeen-year-old desperado out to cultivate a mustache. The mothers are mighty careful of their young and treat them with all the care the human mother does. In fact, they go even further with the birds under feeding age than does any other bird of barn yard ancestry. The mother finds food, and not only moistens it in her bill, but sometimes swallows it and starts a digestive process before the young ever get it.

The pigeons are thoroughly interesting to watch at work and at play, and the miniature ranch not only affords financial gains, but a world of pleasure to the owners. The birds are kept under wire and so cannot bother the neighbors, and therefore are strictly "within the law."

In the above cuts in the top center is seen Mr. McKown and a Belgian and a California bird, the Belgian being the darker. To the left is a general view of the ranch, showing hundreds of the pigeons on the ground and on perches set up in the coops, and on the right-hand side Mr. McKown is seen with the coops in the background. In the lower center the white birds perched along in a row are California pigeons, while the little circular photographs are of squabs under a week old.

Go past the place some time if you want to see an interesting industry. The coops are in the rear of the Jefferson house, on the first alley way west of Calhoun, and once in the neighborhood all one needs do is stand still and the soft and gentle cooing of the birds will lead him to the place. And a trip of inspection is worth anyone's time, whether he be a lover of animals, a pigeon fancier or a mere efficiency expert after new ways and means of making something out of nothing or growing an acre crop on the parlor carpet.

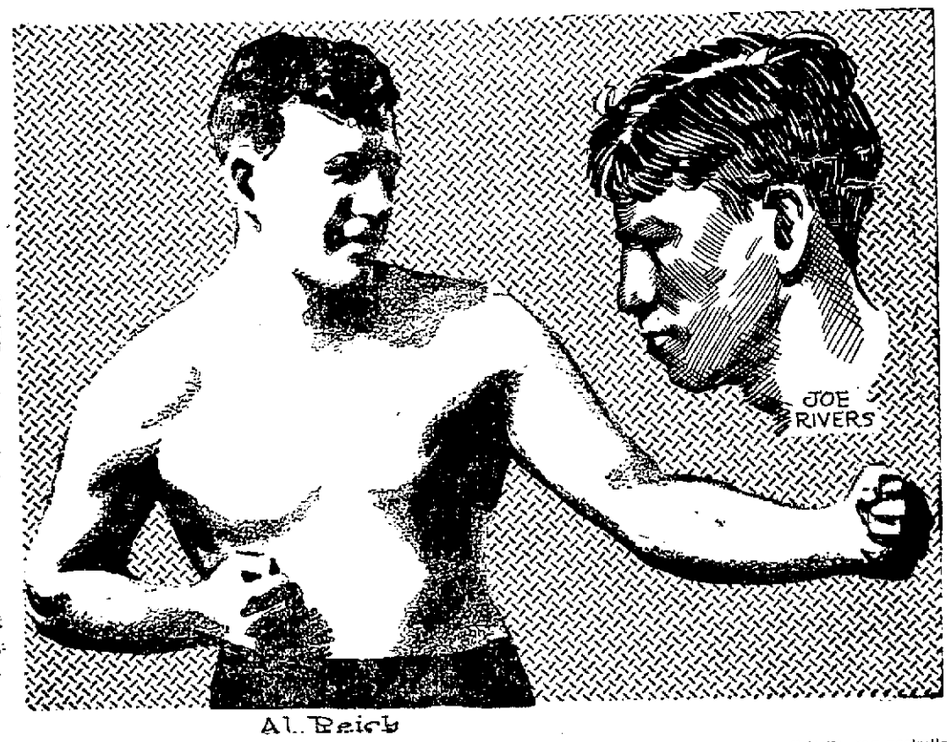
Reich and Rivers Show a Fighter Has to Be Born and Can't Be Made.



Al. Reich

(BY BROWN HOLMES.)

The best and latest proof that fighters have to be born, not made, is offered in the cases of Al. Reich, the eastern heavyweight, and Joe Rivers, the Mexican lightweight.

These two fellows have everything, with one exception, they ought to have to be champions. The one thing they haven't got is the fighting heart.

Picking fighters, in some respects, is a good deal like picking fighting dogs. Some animals have the fight born and bred in them. Others haven't an ounce of fighting spirit.

Reich, on physical fitness, is the only heavyweight who would have a real good chance with Champion Willard. He is a big, powerful fellow, fast, clever and can hit a good solid punch. But he lacks the aggressiveness and determination that a fighter has to have to get to the top. Reich is in the ring game because he is big and strong and in gym work showed cleverness. He was not born to fight.

Rivers, in physical requisites, has everything that would have made him a champion when he was in the featherweight class. He did work his way to a bout with Johnny Kilbane and was given a doubtful decision. When he met Kilbane the next time, Kilbane knocked him out.

Rivers is well built, can assimilate punishment, has a good defense and can hit. He is a little wonder when a bout is going in his favor. But when he meets reverses, he loses heart.

Freddy Welsh, the lightweight champion, has called Rivers a "front runner." He says Rivers is easy for him because he can take the fight out of him in a hurry by forcing him and jabbing him continually.

All the champions from bare knuckle days to the present time have been born fighters. Most of them had many uphill battles and many things discourage them, but kept grinding on. They had the "spirit."

WONDERFUL GAME BUT CUBS LOSE OUT

Eleven Inning Affair Full of Big League Stuff Friday Afternoon.

It took eleven innigs for Grand Rapids to grab off that game Friday, but they did pull it by taking a one-run lead that Fort Wayne couldn't overcome in the last half of that final period. Three hits off Osborne, who pitched remarkable ball, did the work in the eleventh, and it was absolutely no disgrace to lose a game of the kind the Fort Wayneites played Friday.

The affair was tied up nearly all the way through, the two teams running neck and neck through seven of the eleven frames. Both played marvelous ball, and it was a thriller.

Manager Bill Essig, of the Grand Rapids crowd, proved himself a gentleman of sensitive and humanitarian instincts in the sixth, when little Brubaker hobbled down to first on his broken ankle. The boy suffered agony yesterday from the bad leg and did not get around on it with any speed, although his game was a bird. So when Myers asked to be allowed to run some one else for Brubaker Essig merely shook his head and made the little fellow try it himself. His action could not but inspire admiration from the fans.

Fort Wayne made its first marker in the fourth, Brant hitting a good single and taking second when Mee flung full force to first while there was no one there to get the ball. Brant finished on second and Bratchi brought him home with a long single.

The first of the fifth the Sox got back with a run, and in the second half Fort Wayne made two. Osborne, Smyth and Brant got on hitting infield, and Osborne was forced out at the plate by Sheehan. Holderman hit a sacrifice fly to center and Smyth came home, while Brant tallied on Bratchi's single. In the next inning the Rapids crew got three. It was the eighth when Fort Wayne brought over the last and tying run made by the locals. Beyers, the best catcher in the Central by the way, came in at the right time with a nifty bingle and then stole second. Two outs followed, and when Red Smyth hit one in the eye over second Beyers came home.

Sheehan came within an inch of a home run when his fly landed on the top two by four of the left field fence, and then bounced back into the park. Osborne was right there, too, yesterday, and it was that same old "breaks of the game" stuff that figured in our loss. A pitcher who can smile with the bases loaded and often fan the heavy hitter in front of him is an asset to any club. Smyth got hit on the foot while he was batting but Umps Bull Green couldn't see it and called him out, thinking the ball had hit the bat. Green, however, isn't the worst umpire in the league at that, although he isn't the most popular among the players. A game with Green or Bo Slear holding down the indicator isn't as dangerous to the digestion as one with Daley, for instance, at the helm. The score:

GO TO BED EARLY, TIP OF GIRL WHO IS GOLF CHAMPION AT 18.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 7.—One of the contestants in the woman's national golf championship tournament at Lake Forest, Ill., beginning Sept. 6, will be an 18-year-old girl, Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta.

Miss Stirling, despite her youth, qualified among eight of the best women golfers in a tournament at Newport, then won the championship of the Woman's Southern Golf association over about 100 competitors in a tournament at Birmingham, Ala.

The girl champion attributes her success to good physical condition. She has wrists of iron, almost, a clear eye and the surest stroke in the south. She says she has barred chocolates, sodas and late hours. Although she is a favorite in society circles and invited to many affairs, nine o'clock is her bedtime. Her diet consists of plain food at all times. During a tournament she bars almost everything except liquids.

She says other girls can be strong, even if they do not play golf, if they will be careful of their food and get lots of sleep.

Miss Stirling comes from a family that loves the big outdoors. Her father, Dr. A. W. Stirling, one of the south's greatest eye, ear, nose and throat specialists, is a golfer and one of her younger sisters is the champion girl swimmer of Atlanta.

Seven years ago Miss Stirling began to follow her father over the golf course. She was just big enough to handle his sticks. Bit by bit she picked up the game. She learned by closely watching professionals and her own playing.

Sound living, high thinking and ideal parentage have combined to make the young champion a splendid example of the dreamed-of typical American girl, being a champion at 18 has not spoiled her. It has not even made her conceited. She has her heart set on the national title, but will not say she expects to win. She simply says she realizes the ability of others who will enter and that she will do her best.

GIRL CHAMPION'S RULE FOR GOLF

Play your own game, each stroke as it comes.

Keep your head, go easy and don't worry too much about what the other players are doing.

When preparing for an important match, conserve your energy. Retire early and don't play more than 18 holes a day.

Don't visit the scene of the match more than three days in advance. If you don't know where the difficulties lie, you are not always expecting trouble.

Eat plain foods.

Finish Work on Metropolitan Alleys

Although at no time during the summer months did the Metropolitan bowling alleys close up, nevertheless the entire interior of the building has been cleaned, re-painted and re-decorated. Four of the alleys have been rounded into shape and the other four will be put into condition in a week or ten days. Bowling ten pins will begin in two weeks. Five pins have been rolled all summer through and will be continued until cooler weather sets in.

WHEN CHAMPIONS MEET.

Duke Kahanamoku and Frances Cow ells, two of America's greatest swimmers. The Duke was the hero of the last Olym plad and is the holder of several world's records, while Miss Cowells holds four American records. The picture was snapped at the World's Fair in San Francisco shortly after the exposition swimming meet, of which Miss Cowells was the undefeated champion, among the women. This is an unusual picture of the swimmers as it shows them in their street clothes.

SYNOPSIS.

After the tragic death of John Amesbury, his prostrated wife, one of America's greatest beauties, dies. At her death Professor Stilliter, an agent of the interests, kidnaps her beautiful three-year-old baby girl and brings her up in a paradise where she sees no man, but thinks she is taught by angels, who instruct her for her mission to reform the world. At the age of eighteen she is suddenly thrust into the world, where agents of the interests are ready to pretend to find her. Fifteen years later, while in the Adirondacks, Tommy is the first to meet Celestia as she comes from her paradise; neither recognizes the other. Tommy rescues Celestia from Stilliter. They hide in the mountains. Later Stilliter gets Celestia back, and bring her to New York places her in Bellevue hospital, where her sanity is proved. Returning to get her, he finds she has left, with Tommy, who loses her in New York, but finds her next day living with the Douglas family. He follows Celestia to a factory, where she addresses the workers. A fire breaks out and Tommy saves her. Celestia attends a fashionable ball at Barclay's home. She at once becomes the center of attraction. Society accepts her message in a manner that greatly pleases the Triumvirate. She is sent to the mines to settle a strike; there she saves Tommy from being lynched. The miners have planned an attack upon the stockade. Kehr having hoped for this is well prepared. That night Celestia visits the stockade and speaks to Kehr's men, causing them to turn against him. Kehr has her locked up in the morning, but with Tommy's help she escapes and speaks to the miners. During one of these addresses Mary Blackstone, who is in love with Tommy, arrives in the mining town, and after displaying a string of valuable pearls to Mrs. Gunsdorf, solicits her aid in a plot to put an untimely end to Celestia. Stilliter, jealous, begins to use his hypnotic power over Celestia treacherously.

CHAPTER XXII.

And at that moment there was a sound of footsteps just outside the tent. The feet which made the sound belonged to Freddie the Ferret. With his usual good luck he appeared to have arrived in the very nick of time. Professor Stilliter was not at that time to receive the kiss for which his greedy mouth was waiting.

"Wake up!" he said in a disgusted voice.

Celestia put her hands to her eyes, woke, and couldn't remember just what had been said.

"I think I'm too tired to talk," she said.

"So I see," said Stilliter, as Freddie entered the tent. "Better rest, then."

And the psychologist withdrew, quite sane again and rather badly frightened. An open-flapped tent was certainly no place for making love by violence; yet for a moment the cautious man had lost all thought of self-control and all fear of consequences.

It was on the afternoon of the next day that Barclay, Sturtevant and Semmes came to Bitumen with a whole trainload of capitalists, and highable men expert in politics. The entire town—almost the entire township was at the station to meet them. Swaying and tottering above the heads of the crowd were all sorts of banners and transparencies, variously inscribed and emblazoned.

Vote for the New Constitution.
Kehr for Senator.
Every Citizen a Stockholder.
Dividends Instead of Taxes.

From the station to the stockade, now wide open, and shorn of its warlike barbarities, the crowd marched. When the head of the procession came near the tents of Celestia, set back from the road on a little knoll, it halted, and every man bared his head and began to shout her name. The shouting brought her presently to the door of the main tent—a slender, girlish figure all in white, who waved to her followers and adorers a white and slender hand.

Even at that distance her effect upon them was magical. Throats grew hoarse with shouting. Then she backed from their sight into the big tent, after one last wave of the hand. And they, because they knew that she would come to them later in the stockade and speak to them and fill their hearts full of hope and courage, allowed her now to withdraw from their sight, and, after one more minute of shouting they took up the march once more, and went roaring toward the stockade—late strikers, late strikebreakers, capitalists, politicians, men, women and children, all wild now, with excitement and enthusiasm—the two most contagious diseases in the world.

Celestia stood meanwhile in the center of the big tent; and she too was trembling with excitement and enthusiasm and the sense of personal triumph. And she looked so young and innocent, and beautiful, that for a moment the frown faded from Tommy Barclay's forehead, and the ache from his heart.

"Oh, Tommy," said Celestia, "you won't spoil it all now, will you? You'll be somewhere in the crowd where I can see your face, when I stand up to speak, won't you?"

"It goes to my heart," said Tommy, "to see how happy their love makes you. But I can't go to the stockade to be a face in the crowd. I'm afraid things might go to my head."

"I was so happy," said Celestia, "and now I'm not so happy."

"More people are in such a state of mind," said Tommy, "that if you said the word they would march on Washington and try to pull the president out of the White House. I've hoped against hope. I've seen your power, known that you had it, and hoped that you didn't really have it. You made a little mark on the great city of New York, you will go back on the wave of your triumph here and sweep it off its feet, as you have swept Bitumen. If you go to the stockade and show yourself once more to those crazy people and speak to them you will start a campaign of revolution that will sweep a sufficiently sane country off its feet. I see you floating from city to city and from village to village in your special train, winning all hearts, persuading all minds, and spreading, as I think, upon my honor, the seeds of national disaster. In the name of all that is most sacred to you, Celestia, stop while there is still time. Speak to those people if you must, but tell them that you have been deceived, that you are the plaything of capital, and that they have been deceived; wash your hands of politics and sophistries; step down; resign. In the image of all that is noble and fine, you have created a monster. Don't breathe the final breath of life into that monster and bring it to life—a Frankenstein that even you can never hope to control once it gets on its feet, and begins to think murderous thoughts. If you go to the meeting in the stockade you will bring this monster to life. Have you no fear of the consequences?"

She shook her head primly, but with a little sadness.

"Celestia," he said, "back of these tents the woods run to the hills, the hills to the mountains. Will you come?"

For a moment it appeared that she hesitated. Then she drew a deep breath and stiffened her spine.

"I believe," she said gently, "that God sent me to do what I have done and what I am going to do."

"I know that you believe that," said Tommy. "If I didn't know that you believed, I shouldn't let you go to the stockade."

"You couldn't hold me forever."

He drew the back of his hand across his eyes, as if to shut out some horrible scene.

"No," he said, "I couldn't hold you forever. They would come and take you away from me. I should have—you would have to be so that you couldn't speak to them—any more."

She came close to him and lifted her hands to his shoulders, and looked up into his eyes, a pitiful little figure, shrinking and frightened.

"You couldn't have the heart, Tommy—not me—no matter how wicked you thought I was."

"I couldn't," said Tommy, "thinking that you are a misguided angel of light. No, I couldn't. . . . Well, dear, God knows I wish I had your eloquence and power upon hearts. You won't find everybody on your side. You'll find many abler men than I talking and writing against you, and trying to save this country from madness. I—oh, I love you so that I feel as if my heart was breaking. And to think that I can't even wish you good luck."

"There's the motor for me now," said Celestia. "I know you can't wish me luck, but you could kiss me if you wanted to."

Those who had heard her speak before often said that she had never spoken so well as on that day at the stockade, with the exception of just the first few moments, when she seemed to be a little dazed and nervous. When she had finished and stood there swaying like a lily, and flushed with a sense of nobility of power and triumph, pandemonium broke loose.

Out of that pandemonium that began with cries of "Celestia—Celestia," another name gradually took form and substance—"Barclay—Barclay," they bellowed, at first in a kind of syncopated roar, then in unison, and finally with a rhythm that drove men half wild with the desire to be in time with it, and that actually made some of the buildings in the enclosure sway.

"Barclay—Barclay—we want Barclay; Barclay for president—Barclay—Barclay."

Thus the boom was launched. Barclay rose from his place on the platform, walked straight up to Celestia, took her right hand in his and lifted it to his lips. Then he turned, standing on her right hand and faced the shouting and the tumult. There was no smile of triumph in his face, only a look of grim, bulldog determination and probity.

After a long time they let him speak. And after he had spoken they went wild again.

"I will do what a man may," he said, in a voice that carried to the most remote pair of ears, "to make the wishes that you do me the honor of wishing, come true. If I am elected president, I will make these United States into a fit habitation for men and women and little children. So help me God!"

A little later Barclay's secretary stole away to the telegraph station and sent a message. An hour later the inhabitants of Bitumen, dispersed now, and for the most part drunk, were electrified by the spectacle of a snow-white train of cars that pulled slowly into the station, and was then backed on to a siding.

Celestia transferred her few belongings from her tent to the rear car of this train. The car ahead was for Stilliter and certain other managers and advisers. The next car was the office car. The one ahead of that was for a chosen body of select, able and pampered correspondents.

The snow-white train pulled out of Bitumen and the whirlwind campaign began.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Other trains were making whirlwind tours of these United States. Not every capitalist was on the side of capital. A badly frightened and very able man in the White House was fighting for his political life. Into the arena there came at last a dribbling of genuine patriots, who, like their forefathers, were ready to give for their country their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor.

It wasn't all smooth sailing, by any means. Still no new movement had ever made such progress in so short a time, and the end was not in sight, nor the beginning of the end.

A man gaining in strength from day to day, among those who stood for the old order of things, and opposed Celestia, was Tommy Barclay. He had a great fervid quality of honesty which no one could doubt, and he had a look on his face, very lean now from short nights, hard work, and the constant buffetings of trains, of a young hero who has set himself to do to death a dragon that is ravaging a countryside. With experience and practice had come quick initiative in emergencies, ease, and the better control of a naturally fine and far-carrying voice.

His triumphs were many. His downfalls came when he crossed Celestia's path too closely. If she was speaking by chance in the same town at the same time, he would have no more of an audience than he could have counted on the fingers of his hands. If he followed her too closely he spoke to deaf and unsympathetic ears.

"The crime of the ages," said one rough miner, who was suffering from too much heart, too much whisky and too little mind, "you great big, whistlin', thunderin' boob, did you ever set eyes on the lady?"

And Tommy to his horror had failed to find an answer to that question anywhere in his head, and had stammered and become tongue-tied, and been bored, and had done harm to a cause, which, so fanatical he had become, at this time, seemed to mean life and death to him.

In exalted moments he felt that he had crushed the love of Celestia out of his heart.

Once, in a little northern town, standing on an improvised rostrum of packing cases, and in the midst of addressing a large crowd of quiet, sensible people, who appeared to like him, and to like what he said, it was Tommy's bad fortune to have Celestia arrive from her snow-white car and steal his audience away from him. His "sea of upturned faces" became a pool, with more than half the faces turned away to try and see what all the excitement was about further down the street, and everybody getting more and more restless and inattentive. A sudden tremendous cheering took the rest of Tommy's audience away from him on the run, with the exception of one young woman, who wore a thick brown veil and was half concealed by the stem of an elm.

For a moment or two Tommy did not see her. His eyes were on the backs and twinkling legs of his fast disappearing audience, and there was a smile on his face, half rueful resignation and half amusement. He did not notice the woman until she called attention to herself by speaking.

"Don't stop," she said; "they haven't all gone. It isn't fair to me. I've come a long way to hear you."

With an exclamation of pleasure Tommy leaped down from his rostrum and ran to greet her. "Why, Mary Blackstone," he exclaimed, "what the dickens are you doing way down here?"

"I told you I came to hear you speak. You are getting to be rather famous, you know, and I thought it was my duty—her eyes sparkled under the veil—to hear you at least once."

"Well," said Tommy, smiling back, "you missed all the good parts."

They turned and walked seward the little city park.

"What are you really doing in this far away place, Mary? You didn't do all that traveling just to hear me talk through my hat, did you?"

"No, I didn't, really; and you didn't really talk through your hat. I came as a matter of fact to tell you something I think you ought to know."

They reached the little park, chose a bench, and sat down.

"You'll promise not to let anyone know you got the story from me."

"I'll promise that, of course."

"Of course," said Mary, "if Mr. Barclay is the next president it will be a great thing for his friends, among whom he has told me so many times to include myself that I have ended by believing him. It would be a great thing for me."

"It would be a sorry thing for the country."

"I'm not so sure of that. He doesn't think so."

"I credit him with the utmost sincerity, but with absolute lack of political vision. If they pass the new constitution, and my father once gets in the saddle, only death will get him out. His successor would be a man of his own choice, and we should have ceased to be a free people."

"We should have begun to be an efficient people."

"It is better to be free."

"That is a matter of opinion, and anyway it's neither here nor there at the moment. If he is elected it will be a great thing for me, won't it?"

"You would have more position and power."

"Well, I'm willing to forego that. I'm willing, if you like, to say that it is better to be free than efficient; better to be poor voluntarily and unwashed, than rich and clean by force. There, I admit all that. What do you think of the political prospects?"

"I think," said Tommy, solemnly, "that the election depends on Celestia. If she can reach enough people before she breaks down from overwork, she will elect her president and her congress. I've seen this over and over. We send our best men to a place, they make a good impression, show the people the fallacies in Celestia's gospel of prosperity and happiness, and then, having laid a good foundation of sanity and honesty, along comes Celestia and sweeps the place off its feet, and in twenty minutes undoes the work of a dozen good men."

"But people don't really swallow her assertion that she was sent from heaven for the especial purpose of running a political campaign?"

"Many swallow it. She does herself, you know. And hers is no political campaign, it's revolution."

"If her faith in herself could be shattered?"

"How could it? The best detectives in the world have been working on her origin. No clue leads anywhere. If she doesn't come from heaven, where does she come from?"

"She comes," said Mary, "out of the heart of a gigantic conspiracy."

"She is no conspirator."

"Unconsciously only. Tommy, where the detectives have failed, I haven't. I know all about Celestia—who she was, where she went to, where she comes from, and where she's going!"

"Going?" exclaimed Tommy, in such a voice that a pang of jealousy shot through Miss Blackstone's heart.

"Many ignorant people," said she, "actually believe that Celestia is divine and descended from heaven. As her beauty fades and her voice loses its power, if, in some way she should show herself human—marry—have a child—the belief of those people would turn into disbelief. But, if having seated the new government firmly, she should vanish in the heyday of her beauty, innocence and power—vanish as mysteriously as she appeared—more than half the nation will end by believing that she was truly the Daughter of God. Believe me, Tommy, the powers that produced her at the right time aren't going to let her grow old and wrinkled. She will go back to heaven. And a nation will believe that the government she gave it was derived from God and must be right."

"Do you mean they would murder her?"

"As calmly as you would murder a mosquito."

"This is frightful!" exclaimed Tommy, jumping to his feet.

"True. You haven't."

He sat down again.

"Profesor Stilliter," said Mary, "selected her as a perfect specimen of childhood. She was kidnaped and brought up in a great underground system of caverns somewhere in the Adirondacks."

"But she would remember."

"No other child has ever been brought up as she was. From the moment they kidnaped her she was kept in a state of hypnosis. She was taught by hypnotic suggestion. The caves in which she was brought up seemed vast to her as space itself. Bright angels appeared to come and go. Through the caves is the only access to a certain mountain top. There she could exercise in the fresh air unseen by anyone. Her physical life was just as real as yours or mine; her mental life was nothing but dreams, hallucinations and imaginings. Stilliter was her teacher, and one other man."

"What man?" asked Tommy.

"His name doesn't matter. Just before it was time to bring her to earth, he—well, they caught him trying to make her kiss him, and ever since then he's been—dead.

"Her memory tells her of no physical ills or wants, only of a wonderful ineffable disembodied serene state of happiness and holiness. There was a voice—to which all bowed down in worship. That voice told her at last that she must descend to earth and do as she—has done."

"What an extraordinary story!" exclaimed Tommy, "but incredible."

"No," said Mary, "not in the least extraordinary, if you like; but not incredible. You don't know Stilliter. Her name before they took her to heaven and named her Celestia was plain—Amesbury."

At that name a host of old and poignant recollections flooded Tommy's mind. For the second time he sprang to his feet.

"My God," he cried, "my little Amesbury girl. Of course she is. A hundred times I've been on the verge of that knowledge—and yet because it was impossible that she should be—the definite knowledge never really came to me. For heaven's sake!"

"Now do you believe me?" asked Mary, coldly.

"I must Mary. But how did you find this out?"

"It doesn't matter. I wormed it out of somebody. Now what will you do?"

"I'll go down to Celestia and tell her about herself, and shake her faith in herself."

"You'll need proofs."

"You think so? I'm not sure. Are there any?"

"I can't produce any. But—"

"But what?"

"Well, it might be a good thing if you could locate the cave. That's the only thing I can think of offhand."

Tommy fell into a brown study. Then he said:

"Mary, what is your motive in telling me all this?"

"Perhaps I don't want Mr. Barclay elected. Perhaps I dislike Celestia so much that I want her to be humbled even at my own expense. The motive doesn't matter."

Mary's real motive in making the foregoing revelation to Tommy was not entirely clear even to herself. Above all things she wanted to be rid of Celestia. The promise of a fortune in pearls to the person who brought her definite word of Celestia's definite elimination from mundane affairs had not borne fruit. Now Mary thought that a collapse of Celestia's power over men, through a shaking of her faith in herself, might produce definite results. Celestia, on learning that she was not a divine being but a faker, would become not only valueless to the archconspirators, but a stern and awful menace to their plans. They would succeed swiftly and without mercy where Mrs. Gunsdorf had failed.

It wasn't for want of trying that Mrs. Gunsdorf had failed. It wasn't because her spirit was weak or her arm nerveless, nor because the knife which she carried in her stocking wasn't long enough and sharp enough for her purpose. Advantageous opportunities for doing the murder and escaping undetected were rare. She had had but one, for Celestia was so surrounded and guarded as a rule that she was hard to come at. Mrs. Gunsdorf had only had one good chance. She had only failed then because she had been so foolish as to look Celestia in the eyes, and the power to do the wicked deed had been stricken from her.

She didn't have money enough to track Celestia all over the country. (Mary should have provided for this.) But she had done her best.

So Tense Were Mrs. Gunsdorf's Muscles That the Handle of the Knife Was Wet In Her Hand.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Celestia's snow-white train, practically deserted, occupied the siding. It would be taken off at midnight, and run slowly so as to arrive not too early in the chief city of the North woods.

Mrs. Gunsdorf chose a moment when no one seemed to be looking, and boarded Celestia's own car at the observation end. She knew the room in which Celestia slept, and entered it. There was a three-quarter bed in white enamel, a bureau ditto, an arm chair, and a door ajar, that disclosed the bath room. The little suite fairly dazzled with its cleanness and its whiteness. If there is anything in contrast, it was a wonderful setting for a bloody crime.

The room offered only one hiding place. Mrs. Gunsdorf knelt, flattened herself to the floor and crawled under the bed.

As always, an orating crowd followed Celestia to her car, or, as on the present occasion, surrounded her to it. Beside Professor Stilliter, she walked among them, talking with gentle persuasion to those nearest her. When she mounted the steps of her car they cheered her to the echo. She had to show herself several times and make little speeches before they finally dispersed and went about their business.

Tommy Barclay alone remained. He mounted the steps of the car and knocked on the glass of the door. Professor Stilliter opened it.

"Could I see Celestia a minute?"

"I'm afraid not. She's dead tired."

But Celestia had heard Tommy's voice and came out of her stateroom, where she had gone to lie down.

"I'm not too tired," she called, "and I'd like to see him."

"But only for a minute," cautioned Professor Stilliter, and then, with seeming reluctance, he withdrew and closed behind the door of the passage that led past the staterooms to the dining-room end of the car. But the professor went no farther. Having closed the door, he applied his ear to a hole that he had bored in it for just such occasions as this, and listened.

"I'm sorry," Celestia was saying, "that I had to steal your audience away from you. It would have been more sportsmanlike to let you finish speaking and then to have tried to steal their hearts and minds away from you. Wouldn't it?"

"Yes," said Tommy, slowly, "I think it would, Miss—Amesbury."

Behind his door Professor Stilliter started as if someone had stuck a knife in him.

"Why Miss Amesbury?" asked Celestia.

"Because it's your real name. I knew you when you were a baby. We were great friends. Then you went away. My father said you had gone to heaven—so you had, but only to a place that you were taught to believe was heaven. Then you came to earth—and I've recognized you. I wonder I didn't before. But I do now. There's no mistake possible."

"What utter nonsense are you up to now?"

"Sometimes little girls wear socks and chubby brown legs. The little Amesbury girl had a little round mole just under her left knee."

"So have I," said Celestia, "what of it?"

"Why this man Stilliter," said Tommy, "who kidnaped you when you were a kiddie, has taught you to think, by mental suggestion, that you are what you think you are, instead of just a lovely girl of flesh and blood like the rest of us."

She shook her head and murmured something about "nonsense," but there was something so earnest and convincing in the young man's voice and manner that what he said could not but shock and distract her.

"I'm sure you believe this, Tommy; but it's quite out of the question. I remember my heavenly home as if I had left it yesterday."

"You remember a mental condition, not a physical reality."

There was a short pause. Then, "What you've said ought not to bother me at all," said Celestia. "I don't know why you say it, or why you think it's true, but please don't argue with me about it now. I'm so tired that I'd almost like to believe it myself."

Professor Stilliter pricked up his ears at that, for he knew very well wanting to believe a thing lives next door to believing it. If Celestia could be made to believe what Tommy had told her, her influence would be at an end. She would have to be got rid of. The professor trembled. The triumvirate would be for putting her underground. So would he; but he would be for putting her, not in the grave, but back in those vast caverns whence she came, and where he, who had power over her, could visit her at his convenience.

He wanted the woman more than the triumph of that cause in whose interest he had trained her so painstakingly for so many years.

Let her believe. He might be willing to help convince her. He wasn't sure.

"If," said Tommy, "I can show you their cave—if I can find it—then would you believe?"

"I don't know," said Celestia. "I'm so tired. Please don't talk to me about it now." Then she smiled at him and said: "It's a wonderful invention, though. Find the cave first and then talk to me."

"Celestia—don't you want to believe?"

Then Professor Stilliter heard a sound that almost made him foam at the mouth. "She does want to believe," he thought, "and the will and her usefulness will be at an end, and she will belong to me. Why not anticipate a little?"

He stood trembling. He heard Celestia enter her stateroom and lie down with a sigh of weariness. He listened for a long time. The sound of her breathing told him she had not yet gone to sleep. And anyway it was not in his mind to disturb her now. That would be for later, when the train was in motion and the lights out.

So at last he walked stealthily off to his own car and called for a big glass of brandy and soda.

Meanwhile Celestia lay on her bed, her hands folded on her breast, and her mind reviewing and reviewing the statements that Tommy had made.

And under the bed, trembling with hatred and excitement, lay Mrs. Gunsdorf, waiting for that time when Celestia's regular breathing should tell her that the defenseless object of her hatred was sound asleep.

So tense were Mrs. Gunsdorf's muscles that the handle of the stabbing knife which she had drawn from her stocking was wet in her hand.

AUTO CRASHES INTO POND LILY TRAIN

Five Occupants Thrown Out at Kendallville; None Badly Hurt.

When he lost control of the machine, an automobile driven by G. M. Patterson dashed into the rear car of the G. R. & I. cottagers' train, the "Pond Lily," as it was passing through Kendallville at 6:20 o'clock Friday evening. In the automobile with Mr. Patterson, were his wife and their three children, and the compact threw all out of the machine, but fortunately none was injured. The auto struck the rear step of the last car, breaking it, crushing the front of the auto and breaking one of the front wheels and the mud guard. Mr. Patterson was driving east, and was going at possibly fifteen or eighteen miles an hour when he struck the train. He is the purchasing agent for the Fort Wayne and Northwestern Traction company.

THROUGH MERCHANDISE CARS.

Pennsylvania Inaugurates a Line to Western Points.

Hereafter when an eastern shipper has a small package of freight to go to any of the more important cities in the northwest, in the Missouri river territory or in the southwest, he will be able to send it in a car that will go straight through to destination without the package being transferred to any other car.

The Pennsylvania railroad has inaugurated a practice of sending through cars of merchandise freight by its Star Union line daily from New York to far western points, regardless of the quantity of freight offered for shipment.

Heretofore small consignments of merchandise from New York to far western points have been transferred at various junction points en route, thereby causing delay. The inauguration of the improved service by the Pennsylvania means that hereafter merchants will be assured of a quicker and safer transportation service than they have hitherto enjoyed.

BOWSER PARTY NUMBERED 1,256.

Went to Winona on Two Eleven-Car Trains Saturday.

A telephone message from President S. F. Bowser soon after the two trains carrying the employes of S. F. Bowser and company to Winona reached that place, conveyed the information that there were just 1,256 people in the party. Mr. Bowser also said that the trip was made without any accident or unpleasant incidents, and that the weather and grounds were ideal for an outing. "Everybody is happy and enjoying the outing," said Mr. Bowser. The first train left Fort Wayne at 8 o'clock, and was followed a half hour later by the second train. The crews were as follows: First train—Conductor T. E. McCarthy, Brakeman F. E. Breading, Flagman A. M. Worman, Engineer John Gebert and Fireman D. McDaniel; second train—Conductor T. C. Dragoo, Brakeman Hugh Edwards, Flagman H. L. Shaffer, Engineer Daniel Bolyard and Fireman C. Stahlhut.

NEW TRAIN ON PENNSY.

Will Put Another Flyer in Service August 15.

On Sunday, August 15, the Pennsylvania will put a passenger train in service to take the place of equipment train 34, which will be scheduled to cover the 280 miles between Chicago and Crestline in six hours and fifteen minutes, nearly as fast as the Broadway limited passes over the line. The new train will be known as the "Steel City Express" and it will show up on the time card as No. 36. It will consist of a combination car, a steel coach, one Pullman and six express cars and will make only two stops between Chicago and Crestline—Fort Wayne and Lima. It will leave Chicago at 11:45 p. m., reach Fort Wayne at 3:05 a. m. and Crestline at 5 a. m. On the same date there may be a few other changes in the time card, but they will affect only Chicago suburban trains, which will be speeded up a little.

W. C. DOWNING COMING.

New General Superintendent Will Visit Fort Wayne.

Next Wednesday W. C. Downing, general superintendent of the Pennsylvania Northwest System, will spend several hours in Fort Wayne, coming early in the morning and remaining until noon. This will be Mr. Downing's first visit to the city in the capacity of general superintendent, and the trip is probably designed to give opportunity for him to meet and become acquainted with the local officials and others with whom he is associated in railway work. He will be accompanied over the division by Superintendent Otto Schroll and some of the members of Mr. Schroll's staff, and by Motive Power Superintendent T. W. Demarest.

W. & L. E. NEEDS CARS.

Receiver Asks Permission to Invest $2,000,000 in Them.

Last Wednesday Receiver Duncan, of the Wheeling and Lake Erie, filed an application in the federal court at Cleveland for permission to sell $2,000,000 worth of receiver's certificates. He proposes to spend the money for equipment, placing an order at once for 1,700 modern freight cars. The business of the company cannot be handled with a less number of cars, the receiver says. The Wheeling and Lake Erie was once a Wabash line.

RUNNING OVER OWN TRACKS.

Nickel Plate Completes Repairs at Erie, Pa.

Westbound passenger train No. 5, on the Nickel Plate, the first to pass over the scene of the big washout at Erie, Pa., on the company's tracks, passed through Fort Wayne this morning. The carpenters and bridge builders who were called to the scene the morning of the washout and all the equipment used in the repair work, came home this morning. The repairs of track at the scene of the washout have been practically completed, only a few details remaining to be attended to.

SURPRISED W. F. MENNEWISCH.

Yesterday being the thirtieth anniversary of the birth of W. F. Mennewisch, clerk in the Pennsylvania storeroom, Mrs. Mennewisch got up a surprise on her husband, which proved a most enjoyable affair. The evening was spent in playing cards, listening to music and eating the good things Mrs. Mennewisch prepared for the guests. Several appreciate presents were given the host as mementos of the day. Those who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Roemke, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Peeks, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hartman, Dick Heidrick, Miss Amelia Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baessner, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Roemke, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Beneke, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davis, the latter of Long Beach, Cal.

TWO MEN SIMILARLY AFFICTED.

Two employes at the Pennsylvania round house are off duty on account of injuries that are very similar. Last week E. R. Hilgerman, machinist, working at nights, slightly scratched one of his hands. He did not give the wound any attention, considering it a trifling matter, and today the hand is swollen to abnormal size and is very painful. The wound became infected. The other unfortunate is a boiler washer named Adam Lopek. He had one of his fingers scratched on the nozzle of the hose a week ago and did not stop to tie up the digit. Today it is very sore, the wound having become infected. Both men are off duty.

BUILDING IRON SHEDS.

The American Road Machine company has a frame shed nearly completed on the site of the burned portion of the shops. The building has been enclosed and is now receiving the racks for holding the iron that will be stored in it. The iron shed was formerly on the west side of the factory, but was moved to the east side because it is nearer the machine and blacksmith shop, which use it.

MRS. VITNER WILL RECOVER.

Mrs. Lewis Vitner, of Valparaiso, who threw herself out of a car of Pennsylvania train No. 8 near Pittsburgh Wednesday morning, will recover. The husband took the three children who were with their mother to her sister in New York, where they will be cared for until the mother recovers. Vitner is a barber at the Northern Indiana university at Valparaiso.

SIDNEY CRAIG GOES HOME.

Yesterday Engineer Sidney Craig, who was badly scalded in the wreck of Pennsylvania train No. 42, when it struck an automobile at Wanatah, July 15, left the St. Joseph hospital, and is now at home. Leonard Wood, another victim of that accident, is still at the hospital and may not be able to go home for several days. He is improving, however.

CHRISTMAS GIFT IS MAYDAY LEMON

Ellen Smith Weds at Yuletide and Breaks Away in Four Months.

It was on Christmas day, 1913, that the climax and culmination of joyous yuletide season was reached for Mrs. Ellen Smith, when she was borne from the hymeneal shrine the happy bride of Sidney Smith—who has not made much of his famous name, evidently. Four months later, on the glad Mayday, when the green grass was growing all around, the beautiful flowers were spreading a wealth of vernal bloom o'er hill and in dale and myriads of feathered warblers were tuning up to nature's grand sweet song, Ellen and Sidney drifted apart. The holy gift of love that had blossomed on December 25 had ripened into an acrid lemon the 1st of May. So it is that Ellen has brought suit in the superior court for divorce. She says he was guilty of cruel and inhuman treatment—nagged her, was quarrelsome, failed to provide her with a home and made her earn her own living. Wherefore, she demands an absolute divorce and all other proper relief.

A Year Less a Day.

Rose Berry says that she hooked up with William Berry on the 2nd day of June, 1912. That there never was the celebration of the leather anniversary of that connubial event is indicated in her divorce complaint, just filed in the superior court, for she says that on the 1st of June the following year William up and deserted her without cause. It probably didn't hurt much, because she recites in her complaint that he had never given her a home, had provided her with no support and had forced her to go out and make her own livelihood.

THINK ESTIMATE IS TOO LOW.

While many contractors have been examining the plans for the Fourth street bridge, over Spy Run, for construction of which the board of commissioners will receive proposals at 10 o'clock Monday morning, most of them complain that the appropriation of $7,000 for the structure is too little. Notwithstanding this, the commissioners expect a good number of bids for the work. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the board of works will receive bids for the construction of a concrete dam across the same stream a few hundred feet north of the bridge. Most of the contractors who bid for the bridge are expected to bid for the dam.

LICENSED TO WED.

Adala Albert Etter, railway clerk, 22, and Lora Lavinia Whittern, 21.

George Maloly, fruit merchant, 22, and Rosa Rashara, 21.

Max W. Kirbach, manufacturer, 38, and Ada M. Liebrenz, 28.

Clarence W. Potts, machine helper, 22, and Ruth F. Siebold, 18.

NOTES OF THE COURTS.

The J. I. Case Threshing Machine company has begun action in the superior court against Simon Gibson and others to foreclose a chattel mortgage demanding $350.

The juvenile court convened at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon with a big grist of cases confronting Judge Eggeman. Most of them were delinquent boys.

The divorce suit of Edith Smethers vs. Thomas J. Smethers, has been dismissed from the superior court.

In the superior court Judge Vaple has granted a divorce to Enos Lord from Ida Lord, but has given the custody of several minor children to the mother.

Society

Mrs. F. W. Stolte and daughter, Susanne Matilda, and son, Fred, are back from a six weeks' trip to the west.

Mrs. C. H. Schulz, of 1815 Webster street, gave a dinner party on Friday evening in honor of Mrs. Hutten, who is going to Indianapolis to live. Mrs. Hutten was presented with a number of pretty gifts. Another less recent affair in honor of Mrs. Hutten was given by Mrs. Schulz and her sister, Mrs. Joquel, at the home of their mother, Mrs. Brownsberger. The guests were members of a club to which Mrs. Hutten and the hostesses all belong. Corsage bouquets of garden flowers were presented to the guests and the club made Mrs. Hutten a handsome gift beside the prizes won in the games.

Mr. and Mrs. Will J. Haas left Saturday afor northern Michigan to spend a two weeks' vacation.

LOCAL OFFICE, WEATHER BUREAU.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 7, 1915.—Forecast till 7 p. m. Sunday:

For Fort Wayne and Vicinity—Tonight and Sunday fair weather; not much change in temperature.

For Indiana—Generally fair tonight and Sunday; slightly warmer tonight in central portion.

For Ohio—Partly cloudy tonight and Sunday.

For Lower Michigan—Unsettled tonight; Sunday partly cloudy.

P. McDONOUGH,
Local Forecaster.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

This morning temperatures are practically normal in the various sections of the country. Since yesterday morning temperatures have risen slightly on the north Pacific coast and quite generally in the central valleys, but in the northern and central Rocky mountain region the weather is slightly cooler. In connection with low pressure over the lake region, and thence northwestward to Arizona, local showers have occurred over the lakes and New England, and locally on the middle eastern slope and central Rocky mountain district. High pressure over the Dakotas has resulted in generally fair weather in northwestern districts.

From present conditions fair weather may be expected tonight and Sunday. The changes in temperature will be unimportant.

P. McDONOUGH,
Local Forecaster.

BUFFALO SOON TO ELIMINATE POLITICS

Ballots in Coming Election Will Not Name Party Affiliations.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The city of Buffalo will at its next municipal election pass under the government of a commission elected to administer its public services. There will be four commissioners chosen at this first election, the present mayor remaining in office to the end of his term.

In order to eliminate ordinary party political influence there will be no designative marks or epithets of any kind on the ballot paper used at the primary, and the highest eight on this poll will be named on the ballot for the final choice of four commissioners. Each elector at that election will be allowed to vote for four, and only four, and the eight names will be printed in alphabetical order without designation.

The avowed object in this complex election is to get rid of national politics as an influence in determining the selection of the men intrusted with the management of purely civic affairs.

LECTURER IS SENTENCED.

J. C. B. Koenig, Arrested in Indianapolis, Gets Term in New York.

Buffalo, Aug. 7.—Jack C. B. Koenig, lecturer and poet, who forged several checks on business men in Niagara Falls, and who afterward was arrested in Indianapolis, has been sentenced to Auburn prison on an indeterminate sentence of from five to ten years by County Judge Fish. Koenig appeared in court nattily attired in a blue coat, cream colored trousers, white shoes and socks, but he had no statement to make. He was sentenced under old indictments for similar offenses committed in Niagara Falls under which he had obtained suspension of sentence through intercession of clergymen. Koenig sought time so that he might influence women to make good amounts of checks he forged, but the women refused to advance the cash and Koenig was sentenced.

UNITED STATES TO PROTEST.

Opposes German Prize Court Decision in Indian Prince Case.

Washington, Aug. 7. The United States will protest against the decision of the German prize court in the case of the British steamer Indian Prince, sunk with a cargo of American owned coffee, in the South Atlantic last winter by the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich. The court had justified the sinking. The state department takes the view that it is another clear violation of the Prussian-American treaty of 1828 and the principles of international law. Ambassador Gerard will make a formal protest, which is expected to bring the case up for diplomatic discussion.

CREATES BIRD RESERVE.

President Signs Executive Order for Arkansas Tract.

Washington, Aug. 7. President Wilson has signed an executive order creating the Big Lake reserve in northeastern Arkansas for the protection of native birds. The new reserve about nine miles long and varying from 100 yards to a mile and a quarter in width, forms probably the most important reservation in the country.

Big Lake is famous for its vast number of water fowls and plumed birds and is a paradise for market hunters and plume collectors.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 7.—C. E. Artz employed by a local carnival company, admired one of the life-size baby dolls on sale at a carnival booth here, and later was found sound asleep on the ground with the doll lying by his side. He pleaded guilty to a charge of petit larceny and paid a fine.

ARMY LIEUTENANT FIRED.

Washington, Aug. 7.—Orders announcing the dismissal from the army of Lieut. The order follows a court martial on charges alleging false statements to the department.

DEPALMA SETS PACE.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 7.—Ralph DePalma set the pace when the drivers in the 300 mile automobile derby were given the starting signal by Starter Jack Edwards before an immense audience at the new mile speedway here this afternoon shortly after 1:30 o'clock. Lombardi went out of the race at the end of the tenth lap with a broken connecting rod.

INDICTED FOR CHEAP GRAFT.

Boston, Aug. 7.—Five members of the city council of Revere were indicted today on a charge of receiving gratuities totalling $200 for granting licenses to junk dealers. All pleaded not guilty.

J. E. Corlett, elevator operator at the federal building, left Saturday afternoon for Chesterfield, where he will attend the spiritualist meeting now in session there.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kent, of Wildwood avenue, are the parents of a baby girl born Friday evening at St. Joseph's hospital.

Himalayan Bear and Goshen Cow Entered in Calliope Handicap.

New York, Aug. 7.—Head Keeper William Snyder, of the Central Park zoo, has announced his latest offering to international sport and animal lovers—a competitive mouth organ concert, in which the competitors will be a Goshen, (N. Y.) Jersey cow and a Himalyan sloth bear.

The bear, yclept Zip, is an inmate of the bear cage in Central park and will uphold the title for the city. He is being trained under the guidance of his keeper, Jimmy Coyle. Owing to his pendulous lower lip provided for the absorption of ants, it is believed by both Snyder and Coyle that with development he will prove invincible in the field.

The Goshen cow, Mollie, is the property of a friend of a relative of Coyle, whose local reputation excited Coyle to jealousy on his last visit and precipitated the arranging of the match.

The exact date of the match, says Snyder, depends on the rapidity with which an artistic nature responds to cajolement.

STATE DEPARTMENT SATISFIED.

German Ambasador Denies Reputed Relations With Huerta.

Washington, Aug. 7.—The state department today issued the following:

"The German ambassador has informed the state department that he denies formally the whole contents of the story of the Providence Journal about his alleged relations with General Huerta and desires that this statement be given to the press. As the department has no information on the subject it regards this expression of the ambassador as satisfactory."

EXTEND INVITATION.

The Huntington chapter Order of Eastern Star has extended an invitation to members of Shiloh chapter, No. 141, of Fort Wayne, to attend a banquet to be served Wednesday evening, August 11, at the Greenawalt home. After the banquet several candidates will be given the work by the degree team and officers of Shiloh chapter.

POLICE SEEK CAR ROBBERS.

Lieutenant Harry Grimme and a squad of police were engaged for some time Saturday in search for five men said to have robbed a Wabash freight car at some point west of Fort Wayne. The Wabash made an error in reporting the arriving time of a train on which the robbers were supposed to be coming in and had gone before the police reached the yards. A search of the hobo camps about the city failed to disclose the thieves, all of whom were reported to be armed.

TAKES CHARGE OF STABLES.

Henry Winkelmeyer, the veteran liveryman of Fort Wayne took charge of the Ankenbruck livery stables on Hanna street Saturday morning. He assumed his duties at once. Mr. Winkelmeyer is well known throughout the city having been in the business for nearly forty years, and his many friends wish him success in his new undertaking.

FUNERAL NOTICES.

Schoihing. Funeral services for Mrs. Helen M. Schoihing will be held Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the residence of Mr. Noll, 1114 Columbia avenue, and at 9 o'clock at the Precious Blood Catholic church. Interment at the Catholic cemetery.

Our store will be closed next Monday to allow us to arrange for our great half-price sale that will begin next Tuesday morning. Our Great Half-Price Sales that we have had in August during the past years, have been attended and talked of by hundreds of people who live over 100 miles from Fort Wayne. We want to say to our friends that the sale we begin next Tuesday will eclipse any sale ever given by this store. We will give values so great that we will be almost afraid to advertise them for fear they will sound to you like some of the flood and thunder sales you read about. But do not loose faith. During our coming sale as in the past, we will live up to every letter of advertisement.

MANY HOMES ENDANGERED.

Long Strip of Ground Slides Into Vermilion River.

Danville, Ill., Aug. 7.—As a result of the recent heavy rains, the largest earth slide in the history of the city has endangered the homes of many people on the bank of the Vermilion river. A strip of bank 1,200 feet long, 100 feet wide and eighty feet high has slipped into the river, damming the stream and causing it to flow over the bottom lands. Several barns and houses are on the brink of the river bank since the slide. A half-dozen trees, with extensive roots, was all that prevented even a greater slip, as the roots helped hold the loose earth together.

HOG PRICES MAKE A SMALL DECLINE

With receipts very small and the market practically at a stand still for the past month during which time prices remained unchanged, the price on hogs made a small drop here Saturday morning. Hogs weighing from 140 to 200 pounds, which were quoted at $7.25, were marked down to $7.00 per hundred weight. However, the other live stock market quotations remained the same.

Oats prices which have been ascending for the past few days added another cent to the average price and farmers received from 58 to 60 cents a bushel for the grain on the market Saturday. One load of corn that was weighed at the city scales brought 88 cents a bushel which is also a trifle higher than Friday's prices.

The price per ton on hay varied greatly today, prices ranging from $5.50 to $12 a ton. All the receipts were new hay, and it is predicted that no old hay will be seen on the streets any more this year. Wheat prices remain steady and unchanged.

The Barr street market was a very busy one today. Eggs, poultry, fruits and vegetables appearing in large quantities. Early corn and potatoes have been affected by rains and many black spots show upon the corn when husked. Peaches were plentiful and are prime for eating and canning.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Aug. 7.—Many shares showed the effect of distribution under cover of the vigorous advance in special issues, but the general strength of the market was conserved until the railroad list began to sag. Prices then fell rapidly to below yesterday's finals in most instances. The closing was heavy. A few stocks made stirring gains. Crucible Steel touched 92¾, general motors 207 and Willys-Overland 148¾, gains of 4 to 11 points. In the light re-action, however, Bethlehem Steel gave way 12 points from the high, General Motors 6 and Crucible 7. Bonds were easy.

Although a few of the active specialties advanced strongly at the opening today movements elsewhere small and the market as a whole was narrow. Crucible Steel was the center of speculative activity. It was bid up 3¾ to 92½, the highest price on record. U. S. Alcohol also made a record by rising 3½ to 69. Bethlehem Steel, long the most conspicuous of the war stocks, was less active. It rose 1½ after being quoted fractionally under yesterday's close. Railroad shares were listless but firm.

Risk Collision Rather Than Shots From Armed Guards.

Salem, Ore., Aug. 7.—Thirty-seven convicts on a motor truck which was crossing a railroad track here late yesterday realized that a collision with a switch engine was inevitable, but refrained from jumping for fear of being shot by armed guards following in an automobile. The engine crashed squarely into the truck and seven of the prisoners were severely injured, two probably fatally. Twenty others sustained cuts and bruises. The convicts were being taken back to prison after a day's work in flax fields.

MUNCIE FACTORY FOREMAN SLAIN

Frank Deam is Stabbed to Death by Discharged Employe.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 7.—Frank Deam, 42, a factory foreman at Ball Brothers' manufacturing plant, was stabbed to death here yesterday afternoon by John Craig, 19, an employe under Deam. Craig and Earl Hopper, another employe, were caught shooting craps in the morning, and were discharged by Deam. They returned to the factory in the afternoon and an argument ensued over their pay. According to witnesses Deam was shoved backward over a barrel and Craig, it is alleged, stabbed the foreman six times, one knife thrust being through the center of the heart. Although there were many other employes present, the affair happened so quickly that no one was able to interfere. The two men escaped from the factory building but were later captured. Deam was a nephew of Judge Frank Ellis of the Delaware circuit court, and was widely known and liked. He was married.

An unusual dinner was recently given in Toledo. Each guest cooked his own food by electricity.

IN HALO OF SMILES, WHATEVER THAT IS

Musicians' Union Picnic is Sure-Fire Go, Rain or Shine.

The committee in charge of the outing to be given by the Musicians' union tomorrow at Fitzgerald grove, near Robison park (stop 10) was enveloped today by a halo of smiles, whatever that is. The weather man sent each member a personal letter of apology and promised that he would give out on that day only first-class, government-censored weather. However, his apology came a trifle too late because the committee had already made arrangements to give the picnic in spite of any rain that may come.

Through the courtesy of the traction company the spacious cottage adjacent to the grounds has been secured together with the fourteen flored boxstalls on the cottage grounds. These quarters combined will easily not only shelter, but easily accommodate comfortably at least 700 or 800 persons, so the picnic will be given as originally planned, rain or shine.

This paper is requested to announce that all band musicians shall report at K. of P. hall on Washington street at 8:30 Sunday morning. From there a short parade with music will be made to the transfer corner. Orchestra men are to bring their instruments with them to the grove; piano players and string bass players excused. All the preparations have been completed even down to small amusements for the children. From all indications this will be the greatest event the musicians have ever planned for their own entertainment, as it will be given for musicians only.

FOR PEACE AND NEUTRALITY!

Mass Meeting at Palace Theater Aug. 16th—Everybody Invited.

Congressman Hy. Vollmer and Hon. Patrick O'Donnell from Chicago the Speakers.

An American Meeting Held by Americans in the Interest of America!

Not in the Interest of Germany or England!

America does not want war. The president of the United States does not want war. But jingoes and certain other elements are busily at work trying to create the impression that the majority of the citizens of the United States were anxious to enter the world war as soon as possible on the side of the so-called allies. A large portion of the press seems to be strongly influenced by the demands of foreign interests and by "war sharks" who hope to gain vast amounts of money through the unrestricted sale of war material.

These and similar factors are posing as representatives of the American people, while the peace-loving contingent, which forms the great majority of our citizens, can voice its sentiments through a few channels only.

It becomes the duty of every American patriot to raise his voice in opposition to those who are loudly bellowing for bloodshed and war. Ways and means must be found to communicate to the administration at Washington the sentiments and demands of those who love peace, home and prosperity. No better method of serving this purpose can be found than to assemble in mass meetings at which speeches for peace and perfect neutrality and ringing resolutions give expression to the views of truly patriotic citizens. Such meetings have been held in many cities of the United States. For the 16th of August an assemblage of this nature has been planned at Fort Wayne, Ind. Men of all nationalities, of widely diverging creeds, and from all the different walks of life, laboring men, business men, professional men, have united in order to make this mass meeting a grand success. Their conferences were marked by stirring enthusiasm. It became evident that those who participated were more than willing to defend their country against any enemy whatever his nationality might be, that they were not opposed to a necessary and unavoidable war, that they would fight for the American flag whenever a critical juncture would make it their duty to do so, but they all voiced the strong conviction that under present conditions such a war is not necessary, that all international complications which have arisen may be removed through discussion and arbitration, that the era of peace has not come to an end for our beloved republic, and the sentiment was expressed amid spontaneous and hearty applause that they would fight for no foreign flag, either directly or indirectly.

The shipment of arms and ammunition to belligerent countries has assumed such vast and alarming dimensions that it seriously endangers our neutrality; it actually prolongs the war. Does the American people wish to become responsible for the continuation of the bloody European slaughter? A halt should be called. The American flag must not be stained by the blood of any foreign nation; the Stars and Stripes must not assist in making widows and orphans! An embargo should be placed on the shipment of arms and munitions of war.

For these and other reasons the meeting at Fort Wayne should be attended by everyone. It will be held in the Palace theater, while overflow meetings will take place in the court house. Everybody is invited. Adv.

Mrs. Clyde Cromwell, 1529 Spy Run avenue, who has been ill for the past week, is slowly improving.

Everybody knows of the great value of what is known as "good will" of an old established business. Few stop to think what "good will" is. It is simply another name for satisfied customers. The Foster Furniture Co. has them by the tens of thousands, scattered all over northeastern Indiana and western Ohio.

ASSURED OF DECENT BURIAL, AT LEAST

Men's League Gets Behind the Mills Anti-Screen Ordinance.

"If the Mills' ordinance is buried it is going to get a decent burial. 'Gene Smith is going to preach the funeral, and President Bayer will pronounce the benediction."

Such was the comment of Rev. J. A. Nipper, superintendent of the Fort Wayne Rescue Mission in discussing the Mills' ordinance for the removal of screens and obstructions of every kind from saloons at a meeting of the Men's Christian League at the First Baptist church, Friday evening.

"A saloonkeeper who is not in favor of this ordinance, you can be assured has something mighty rotten going on back of his screen," Rev. Nipper continued.

Members of the league will attend the meeting of the city council Tuesday evening in a body when the committee will make its report on the ordinance. The league also went on record as favoring the ordinance presented by Councilman Keller for the abolishment of the cabarets.

Purpose of Meeting.

W. N. Ballou, secretary of the league, explained that the purpose of the meeting Friday evening was to discuss the Mills' ordinance and urge its passage by the city council. He explained the action of the city council up to the present time, and also declared that about 1,500 signatures have been secured to the petition which will be presented to the council asking for the passage of the measure.

Councilman J. B. Mills, of the Sixth ward, was the first speaker. "I have thought for years that an ordinance of this kind would be a good thing," he said. "As a boy I spent many of my Sundays behind screens and I've seen enough of the game to know what the removal of the screens will mean. I believe that a few of the saloonkeepers are in favor of my ordinance. They have reached such a point that many of them are convinced that they will have to reform, but in my opinion nothing will stop the progress that the cause of temperance is making. I also believe that a large per cent of the Germans in Fort Wayne are in favor of this measure, and I am confident that if it was left to a vote of the people fully 75 per cent would be for it. I can't see how the council can consistently go back on this proposition."

The councilman declared that had there been no screens the episode in which the boys from Churubusco figured, would not have happened. He said that such an ordinance would keep the boys and girls out of saloons. At this point some one asked if that would not also be true of policemen.

"Yes, I believe it would," he answered. "I heard of a policeman the other day who was beastly drunk while on duty. If there had been no screens he would not have been in that condition."

Favors Keller's Ordinance.

Councilman Mills declared that he was in favor of the ordinance presented by Councilman Keller and that he was going to vote for it.

"I think the committee will report against my ordinance," he continued, "but how the council will vote on it I do not know. I hope, however, that the members will not be controlled by a few bartenders and saloonkeepers."

Rev. Nipper ridiculed the idea that such an ordinance would kill the prohibition movement. Prohibition is one thing, he explained, and the removal of the screens is an entirely different thing. He said that the Mills' and Keller ordinances would help run out such places as those that are now in the limelight as a result of the case of the Churubusco boys.

Saloonkeepers Oppose It.

Prof. Francis M. Price, presided at the meeting. He declared that he had made a canvass of the city, calling upon saloonkeepers who had been recommended to him as models, and he had yet to find a single saloonkeeper who was in favor of this ordinance.

John Hall, who, for four years, was a night watchman in a department store, made the startling statement that the Court saloon is supported largely by the church members of Fort Wayne. He said he knew what he was talking about for the reason that as watchman he could see them enter and leave the saloon.

W. N. Ballou gave a short talk on present day politics and explained why the saloon and liquor interests have so much influence. They stick together, he declared, and are working for their cause every day in the year. No candidate receives their support, he explained, unless they know just how he stands.

ANCIENT BOARD BILL RISES UP TO PLAGUE

Fernehr Brothers Pinched on Warrant Issued a Year Ago.

Tim and Charles Fernehr, two young men whose profession is "hash-slinging," were arraigned in the city court Saturday morning on charges of beating a board bill. The complaining witness was Mrs. Luella Flowers, who formerly conducted a rooming house at 125 West Washington street. She stated that over a year ago the Fernehr brothers stacked up a considerable bill at her place, and then one night in the small hours, folded their tent like the Arab, and as silently stole away. A few weeks later Charles came back and said that the midnight departure was due to necessity to get Brother Charlie out of town because of trouble with a lady friend, and that he was going to work and settle the whole score. He remained until September adding to the account, and then he absconded again, leaving a total delinquency of $24 and some odd cents. A few days ago the migratory brothers returned, were seen by the police and the ancient warrants were exhumed from dusty pigeonholes, and, Friday night, the two were arrested. In court both pleaded guilty, but stated that they could square things in half an hour. They were given a chance, but some hearty pleading over the telephone had failed to raise the wind up to 9:30 o'clock.

Other City Court Cases.

Joe Mulhearn, who has been in the city court so often during the past two years the count has been lost, was in again Saturday, and drew $5 and costs, and went back to jail, from which place he was just released Tuesday morning.

E. Strasburg was charged with blockading a sidewalk in violation of the city ordinances, and the case was continued until Monday.

The case against Winifred Hatfield, charged with neglecting her child, was again continued after a payment of $11 had been made on her account. Her ex-husband, who is in the navy, sends money to her pursuant to court orders for the child's support, but it has been charged that she has not used the money for this purpose.

Harry O'Brien, a down-and-out actor who was picked up a few days ago as a loiterer, was feeling in much better state of mind and body and said he could take care of himself. He was allowed to go.

Tom O'Hara and Ralph Daugherty, two drunks brought in early Saturday morning, were still too much soused for hearing and were continued to Monday and locked up.

HUNTING FOR CAR OWNER.

The police are trying to identify the owner of a car that struck Arthur W. Bussing, 1420 Maumee avenue, earlier in the week, and are awaiting a report from the office of the secretary of state on the number, which was obtained. Mr. Bussing, who was quite severely injured, is making progress under the care of Dr. E. E. Morgan, but will be disabled for some time.

SAYS POCKET WAS PICKED.

John Bever reported to Officer John Greer Friday evening that while waiting to take a train north his pocketbook, containing $25 cash and a ten-trip ticket to Angola, was stolen. He was unable to give a detailed description of any probable robber and the officer had little to work on.

BALLOON EXPLODES IN AIR.

Aeronaut Injured in Fall—Accident at Red Men's Picnic.

Lebanon, Ind., Aug. 7.—D. L. Dennis, of Franklin, attempted to make a balloon ascension and parachute leap in a strong wind at the Red Men's picnic at Whitestown and is in a hospital here. At a height of 150 feet the balloon exploded. Dennis succeeded in cutting loose the parachute, but it failed to open until within thirty feet of the ground. The bones in Dennis' left foot were fractured, and it is though he may have suffered internal injuries.

OUR CUSTOMERS ARE OF ONE OPINION

that our fixtures represent the last word in their line. You'll find them designed with the basic principle of efficiency combined with artistic beauty. The reflectors radiate the light where it is needed, thereby increasing the power and decreasing the consumption of gas and electricity. We should like to show them.
